

PORTLAND, OREGON, SATURDAY EVENING MAY 23, 1908

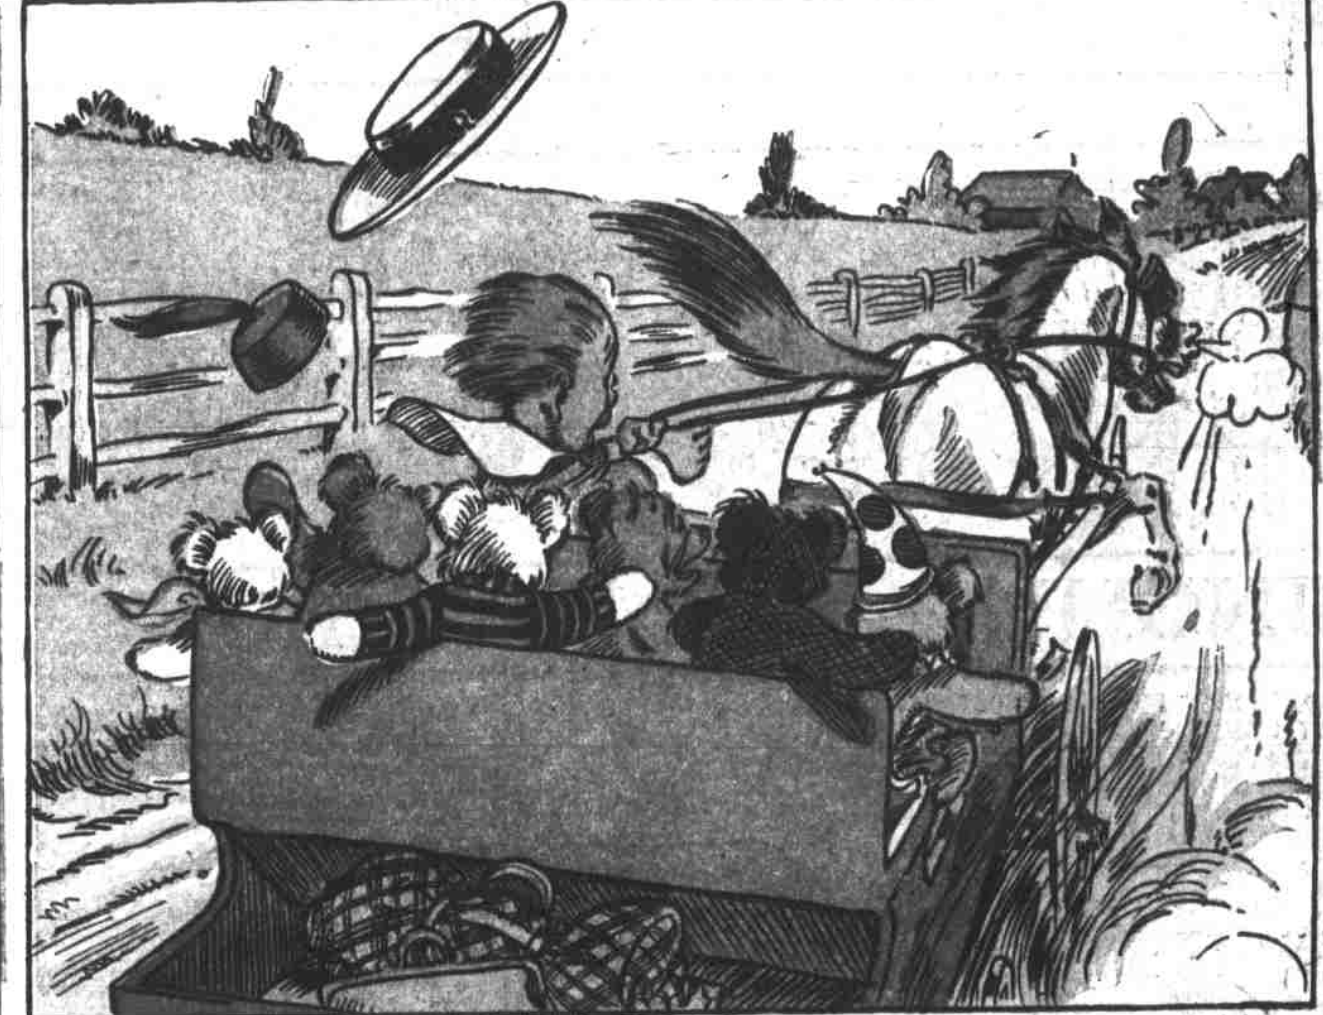

1. The city boy thrills with delight
 Whene'er the country looms in sight.
 John and the Teds, with bag and grip,
 Are starting on their summer trip.

