ONE GIRL GETS CHANCE AT PRIZE

Manual Training Contest for Boys Only, but She Couldn't Be Shut Out.

If you were a small girl and had worked three whole months to make a beautiful hanging bookshelf, and then found out that nobody would ever see it, and you couldn't get a prize, and all because you happened to be a girl instead of a horrid boy—well, wouldn't you ask your papa to vote for woman's suffrage, so there now?

The Honeyman Hardware company is conducting a contest among the pupils of the public manual training schools. The contest was open to boys only, but little Fern Wedrick, who lives at 144 Russell street, didn't know it.

She worked for three months to make a hanging bookshelf which she was confident would take a prize. She brought it to the Honeyman Hardware company's store yesterday and wanted to enter it in the contest.

When J. R. Hardy, who is managing the contest, explained that only boys' work was to be considered the little miss looked so wistful that Mr. Hardy and Walter Honeyman contributed $5 out of their own pockets to give her a special prize. They considered that as she was the only girl in the city who manifested enough interest in the competition to come up to the store and inquire about the contest, she deserved this much. Little Miss Wedrick will have her cleverly made hanging bookshelf exhibited with the rest of prizes during the carnival.

Many Shows Contest.

Some 300 school children of Portland entered the contest, which closed yesterday. The judges of the contest are busy this afternoon grading the work submitted, which includes everything from a little bit of a chip carving or a rude doghouse to a finished example of the cabinet-maker's art. The top floor of the Honeyman company's building looks like a department in a furniture store.

The competition for the $300 worth of prizes which the Honeyman Hardware company is giving to the successful contestants has been keen, and out of 441 who registered since March 21, when the contest opened, more than 300 have brought in something in the hope that the work may be considered good enough to secure the owner one of the handsome prizes which have been on exhibition in the Alder street window of the Honeyman store.

Encourage Use of Tools.

The prizes were offered to encourage the proper handling of carpenter and carving tools in the manual training schools of Portland and 20 useful sets of tools to the value of $200 will be distributed among the 20 successful boys this afternoon. The names of the prize winners will be announced in tomorrow's Journal, and each bit of work which draws a prize will be placed on exhibition in the Alder street display windows of the Honeyman store, with the maker's name attached. Every piece of work which is considered good by the judges, whether it draws a prize or not will also be placed on display, and all the pieces will remain in the display windows until after the carnival.

The judges who are grading the work this afternoon are William Turner, draftsman of the Oregon Planing mills; Superintendent L. D. Freeland of the Oregon Furniture company, and T. E. McMillan, the contractor and builder. They are eminently qualified to decide as to what pieces are the most deserving of prizes.

Drinking Men Not Wanted

The above sign is now seen in many shops and offices in this city, because drinking men are unreliable.

Competition is too keen and life is too strenuous for an employer to keep men on his payroll whose nerves are unsteady and whose brains are not clear. Every line of business is beginning to close its doors to drinking men.

Drunkenness is a disease and, like most diseases, has its remedy. Orrine is the reliable treatment and is sold under a positive guarantee to effect a cure or your money will be refunded. Orrine is in two forms; No. 1, which can be used without the patient's knowledge in tea, coffee or food, and No. 2, for those who wish to be cured.

The guarantee applies to both forms. Mailed in plain sealed package on receipt of $1.00. Write for free booklet, mailed in plain sealed envelope. The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., or Clarke-Woodward Drug Co., and nearly all druggists in Portland.

BLAME CAR COMPANY FOR DELAYED PAVING

Members of Street Committee Are Considering Curtailment of Franchises.

That the Portland Railway, Light & Power company is partly responsible for the delay in the street improvement work is the contention of the members of the street committee of the city executive board, and at yesterday's meeting they requested City Attorney Kavanaugh to enlighten them as to whether they could secure redress from the railway company.

The company is charged with delaying its work in placing tracks and paving with bricks inside the tracks on certain streets on which the Pacific Bridge company has contracts for paving. When the bridge company asked for further extensions of time on Chapman street from Spring to Elizabeth and on Killigworth from Union to Patton, the members wanted to know why the extensions were asked for inasmuch as extensions had been granted on these streets several months ago.

The bridge company alleged that their work had been delayed because the railway company had failed to lay new tracks on Chapman street and had failed to place stone blocks between the tracks on Killigworth avenue.

The executive board ordered the railway company months ago to make these improvements and the committee wants to take away part of the company's franchise or obtain redress in some other way.

The committee recommended that the following awards for street improvements be made: Barber Asphalt company, improvement of East Seventeenth street, $17,643.24; same company, East Twentieth street, $4,338; Star Sand company, Harding street, $3,961; Pacific Bridge company, Knott street, $10,544.
