EXPLANATION OF THE PURPOSE OF EDDY BOOK

Statement is Made That Well Known Volume is Used by Members of Sect Exactly as Are Other Bible Helps of Other Denominations.

Frank H. Leonard of Brooklyn, New York, delivered a lecture on the principles of Christian Science at the Bellis theatre yesterday afternoon to an audience which filled the auditorium.

The Christian Science board of locureship of which I have the honor of being a member, has been organized and instituted, under the direction of Mrs. Eddy, for the purpose of affording to the world a knowledge of what Christian Science is, and what it teaches and does for mankind.

Seen Miracles Performed. "I was not born in Missouri, but I might as well have been, from my nature because I have always been one of the kind that would not believe anything until I had absolute proof that it was true."

There is not a man connected with the liquor business, and that I "who dares to advocate it because it makes men wiser, better or nobler. It is the cause of most trouble and the breeder of things foul and unwholesome."

kind, in such a manner that Bible study may be intelligently indulged in. Mrs. Eddy's Book Best Mystery's Well. "Well, my friends, that is what Christian Science textbook is—it is our Bible help. It is the book that we study out with; it is the book that has sent the veil of mystery from top to bottom, revealing the spiritual import of the Scriptures, and revealing to us the holy of holies, wherein it is revealed to us that God is no longer an unknown God; no longer a God to be ignorantly worshipped, but a God to be loved; a God who is a father to his children; a God who never turns from his children; a father more tender, more considerate, more compassionate, more loving, than human consciousness can ever begin to realize."

AGAINST REDDY BILL

Protestant Ministers Warn Hearers Against "Home Rule" Measure.

In many of the Protestant churches of Portland yesterday a strong plea was made for the defeat of the proposed Reddy amendment which is to be submitted to the electors at the June election. The Protestant ministers called upon the voters in their congregations to vote "no" on the question. The measure is numbered 320 and 321 on the ballot, and seeks to give exclusive power to cities and towns to license, control and tax, or to suppress or prohibit theaters, race tracks, pool rooms, bowling alleys, billiard halls and the sale of liquors, and to read the definition of God on page 587, and of Christ on page 583 thereof, and will never again question the scriptures, as recorded in the holy of holies, and that it would make the cities independent of the criminal laws and police powers of the county and state.

A total of several hundred dollars was raised in the churches yesterday for the support of the organizations that are working for prohibition on the east side. The pastors also called on the voters to support the effort that is being made to vote saloons out of certain precincts on the east side of the river.

Dr. Benjamin Young, pastor of the Taylor street Methodist church, displayed before the congregation last night copies of the large posters that are being used by liquor dealers to defeat prohibition. He called attention to the poster presenting pictures of a large number of business houses in Kansas City, Kansas, that are said to be vacant as a result of prohibition. He declared that the conditions portrayed by the poster were very much exaggerated.

There is not a man connected with the liquor business, and that I "who dares to advocate it because it makes men wiser, better or nobler. It is the cause of most trouble and the breeder of things foul and unwholesome."

CLEAR THE COMPLEXION OVERNIGHT

Pimples, Rash, Eruptions, Etc., Quickly Eradicated by New Skin Remedy.

Since its discovery one year ago, the new skin remedy, known as "Eradicator," has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the eminent specialist who gave it to the world. It has cured thousands of cases of eczema and eradicated facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. It is a powerful antiseptic, and its curative properties are at the very outset.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, acne, and eruptions, a single application, after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required to effect a cure. A muddy or sallow complexion is a sure sign of impure blood, and its application. Those who use pomium for these minor skin troubles can now avail themselves of the special treatment, recently adopted to meet such needs.

Both the 50 cent package and the regular $2.00 package are obtained in Portland at the Skidmore Drug Company and other leading drug stores.

For medicinal purposes, pomium may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 21 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.

ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Scadding. Formerly he had been a deacon. He will remain in Portland. Bishop Robinson said:

"Christianity cannot be successful unless Christians do their duty. We are to be a people of action. We are to be a people of faith. We are to be a people of love. We are to be a people of justice. We are to be a people of peace. We are to be a people of truth. We are to be a people of righteousness. We are to be a people of holiness. We are to be a people of God."

PROTEST AGAINST NEW ANTI-MEDIUM MEASURE

Spiritualists Declare It Violates Freedom Guaranteed by the Constitution.

At a meeting of the spiritualists at Women of Woodcraft hall last night the speakers devoted themselves to a discussion of the ordinance proposed in the council of Dr. W. L. Cottel regulating fortune telling, palmistry and cognate practices. Exceptions were taken to the measure, which is said to have been drafted by Harrison D. Barrett, and efforts will be made to have the ordinance repealed.

The board of the Oregon State Spiritualists' association has passed the following resolution and a meeting of the association will be held Thursday night at the home of Mrs. L. Mallory.

