BOB GOT HORSE AND BUGGY AND FLEW

Writes to Tell That Rig Can Be Found at Chehalis—Was Drunk or He Wouldn't.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Vancouver, Wash., May 16.—Through a letter received here the horse and buggy stolen from Bud Smith has been located at a farm one mile from Chehalis. The rig was taken from the barn by a man known as Bob. He drove first to Portland, but later, unbeknown to the authorities, crossed back, drove through town and on to Chehalis by way of Woodland.

In a letter to a friend here Bob tells where the rig could be found. He also explains that he was drunk at the time or he would not have taken the rig. An effort will be made to locate the man and bring him back to Vancouver. It is thought he has fled toward Seattle.

NEUROLOGY

Is a system of analysis of the causes of human ills and of relieving human sufferings without the use of drugs or operation.

OPHTHALMOLOGY is a branch, and is the science which treats of the eyes, their defects, as a causive factor to human ills. We are the only people who, making the eye a speciality, are able to prove the accuracy of our work in correcting errors of vision and we do it without drugs. We straighten cross-eyes without operation.

STOP RACES IN HARBOR

Port of Portland Commission Sets Six Miles Per Hour as Speed Limit at Several Points Along the Willamette.

An ordinance passed by the Port of Portland commission yesterday afternoon put a stop to racing between rival steamers in the Willamette river from the harbor to near its confluence with the Columbia. The measure was considered timely in view of the rate wars that have been promised between steamboat concerns this summer.

The ordinance is sweeping in its effect, and violation of its provisions will be prosecuted without fear or favor. It is considerably more stringent than the ordinance passed by the city which prohibits steamers from traveling faster than eight miles an hour within the harbor limits. The new ordinance passed yesterday and made effective at once, provdes that six miles shall be the speed limit in passing the Port of Portland drydock at St. Johns or the dredges belonging to the port, no matter where they may be operating. It provides that eight miles shall be the speed limit from the foot of Ross island to the south to the head of Swan island to the north, and a speed limit of 12 miles from Swan island to the Associated Oil dock near Linnton.

Another matter of importance that came before the regular meeting of the commission yesterday was the appointment of a committee composed of Commissioners Swigert, Driscoll and Wheelwright, to revise the rates fixed for the use of the drydock, it having been decided to make a substantial reduction in order to invite more work. The old rates, it is agreed, have been rather steep, so much so that many vessels in actual need of cleaning, painting or repairs have had the work done elsewhere at a considerable saving.

The revision will result in giving more work to the large number of mechanics who depend largely upon employment at the dock.

Before adjourning the commission decided to build 10 new pontoons for the dredge Portland. Bids for the same will be invited in a few days.

BEFORE WIFE'S DEATH MYERS PRAISED DOCTOR

On the witness stand in the county court this morning Dr. S. A. Robinson, central figure in the contest over the will of the late George T. Myers, again took up the thread of his story regarding his treatment of Mrs. Myers during her last illness. That Robinson was skillful and did all possible to save the life of Mrs. Myers is the contention of the contestant, Mrs. Georgie Frances Stevens, her daughter, it being alleged that the charges Myers made regarding mistreatment of his wife by Dr. Robinson were unfounded and indicated an insane mind.

After having been on the stand last Tuesday Dr. Robinson was called back yesterday afternoon, but he was frequently supplanted at intervals by other witnesses for the contestant, who were called from their business downtown and were allowed to testify as quickly as possible. In pursuit of the same policy J. K. Gill was called to the stand this morning to testify to intemperate talk indulged in by Myers regarding Dr. Robinson. Gill and Myers served in the legislature together.

Testify to Unsoundness.

Numerous witnesses, many of them among the old residents of Portland, were put on the stand to testify to the same effect. Without exception they said they believed that Myers became insane or unbalanced on the subject of his wife's death. These witnesses were William Goldman, T. G. Thornton, George E. Watkins, Mrs. Margaret Frazier, H. C. Eckenberger, Dr. J. R. Cardwell, George S. Smith, C. H. Woodward and Dr. O. S. Binswanger.

The cross-examination of these witnesses indicated that attorneys for George T. Myers Jr., chief beneficiary and defender of the will, will claim that the elder Myers had good reason from what he had been told to be suspicious of Dr. Robinson's treatment, and that his excitement under such circumstances is not to be regarded as an evidence of insanity. They also sought to show that all that Myers charged Robinson with was unskillfulness. Several of the witnesses said Myers went further than that, and others declared that whether or not he had not grounds for accusing Dr. Robinson, no man who was sane would have spoken of the doctor and of Mrs. Stevens as Myers did.