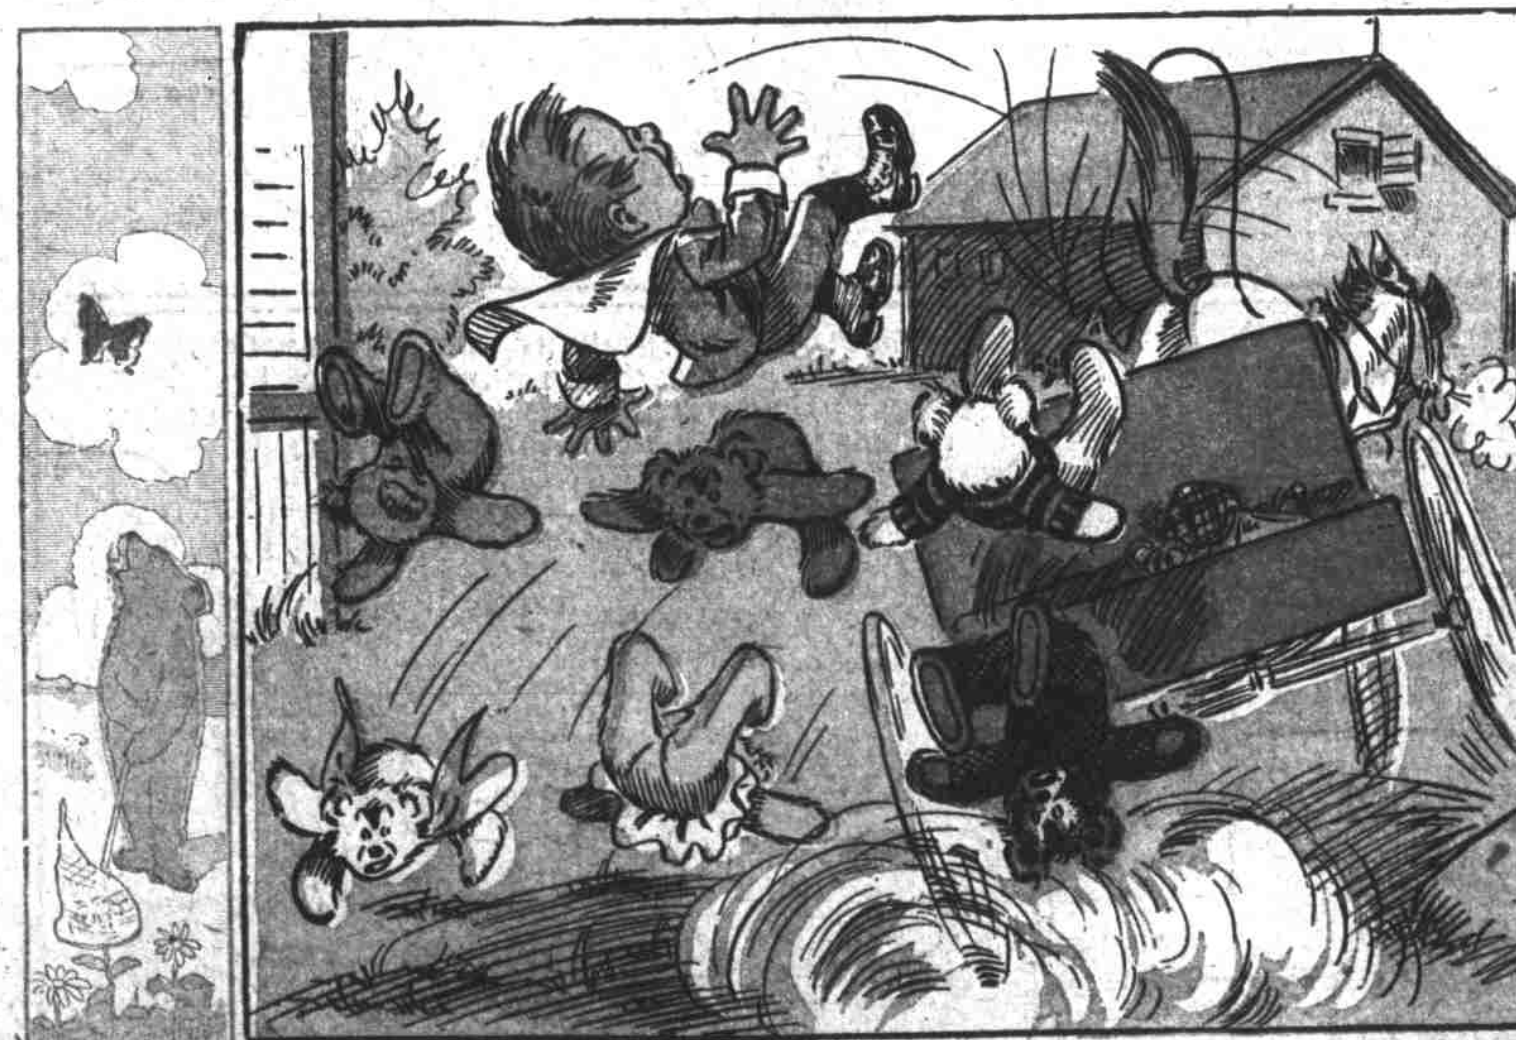

2. Now for a dash through country lanes.
 The Teds look on, John holds the reins.
 While uncle's in the store, of course
 It's up to John to mind the horse.