"The Oregon state board of spiritualists of the State Spiritualists' association of Oregon by action taken May 18, 1908, do hereby oppose, condemn and protest against the ordinance which was introduced by Dr. Cottel known as 'An ordinance regulating fortune telling, palmistry and cognate practices, and the right of assembling together.'"

"Therefore, we the board of Oregon State Spiritualists' association and 300 residents of Portland, whose signatures we have hereunto put, do hereby oppose the adoption of said ordinance."

"If section 3 of the ordinance 'That any person or persons who shall hold or give any private meeting, whether in circle or séance of any kind in the name of spiritualism or of any other religious society, society, cult or denomination were adopted, there would be no use for a medium, and without mediumship spiritualism could not exist.'"

NAVY CANNOT BOAST OF A VICE ADMIRAL

Portland, Or., May 24.—To the Editor of The Journal.—Under the heading "Romantic Story of Commander in the Journal of Friday the statement is made that 'Percy Olmstead is going to fly the vice-admiral's flag as commander of the flagship Clestone. I wish to correct this error, as the navy is being so much talked about at present the public should not be misinformed about questions of such importance. No officer in the navy can fly any other flag but that of his own rank."

We have not, unfortunately, the rank of vice-admiral in our navy. P. F. MURDO, M. D.

STAPLED TO GRAPES IN OREGON

Merlin Man Says One Vast Vineyard and Orchard From Merlin to Medford.

"Four millionaires have recently bought fruit lands near Merlin," said Charles E. Short, a former Portland printer and now of Merlin, Josephine county today.

"While there is an apparent stampede to grapes, other fruits for which Rogue river valley is famous are not being neglected, and a few years will see one vast stretch of orchards and vineyards from Medford to Medford. And one thing is particularly noticeable, nothing but the very best of marketable fruits are being sent out in the orchards."

Speaking of the district, Mr. Short said: "Real estate in the vicinity of Merlin is changing hands this spring much more rapidly than ever before, four millionaires having recently made investments in fruit lands near Merlin. Many of the smaller tracts have been sold. While the price of land is still low, ranging from $10 to $20 per acre for unimproved tracts, it is rapidly advancing, and I believe another year will see all the good fruit land in the Rogue river valley placed out of the reach of the man of limited means, except in very small tracts."

Mr. Short is in the city closing the sale of a large tract of land to Spokane capitalists.

The enthusiasm for Tokay grapes is increasing, and although several loads of cuttings and vines were shipped into the district, the demand of the growers could not be met, and a large number of acres are ready for fall planting. The yield of Tokays in this district is so enormous that I hesitate to give figures, for fear of my veracity being doubted, but if you could see the way the industry is being pushed you would understand that the revenue is sufficient to satisfy the people on the ground who are in a position to know just what can be done in the line of grape raising.

Mr. Short says in the reported injury from frosts does not apply to his particular district of the Rogue river valley, and he has no doubt but that it was largely exaggerated in other.

"In mining there is a quietness, so far as noise is concerned, but preparations for the Alameda company's smelter are going on, the Gold Road mine's cyanide plant is nearly completed, the Mount Pitt people will soon double the capacity of their stamp mill, and Seattle capitalists are building a dredge on the river—no noise, no splurge—just work."

"Politics? Well, we are too busy to pay much attention, but judging from the senatorial candidates, I believe Chamberlain will carry that part of the state. That is the only political prospect I would care to make, except that Josephine county will go dry, and that Merlin will undertake to supply the thirsty inhabitants of the entire state with unfermented grape juice."

TWO KINDS OF MEN, MASTERS AND SLAVES

Emma Goldman Introduced by C. E. S. Wood and Speaks Freely.

"Anarchism and What It Really Stands For," was the subject of Emma Goldman's lectures at Alley hall yesterday afternoon and evening. In defining anarchism she said that it stands for the destruction of government, not by violence but by education.

"It stands," she said, "for the destruction of the institutions which rob man of his right to live and to enjoy the results of his labor. She claims that the present day education tends to divide society into two classes, masters and slaves, and that the interests of the few not of the many are served by our present system. The centralized method of production was condemned because it degrades man to the level of machine and makes him subservient to the machine, not the machine subservient to man."

"The simultaneous overthrow of centralized production, government and capitalism is the aim of anarchy," she said, "and since crime is increasing in the United States, a press government instead of more, is the method by which to secure to men individual freedom to break down the barriers of class and to promote better conditions for mankind."

In introducing Miss Goldman, C. E. S. Wood characterized the refusal of officers of the Y. M. C. A. to allow Miss Goldman to speak in their hall as "illiberal and bigoted ignorance." This action, (canceling the contract with Goldman) said Mr. Wood, "was taken by the directors, who were ignorant of what Miss Goldman would say in her lectures. They did not know and they did not care. A majority of the young men in the Y. M. C. A. are Christians because Christianity is easy to believe seriously whether the directors of this society would have enlisted in the cause of the Y. M. C. A. if they would be in danger of being bound to the faggot pile."