Dr. Robinson on the stand this morning was allowed to tell his story of the last illness of Mrs. Myers without interruption. He told how he had tried to call in other physicians to consult with him, but that Mrs. Myers refused to permit him to do so. He told of the examinations he made and the progress of the disease, going into detail and showing a surprising remembrance of incidents. He told of his attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Myers and the arrangements he made at the crematory by Myers' direction.

To show that Mrs. Myers would not allow other doctors to be called, and that Myers commended Dr. Robinson for treatment of his wife previous to her death, letters were introduced in evidence yesterday afternoon. One was from Mrs. Myers to Mrs. A. G. Myers, written from Portland, September 9, 1901, reading in part as follows:

"I wish I was at Shasta. Doctor wants to get me away as soon as possible, and I fear the hotels will be closed before I get there. George frets himself nearly to death because I do not get up faster, and would have all the doctors in town if I would permit.

"Am propped up in bed. Doctor would not permit it if he knew."

Myers Praised Robinson.

Another letter, written by Myers to Mrs. A. G. Myers from Ashland November 11, 1901, contains the following:

"I came here yesterday. I am delighted to say that Sallie is looking almost as well as when she was herself, and looks splendidly and is talking as happily as if she was only resting in bed. The doctor had her weighed, 111 pounds. Since I last saw her her improvement has been remarkable, and gives evidence that she has been well taken care of. Doctor Robinson has been faithful and unremitting in caring for her, to which may be attributed her present convalescence.

"I think it may be several months before she will come home, as the weather is pleasanter here than at Portland, and as she doesn't care to come until she gets strong enough to walk, I infer that it will take that long before she will come. Since she has commenced getting better, I am feeling much better, and as long as she is getting better I can forego her absence from home."

SEE FLEET FROM BIG NORTH HEAD

Sightseers Will Be Taken to Mouth of Columbia on the Potter.

By an arrangement completed today by the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company a large crowd of Portland people will be enabled to witness the maneuvers of the Pacific fleet when it passes the mouth of the Columbia river enroute to Bremerton. The railroad company will run the steamer Potter from Portland to Megler, the new landing on the lower Columbia. A special train will run over the new line of the Ilwaco railroad, and the crowd can walk up to North Head lighthouse, where there is a great natural amphitheater that will accommodate 5,000 sightseers.

"We have gone over the matter very carefully, and we believe this will give Portland people a splendid chance to witness the movement of the warships," said General Manager William McMurray. "The topography at the point selected favors our plan. The new Ilwaco railroad, in which the last spike was driven yesterday, will carry the people to the spot nearest the lighthouse bluffs, and a good government road leads from the railroad to the lighthouse. Over this road it will be but a short walk, and the crowd will enjoy that part of the trip as much as anything else. On the top of the bluff fronting to the sea are located North Head lighthouse, the wireless telegraph station and the government meterological station. From this place there is a magnificent view of the open ocean, where the battle fleet will pass."

The Potter will leave Portland next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, arrive at Astoria at 6 o'clock next morning, and permit time for all to get breakfast. The crowd will then be taken on the Potter across the Columbia river to the new station of Megler, where the Ilwaco railroad will have a special train waiting. The run to Ilwaco will require an hour and a half, along the north bank of the Columbia, affording the excursionists a chance to see the latest job of railroad building in the lower valley.

Returning, the special train will leave Ilwaco at 3 o'clock p. m. Wednesday, and the Potter will leave Megler at 4:30 o'clock, arriving at Portland not later than 11:30 p. m. The round trip fare for steamer and railroad trip has been fixed at $3.

CROWD APPLAUDS PRAISE OF WORD

Lively Democratic Rally Held at Mount Tabor Last Night.

Tom Word's candidacy for sheriff on the Democratic ticket was indorsed by a large crowd of voters gathered at Woodmen hall on West avenue last night, where a political rally was held.

Rev. C. T. Wilson spoke of politics from a moral standpoint and lauded the single-handed efforts which Word as sheriff made during his term of office to uphold the morals of the community.

Dr. Wilson declared that Word had grappled the gambling evil without fear of consequences either to himself or his political future and had enforced the law against gambling impartially and without taking into consideration the fact that those whom he put out of business would work against him in the future.

When Word was defeated for reelection two years ago, Dr. Wilson asserted the lower element in the city and throughout the state rejoiced that a courageously moral officer had been put out. As a pioneer in the work of reform, Dr. Wilson urged the voters to support him and assured them that in so doing they would lend that much individual help in maintaining a moral community and enforcing the law against violators of the statutes.

Addresses were made during the rally by A. King Wilson, E. S. J. McAllister and Ogleaby Young, the latter a candidate for state railroad commissioner. J. A. Jeffrey, candidate for representative from the Second congressional district, also addressed the meeting.