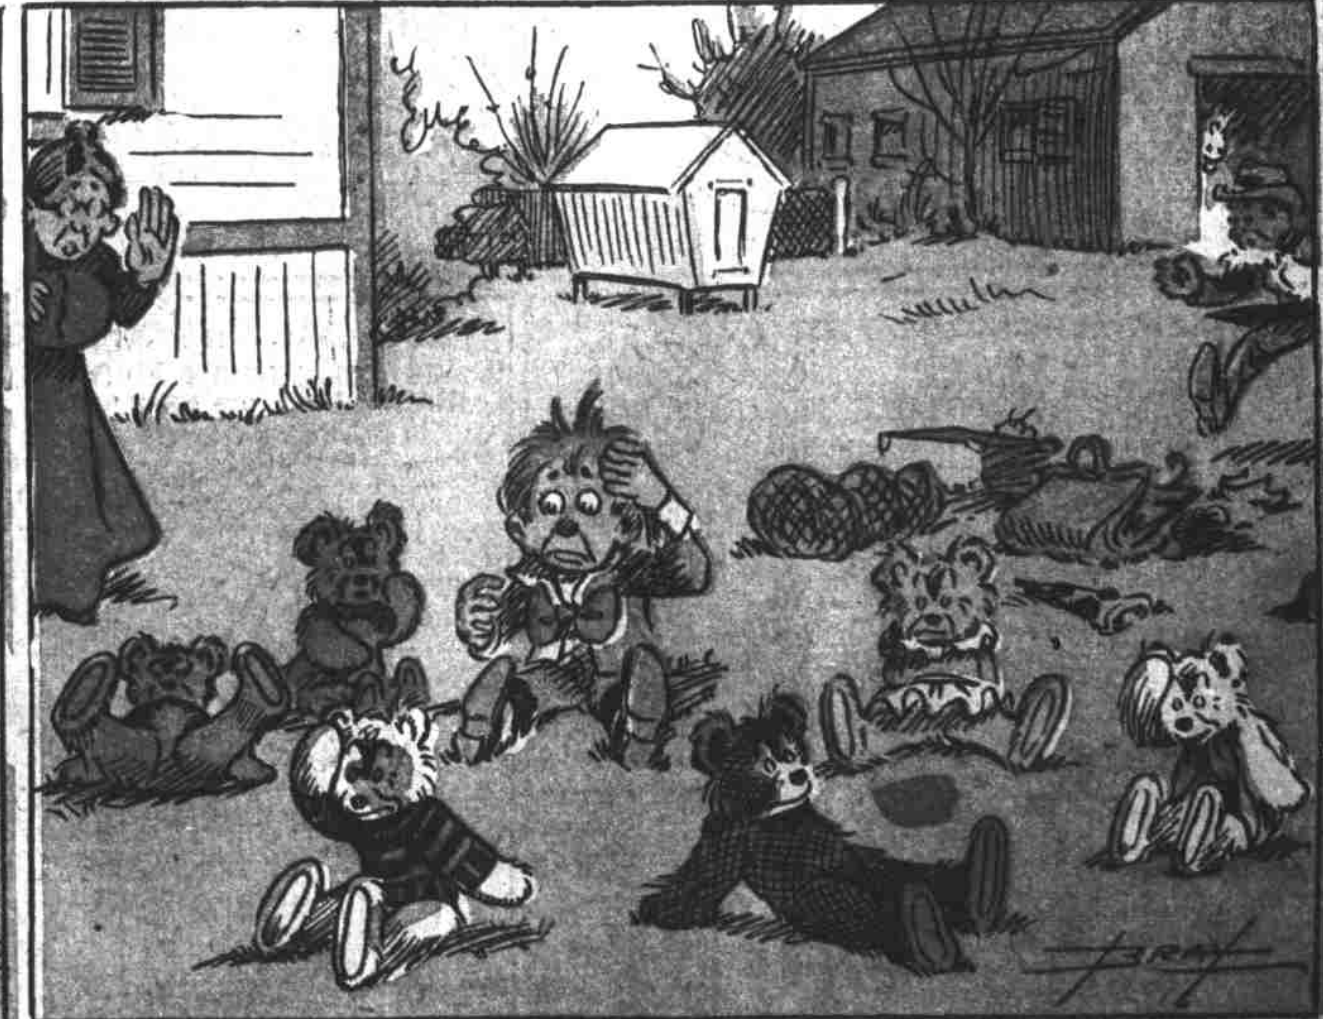

3. While Johnny tells with glowing pride
 How fine it is to take a ride,
 Old Dobbin turns and gets a full,
 Square look at what he's got to pull.

4. A horse, you know, 's afraid of bear.
 When Dobbin sees six sitting there
 He makes a swift, rash calculation
 That he's in a dangerous situation.

5. John hasn't time now to explain
 That this dash through a country lane
 Is a mistake, while Teds suppose
 It's just the way a farm-horse goes.

6. And here they land in uncle's yard.
 It looks like they have landed hard.
 Poor aunty runs out and exclaims,
 "Where have you left your 'Uncle James!'"
