TODAY'S MARKETS

All Portland Wholesale Grocers Will Close Places of Business Entire Day Wednesday to Celebrate the Roses

POTATO CLOUD GETTING LIGHT

Some Orders Coming From Arizona—Markets Still Quiet in California.

Portland wholesale markets today:
Small Arizona potato business.
Opening prices apricots lower.
Dressed veal rather scarce.
Dressed hogs in good demand.
Don't ship lambs with pelts.
Egg plant drug on market.
String beans lower again.
Strawberries 25c lower.
First peaches arrive in city.
Wholesale grocers to close.
Red onion prices shaded.

Silver Lining to Potato Cloud.

When all looked somewhat dark for the immediate future of potato shipments, a demand from the southwest made its appearance. The present call is from Arizona and while limited, shows that the markets are not so badly overloaded with supplies as some would have local people believe. The California markets are showing no improvement—San Francisco holding steady at 90c@$1.10 per 100 pounds or about the same as during the past two or three days. There is still a very good local demand and the new stock from the south has made no further wedge in the old potato trade. Just at the moment there is no buying reported by shippers, most of them already having sufficient stocks on hand to fill orders.

There is a faint showing of weakness in the onion situation, although the price is showing but small change. For single sack lots California reds are still being quoted at $1.75, but this figure is being shaded 10c for each sack of a five-sack lot.

Opening of Apricots Lower.

The opening price on canned apricots has been named by California packers. This year's prices are nearly 50 per cent lower than a year ago, when such record-breaking values were quoted. As compared with this year's prices those of two years ago were about 10 per cent higher. Reports from California at this time indicate that the apricot crop there will be one of the heaviest in years.

Receipts of fresh apricots from the south are increasing and most of the sales along the streets were being made today at $1.25, while for small lots the price stood at $1.50 a box.

The expected shipment of Mississippi tomatoes arrived late yesterday afternoon. The car was attached to the regular banana train and made quite good time. The tomatoes were among the best received here from the far south and today are finding an excellent demand at $2.25 per four-basket crate.

Dressed Veal Rather Scarce.

In direct contrast with the heavy arrivals of dressed veal in the Front street markets a week and two weeks ago, this week's arrivals have been very light, while the demand is fully twice as good as normally because of the influx of festival visitors. Best dressed veal is today quoted as high as 8c. There is a like scarcity in dressed hogs and arrivals in that line are being easily moved by receivers at 8c a pound.

It is useless for shippers to send dressed lambs to this market with the pelts on at this time, because of weather conditions which make the arrival of such stock in good condition almost an impossibility. Then, again, because of the low prices on hides the trade will not pay so much for lambs with pelts as formerly.

Strawberries Are 25 Cents Lower.

While the receipts of strawberries are still quite light, the trade cut the price of best generally to $4 a crate today.

A Fourth street market has on display the first new sweet potatoes of the season. Supplies came from Honolulu and were in fine condition.

Egg plant is a drug on the market at this time, but 20c is still being asked for supplies.

String beans are again 1c a pound lower with better supplies.

Garden peas are in better supply with prices practically the same.

A shipment of Hawaii pineapple arrived in this market today. Supplies of large size and better quality. Sold freely at $4 a dozen.

Hothouse lettuce is almost out of market; the few arrivals finding a demand at $1.25@1.50 a box.

Two cars of bananas were unloaded this morning. Quite good shape.

Wholesalers to Close Tomorrow.

Because of the Rose Festival the wholesale grocers decided at their meeting last night to close their stores all day Thursday in order to give their employes a chance to celebrate. On account of the arrivals of perishable fruits in the morning, the commission men will not be able to close their shops all day, but will celebrate between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Latest News of Oregon Crops

NORTHWEST WEATHER FORECAST.

Western Oregon and Western Washington—Cloudy with possibly showers tonight and Thursday, westerly winds.

Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho—Cloudy with possibly showers tonight and Thursday.

Southern Idaho—Showers and warmer tonight and Thursday.

No rain fell in the wheat belts of either Oregon or Washington, but Idaho is getting more than its share.

According to W. S. Hurst of Hubbard, the cool weather is playing havoc with the hop vines in that section. "While some few of the yards show up well," said Mr. Hurst to The Journal this morning, "most of them are not looking well, because of the continued cold. The vines are very brittle and cultivation cannot be pushed because of the danger of breaking them."