CLACKAMAS COUNTY AND VICINITY

SAYS DRY TOWNS ARE NOT WEEDY

Mayor Matlock Proclaims the Gospel of Dryness at Oregon City.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Oregon City, May 16.—Mayor Matlock of Eugene fired another gun last evening in the Clackamas county local option campaign. A very enthusiastic audience greeted the mayor and loudly applauded him in his statements. He said in part:

"I come to you not as an orator but as a farmer of Lane county and by good fortune, the mayor of Eugene. I come not seeking political honors, because my best days are gone, but I come in behalf of good government, the elevation of character and good citizenship.

"Eugene went dry two years ago under very unfavorable circumstances. The mayor of the city at that time, a man honest in his convictions and a good man, too, was not in favor of it, because he honestly believed that there was not sufficient public sentiment in Eugene to make the law effective. There were predictions of failure on every hand and it was said that our prosperity would be trampled in the dust.

"But what are the facts about Eugene today? Instead of grass growing in the streets we have paved miles of them, under prohibition. The 11 empty saloon buildings were soon rented. Eugene prospered in spite of the loss of saloon revenue. The last two years have seen the largest increase in business and money in banks, in fact, in bank deposits Eugene stood at the head of the list in Oregon, leaving out Portland. We have better collections. Factories and mills are running full time. Last year we put up from 200 to 300 dwellings, with an increase of population of 4,000.

"Let me give you a fair sample of business prosperity in the case of my own son. He was doing a business of $20,000 a year. After the first year of prohibition it was increased to $45,000, the second year to $60,000, and this year it is larger than ever before.

"The first year of prohibition we decreased our city debt by $2,000, besides purchasing a site for a new city park, a team and chemical engine and hiring an engineer and surveyor and all this at an expense of $12,000 over the last year. No, the grass is not growing in Eugene streets; they were paved to the extent of $15,000 worth during prohibition and this year we are making public improvements to the extent of $815,000 and the building department shows that $83,000 in permits was taken out in a month for dwellings alone.

"Eugene has two daily and three weekly newspapers, and all of them are prospering."

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Oregon City, May 16.—At the First Baptist church, tomorrow night, at the popular evening service, the pastor, Rev. John M. Linden, will answer all the criticism which has come to him as a result of his two sermons on "Hoppicking and the Liquor Traffic." There has come to his hands one communication from the brewers, which has reference to the hop industry and which Mr. Linden claims, proves that the point of the pastor's contention is correct in reference to the hop and liquor business combination. He will give the people the benefit of this communication Sunday night.

HELD LANTERN AND FILLED GAS TANK

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Aberdeen, Wash., May 15.—A blazing automobile was the cause of a fire alarm being turned in about midnight last night, the gasoline taking fire when the chauffeur, Erick Iokanlan, attempted to fill the tank while holding a lighted lantern. The burning oil spread over the man's face, but he fortunately escaped serious injury. Three women who were seated in the machine, ready to start for a ride, jumped out on the sidewalk when the explosion occurred and escaped injury. The machine, which was a second-hand one, was pretty badly burned, but the accident is covered by $800 insurance.

CHAMBERLAIN IS GROWING STRONGER IN SOUTHERN OREGON

Governor Chamberlain's chances for the United States senatorship are looking large and bright throughout southwestern and southern Oregon, and he will be given a very heavy vote through the district, according to R. O. Stevenson, state game and forestry warden, who has just returned from a trip as far south as Klamath Falls.

Mr. Stevenson returned from his trip yesterday, passing through Portland on his way to his home at Forest Grove. He has been absent, traveling over the district for several weeks, and has been out mingling with the people of the outlying districts. It is here that Governor Chamberlain is showing his great strength.

"Wherever I have been I have been surprised at the Chamberlain sentiment," said Mr. Stevenson in talking of his trip. "I expected to find many supporters in southern Oregon, but I really did not expect to find them in such numbers or so widely diffused over the district as was the case. In my belief the governor will carry nearly all of the southern and southwestern counties.

"Out in the rural districts the farmers are flocking to the support of the governor because of his fearless stand on Statement No. 1. The rural voters are strongly in favor of the principle of direct election of United States senators, and they believe that Governor Chamberlain is more sincere in his advocacy of the principle than Mr. Cake.

"Governor Chamberlain has won the people to him, too, by his earnest labors in their behalf while governor of the state, and they believe that should he be sent to the senate he will continue to labor for them at all times earnestly and effectively. Therefore, they are lining up behind him and working for his election in June.