"Why Smith Left Home." Ever since George Broadhurst gave the world a new application for his house made "Why Smith Left Home" has been an assured success. It fairly reeks with character parts and character parts seem to be the most popular kind of work at stock cities and under the sky. They come the nearest to expressing the popular idea of humor. They make few more upon the skill of the actor and rely principally upon the skill of the make-up man and pantomime work.

There are four of these parts in "Why Smith Left Home," which the Baker company gave to two hugely pleased houses yesterday. Mrs. Gleason dishevels her hair, lets down her figure, waddles, and becomes Lavinia, an Irish cook lady. Donald Bowles stuffs his clothes, covers his blonde locks with a bald and black wig, puts on a putty nose, paints his face vermilion and is General Billethead, Frenchman and gailant. Gertrude Rivers likewise becomes the putty features and exaggerated figure, harshens her attractive voice, combs back her hair and is the spinster aunt. And Jimmy Gleason, who is really a handsome youth with purely classic features, disguises himself as a German count.

The result, as might be imagined, was electrifying. Whereas before we had looked upon the merits of the company merely in the interest of seeing how well they could act they now assumed to all of us a complete and novel interest as grotesque figures, parading before us as curiosities. It was as good as a visit to the museum. Miss Jewel and Gertrude Rivers were the only ordinary humans, were quite obliterated by the new found glories of the grotesque four. When the characters were off the stage the performance became a scene, each reappearance of the merris-dancers was hailed with a burst of applause and delighted laughter.

There were others, of course, but any mention of them is little more than a name. The Baker company is a real actor—a role that under ordinary circumstances is irresistible. Miss Jewel, as a base woman, is merely a woman.

THE FAIR

William Gleason takes one of his characteristic stunts—that of Major Buncombe, and Miss Seymour and Miss Graham look very pretty as maids. The work at stock cities and under the sky. They come the nearest to expressing the popular idea of humor. They make few more upon the skill of the actor and rely principally upon the skill of the make-up man and pantomime work.

PORTLAND RAILWAY, LIGHT & POWER COMPANY

Bulletin No. 4—Part 2

THE STREET RAILWAY AS A DEVELOPING AGENT.

In our last bulletin we discussed at some length the function a street railway performs in developing the outlying sections and suburbs of a city and dispersing the population over a wide area. Today we will go into the subject more in detail and show just what the street car service here has done toward decentralizing the population.

THE CONGESTED WARDS OF THE CITY.

Let us look at the growth of the congested wards in the city in recent years and compare it with the growth of the outlying sections. Even a superficial glance will show that wards 1, 4 and 6, covering respectively Willamette Heights, City Park and Portland Heights, have had a far more rapid increase in population than those lying in the older sections of the city, while the wards on the east side, particularly ward 8, show a wonderfully large increase in population. Statistics show that the wards in the center of the city in the congested districts have increased but very slightly in the last five years, while the great growth has been in the above mentioned outlying wards. This has been due unquestionably to the constantly increased facilities for reaching the outlying sections where there was ample room for the erection of beautiful homes, which would have a commanding view of the river and mountains, or as on the east side, where there was opportunity for beautiful grounds and the growth of roses and other flowers for which the city is so well famed.

A great increase in population like this could never have taken place if every encouragement had not been given it by ample rapid transit facilities.

While it is not the duty of a street railway company to build unwisely and while it should be careful not to be misled by mere land-booming schemes, we feel that we have been right in our policy in leading in the development of the city by building lines which may not pay for some years, but which will tend to develop a particular section and should eventually yield the company a return upon its investment.

PORTLAND COMPARED WITH OTHER CITIES.

The character of your street railway service cannot be brought home to you in a stronger or more forcible way than by a comparison of our mileage with that of other cities proportioned to the population. The following table compares Portland with various other cities. Glasgow, Scotland, is selected because it is so frequently pointed out by the advocates of municipal ownership as the ideal city.

Table with 4 columns: City, Population, Miles of Street Railways, Miles Track Per 1,000 Population. Rows include Portland, San Francisco, Indianapolis, Louisville, Oakland, Rochester, Memphis, and Glasgow.

Look at Glasgow. It is pointed to with pride as the Queen City by the theoretical advocates of municipal ownership, and yet Glasgow with over seven times the population of Portland has but 7 per cent more trackage, while Portland has nearly seven times the trackage of Glasgow per 1,000 of population. Think of it! Suppose the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company should pull up more than six sevenths of its track. How near to your homes would the majority of you be able to ride in the evenings? How quickly and conveniently would you be able to get from one section of the city to another? And, on the other hand, wouldn't the company cut down its operating expenses immensely? We do not think the American public would stand very long for Glasgow or the Glasgow policy.

Philadelphia, which has over 14 times the population of Portland, has but one third the trackage per mile of population, while New York (Manhattan and Bronx), with nearly 2 1/4 times the population has about one fifth the trackage of Portland per 1,000 of population.

THESE FIGURES SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.
