KILLS GRIZZLY BEAR WITH HIS REVOLVER

Vancouver Hunter Bags Big Specimen After Firing Eight Shots.

Vancouver, B. C., June 1.—To kill a big grizzly bear, weighing nearly 500 pounds, with a .32 caliber revolver is something that few men accomplish and very few would care to attempt. Yet that is the unusual feat which Dr. A. McKay Jordan, the well known oculist, accomplished about a week ago while visiting some mining claims he is interested in near Jeway. Dr. Jordan, who has just returned from three weeks' visit to mining properties on Queen Charlotte island, is having the skin of the bear dressed by a local taxidermist. The eight small bullet holes in the skin are in themselves proof of his unique experience. Of course it is very doubtful if the bear would ever have been bagged had he not been caught in the water and practically at the mercy of Dr. Jordan and his friends. They were taking a load of supplies to a new camp in a small boat, and while passing through a channel between two islands, which was only a couple of yards wide, came upon the bear swimming across the channel. He headed him off from the shore and the animal's angry roar and the roar of the water as it splashed against the boat, and the fact that he had anything in the shape of a firearm and that was only a revolver with 32-shot cartridges, made his efforts to get away from his pursuers and reach shore. Dr. Jordan and his companions got closer to the bear with their boat, and in the meanwhile the revolver was loaded up again. Two more shots were sent into the animal at about 100 yards and fired from a distance of less than 10 feet, did the trick. The bear doubled up as the bullet crashed into his brain. The bear was so heavy that the four men in the boat were unable to drag him on board, and the carcass was towed ashore to be skinned and cut up.

PLASTERERS FORM AN INDEPENDENT UNION

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., June 1.—Rebelling against the attitude of labor temple authorities and plasterers' union No. 77, 180 members have deserted the union and organized one of their own, to be known as the plasterers' exchange. Officers have been elected and the men declared themselves in favor of the open shop and the Denver convention with the builders' exchange of Seattle. For a considerable period it is claimed the plasterers have not been pleased with their affiliation with the building trades' assembly. The leaders have managed to keep the men under control, but during the past few weeks several of the more aggressive spirits have been working on the plan which culminated in the formation of an independent union.

May Defeat Jeff Davis.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Little Rock, Ark., June 1.—A majority of the delegates to the Democratic state convention are in the city and it is already evident that the gathering is to be one of the liveliest and most interesting that has been held in Arkansas in a long time. The strong rivalry between Governor Finck and United States Senator Jeff Davis for a place among the delegates changes to the Democratic convention what gives color to the situation. The Democratic leaders have nearly all taken sides in the contest and the fight has become a wide one. Today the Finck supporters declare that the defeat of Senator Davis is a foregone conclusion. If their prophecy is correct the delegates from Arkansas to the national convention will be composed of Senator James F. Clark, Governor S. O. Finck, Secretary of State O. C. Ludwig and George W. Donaghy, who recently received the Democratic nomination for governor.

Odd Fellows in Session.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Walla Walla, Wash., June 1.—The large number of Odd Fellows who have arrived here to attend the grand lodge meeting and the grand encampment gives evidence of the flourishing condition of the order in the state of Washington. Large parties are on hand from Seattle, Tacoma, Aberdeen and other cities. The grand lodge convenes tomorrow and will remain in session several days. The meeting of the Rebekah assembly will be held at the same time.

NORDICA TO JOIN SYMPHONY HERE DURING ROSE FESTIVAL

Madame Lillian Nordica.

Madame Lillian Nordica, the great soprano, has been induced to come to Portland and appear with the New York Symphony orchestra under the distinguished leadership of Walter Damrosch. This bit of news will be the absorbing topic of interest from now on, for when a great prima donna makes up her mind to take an absolute rest and get away from all work and worry, it is not easy to induce her to do again the royal robes and appear as the queen of song. Madame Nordica has been on an "inco" business trip to the middle states but was recognized and the news of her presence was immediately flashed over the wires.

AUTOMATIC PHONES ON THE CRUISERS

Home Company Tenders Service to Officers and Crew During Visit.

As soon as the cruiser Charleston and the gunboat Yorktown arrived in the lower harbor yesterday the Home Telephone company began the installation of an automatic telephone on each vessel, the service being tendered the officers and crews during their stay here by the company. Mrs. Swinburne was so pleased with the girl's instruments that she asked if it would be possible to place telephones on the five members of the crew as well as to their friends. This will be done and the men on board each of the seven vessels can talk to one another as well as to their friends ashore without the necessity of using the slow wig-wag system. The number of the Charleston is C-2023 and of the Yorktown C-2027. The numbers of the torpedo boats Fox, Davis and Farragut and destroyers Perry and Preble will be announced when the telephones are installed.

FRANCE THREATENED WITH "BIG FEET"

Paris, June 1.—A leading boot maker says that "English big feet" will soon predominate in France. "I have fought the conviction for a long while," says the boot maker, "but am now obliged to acknowledge the fact that French women's feet are becoming larger at an appalling rate. In 30 or 35 years from now a French lover would make himself ridiculous speaking of the tiny feet of his sweethearts." The boot maker blames the "French girls' love of sport for the growing enlargement of the feet, and adds that his foreign customers, especially members of the American colony in Paris, are afflicted in the same way.