"In the cities where the Republican organization has more power the voters are being held in line for Cake to some extent, but even here the Chamberlain sentiment is growing daily. The people are openly breaking away from the old line of control and are voicing their sentiments and supporting the man whom they consider to be the better qualified more than in the past, when they stood in line with a candidate because he was a nominee.

"In my belief, and I have canvassed the situation very thoroughly, Governor Chamberlain will come out of Southern Oregon as far down as Klamath Falls, with a good majority. I do not know how it is beyond that point, for I have not been over the country, but I am confident of my prediction that far."

Mr. Stevenson has been consulting with his deputies through the southern Oregon district and finds that general observance of the game and forestry laws is good, no violations having been reported to him.

ASYLUM PASTOR'S CURE FOR WOMEN GOSSIPS

They're Crazy, Asserts Evangelist, Whose Reform Plan Has Failed.

Utica, N. Y., May 15.—The Rev. Henry McIlravy, of Little Falls, who gained notoriety a few weeks ago by establishing a gossip circle for women in connection with his evangelistic work in that city, has found that his experiment is a failure.

He invited the women who desired to ripsaw their neighbors to occupy his residence on Thursday afternoon of each week. Recent meetings have not been as well patronized as social conditions at Little Falls appear to warrant, according to Mr. McIlravy. So the evangelist has permitted the "gossip circle" to die, but not without taking a final fling at the back-biting element. He said today:

"The only remedy for infamous gossip would be to corral the gossipers, investigate the conditions of their brains and distribute them in appropriate corridors in lunatic asylums. In no other way than by insanity can I explain the malevolence of persons, especially women who work in churches, who are really kind and gentle, save that they collect, amplify and distribute all manner of disreputable tales regarding others."

Ed Chapman, a Umatilla Indian has been arrested by United States Marshal C. J. Reed for carrying liquor on the reservation. The Indian was taken with a bottle of whiskey in his pocket. The probable penalty that the red man will be dealt out is a fine of $25 and 90 days in jail.

SEVEN KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Katy Flyer Collides With Freight and Passengers Are Roasted.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Muskogee, Okla., May 15.—Six or seven passengers were burned to death this afternoon and several were injured when the "Katy" flyer on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad was wrecked a mile east of this city, according to word just received here.

The report says the passenger collided with a freight train and that the coaches immediately caught fire. The passengers who are reported dead were evidently caught under the debris and roasted alive before rescuers could reach them.

GOES TO SALEM TO BE HANGED

Joe Anderson, convicted of the murder of Harry M. Logan on the Fourth street bridge last October, was this morning sentenced to hang on June 26. Judge Bronaugh passed sentence upon Anderson, who did not say anything when asked if he knew any reason why sentence should not be passed upon him. Anderson will be taken to Salem under a strong guard this afternoon, and will be kept in the penitentiary until his execution.

Although there was an unusual crowd in the courtroom the circumstances surrounding the sentencing of Anderson were without unusual incident. Judge Bronaugh followed the usual formula in sentencing Anderson and granted his attorney, John A. Jeffreys, 30 days in which to file a bill of exceptions. When asked if he had anything to say to the court Anderson merely replied "No."

DECISION IN SHIPPERS' FAVOR

United States Circuit Court of Georgia Grants Lumbermen's Prayer.

It will be remembered that three or four years ago, in what is known as the Yellow Pine cases, an advance of 2 cents a hundred put into effect by the railroad companies from southern points was declared to be unreasonable, and an order was entered granting the lumbermen reparation for rates collected.

In the United States circuit court of Georgia, in a case before Judge Speer, the railroads executed a bond for $500,000 to protect the shippers against the advance in case the supreme court sustained the decision of the lower court holding the advances unjustified. The supreme court many months ago decided the case in favor of the lumbermen, but settlement of the difference due the lumbermen had been delayed for various reasons.

Finally, on May 6, 1908, an ancillary bill was filed asking that the court direct the railroads to pay into court the $500,000, being the face of the bond executed to protect the shippers, and yesterday the court granted the prayer and directed the payment to be made, and it is believed now that there will be no further delay in the shippers being repaid the excessive rates collected in the meantime.

LEAVES BRIDE OF TWO WEEKS; HANGS SELF

Bridgeport, Conn., May 15.—John A. Hickock, a well-to-do farmer, who was married just two weeks ago, rose early today, and, telling his bride not to hurry about breakfast, left their bedroom. When she arose later she found this note on the kitchen table:

"My Dear Wife, Susie: My last wishes: I want my wife to have everything, cash and all. Please excuse me for this rash act. I am nearly wild with pains in my back and head. You will find me in the granary. Goodbye, my dear wife. (Signed) J. A. Hickock."

The body of Hickock, who was 57 years old, was found suspended by a rope from a rafter in the granary.