DAIRYMEN'S WIVES WON'T DON OVERALLS

Middletown, N. Y., June 1.—The orders issued by the board of health of New York City, requiring that all persons who milk cows wear white duck overalls and jackets, as otherwise the milk will not be allowed to enter New York, have caused the majority of the milk producers in a predicament. Much of the milking has heretofore been done by the wives and daughters of farmers, all of whom now declare they will never don the overalls. The farmers think they cannot afford to dispense with the female help and they are at a loss to know what to do.

DEVELOPED RABIES AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Seranton, Pa., June 1.—As a result of a bite on his cheek by a pet dog 21 years ago, Alvin Cobb, 45, of Salem Corners, is raving at the home of John Elliott, in the Wayne county hamlet, a victim of hydrophobia, a physician says. Cobb's strength is terrific. He breaks straps and ropes that have been used in securing him to his bed, and creeps around his room on all fours.

Pennsylvania G. A. R.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Erie, Pa., June 1.—The approach of the opening date for the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Pennsylvania, finds all of the local arrangements completed for the reception and entertainment of the visitors. Though the regular program of events will not begin until tomorrow, a considerable number of veterans and their friends put in an appearance today.

Can't Go to Convention.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 1.—United States Senator Thomas C. Platt has notified State Senator J. F. Alda of Norwich, his alternate, to act as delegate from the Thirtieth congressional district at the national Republican convention in Chicago next month, as his physical condition will not permit him to attend.

THE PLAY

Baker, "The Halfbreed."

By J. F. S.

I don't suppose any one in the Baker company wants a serious criticism of yesterday's effort called "The Halfbreed." If there is one such deluded soul he's going to be disappointed. Rather let us turn to the bits of realism in the piece.

In the first place there's a delightful spring of pure water, running down the center of the stage, rippling over the rocks and stones, chattering on its rocky way, running on the arms of Indians may come and Indians may go but this entrancingly naturalistic stream doesn't give a splash. Not even when Marianne's hand comes down right in that of the famous Indian-killer Ross Kennon, steps jauntily across it's stones, not even when Susette Stapleton, scornful anything so obtrusively modern as a bridge in the Indian territory, wades right in and gets both feet wet on purpose, no, no, even when poor blood Evelyn Huntington, the Judge's daughter, sees Ross talking in the pale moonlight to Marianne, hears him tell her that she has made him the happiest man in the world and all that sort of rot and then goes off to hang her harp on the weeping willow tree. And the bride doesn't give a splash.

But if brook won't cuss the rest of the characters will. You just ought to hear them. There's old Papa Pardau, who swears some of the most terrible time he opens his mouth. And there's Hooley Bell, who swears good round honest oaths from the heart up, and there's the Judge—Judge John Dwyer Huntington, who swears like an honest man—yes sir, by gad sir—and there's the sheriff Emmet Cruchfield, who believes in an appalling rate. In 30 or 35 years from now a French lover would make himself ridiculous speaking of the tiny feet of his sweethearts—Delmar, an Indian halfbreed—and Yellow Snake, who's a full blood. In Indian territory if you want to escape suspicion just swear. It's the only way the only way of telling an honest man from a crook. The more you cuss the safer you are.

When nature falls to make you feel at ease there are a lot of other things handy. There's a heroine and a hero who wear the grandest things she's ever seen. There's a heroine who wears an opera cloak and a pale satin evening gown out on the plains of Indian territory and he a gorgeous full dress suit, or there's that white kid wearing the Judge's daughter goes out in the rain with her things—drives like mad in her kerriage to Ross Kennon's lonely cabin to tell him that she loves him, and that the Halfbreed hasn't a look-in. The hero has seen "Strongheart," however, and he's a bit dubious. Then up comes the mob and catches her there, and she has to hide in the bedroom—you are left to suppose that the kerriage has driven off against the trees and leaves Indian territory to cuss its aboriginal way in peace?

"Jakey, Mikey and Ikey."

The Allen Curtis company was one big surprise to those that finished the Oaks sidewalk last night. Manager Freeman is to be complimented in the high class attraction he has brought in this company, it is the big feature attraction and the large audience that attended showed their appreciation by their constant applause throughout the performance. This company will remain at the park all summer, changing their program weekly. The bill for this week is "Jakey, Mikey and Ikey," a musical extravaganza in two acts which was presented for their opening last night took the audience by storm. It was one continuous uproar of laughter from start to finish; the big beauty chorus is one of the best picked lot of singers and dancers seen in Portland for long time, the costumes is elaborate and very pretty and along with the scenic Pekin Zouaves, 13 in number, head the new vaudeville bill at the Grand, starting today. Another big feature will be George Wilson, the real minstrel star of the country. These acts alone would be a great show, but Sullivan & Considine have sent many other features.