Milton, Or., June 3.—Great preparations are under way in Milton for the celebration of Strawberry day. Strawberries are at their best at this time, and there will be a grand feast prepared at Nichols' grove. A special train will be run from Pendleton and other Umatilla county towns.

That Oregon is not the only section where crop conditions are backward is shown by the following from a New York firm: "The packing season in Maine will be very light. Up to this time no corn has gone into the ground owing to the extremely wet weather. It seems from what I can learn from Maine that the packers are scared, as unless corn is soon in the ground it will not have time to mature before frost comes in the fall. It may be that this will curtail the pack to a considerable extent. The same conditions exist in the west and in New York state. The seed corn should all have been planted by this time."

Kelly & Henry on Friday exhibited on the San Francisco Merchants' exchange sample session new barley from Glenn county, California. The barley was well filled out and plump, but was smutty and contained wild oats. It is the general report that recent weather has been very favorable to the development of the grain crops and that it will be much above average expectations.

Boise, Ida., June 3.—Eastern parties are planning to start a pickle factory at Payette, and they hope to have the plant ready to take care of this year's crop. That locality is very favorable for the growing of pickles.

WOOL SALE DISAPPOINTS.

Afternoon Transactions at Shaniko Are at Lower Prices.

Shaniko, Or., June 3.—Yesterday afternoon wool sales fell considerably short of the morning's, being only 275,000 pounds, bought at a price ranging from 9¾ to 13⅞ cents. Practically all of the big clip owners have refused to place their wool upon the market at the prices offered, and as a consequence buyers have decided to close the sale here, returning again on June 16.

New York, June 3.—The regular dividend on Atchison preferred has been declared.

The American Car & Foundry cut its common dividend from 1 per cent to ½ per cent quarterly.

ROSES IN THEIR GLORY

Exhibition at Oriental Building Surpasses That of Last Year Despite the Supposedly Unfavorable Rose Weather.

If any one thinks Portland has no roses for the second annual rose show he has only to go to the Oriental building and feast his eyes upon the myriad blooms spread for his delectation. Every section of the city is represented, its choicest blooms vying with those of other sections.

The building is an admirable one for the purpose and the exhibit appears to far better advantage than last year. A notable thing is that amateurs have captured nearly all the prizes, and many who have carried off honors are those who have never exhibited before. Following is the list of prize winners:

Best display of Duke of Richmond Roses, prize the Wesley Ladd tropay—Mrs. Herbert Holman.

In addition to these a special prize was awarded to Mrs. W. S. Ladd for the best decorative exhibit, a magnificent showing of calceolarias.

The Best Rose of All.

Every one was eager to see the best rose in the show, and crowds stood before it in admiration, during the afternoon and evening. It is a modest, deep pink or light red, as you choose, a slender, half opened bud of the Belle Siebricht, a rose which is not so common as many varieties. On all points, shape, color, foliage and perfection of bloom, this rose was decided to be entitled to first prize; the second prize winner, a glorious big Mildred Grant with its waxy pinkish cream petals also attracted much attention.

The exhibit tables are literally covered with the choicest roses that the Rose City produces, and the general effect of the fragrant banks of roses on either hand, and the tables full of the myriad colored blooms, the flags and bunting, draped from the great dome of the building, the central features of roses and delicate foliage, make a picture not soon forgotten.

Most Beautiful Show.

The thanks of the public are due Mrs. John Minto, and her able band of workers who have been so largely instrumental in perfecting the most beautiful and impressive rose show that the city has ever seen.

Brown's band played during the afternoon and evening, and added much to the general enjoyment.

A delightful feature of the rose show is the exhibit made by Clarke Brothers, whose showing comprises great bunches of Duke of Richmond, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and Souvenir de President Carnot roses, several of the named carnations, in great clusters, sweet peas, gladioli and Iceland poppies, set off by mosses and foliage.

Whole Banks of Roses.

The band stand is banked with pink and white roses and bordered with foxglove and clematis. Mrs. Ladd's display of calceolarias attracts much attention for the great richness and variety of coloring and the strange-shaped blossoms. It is a fascinating study to trace the variety of markings in the orchid-like blooms, ranging from palest yellow through the russets and browns to rich maroon. A special prize was created for this display.

But after all it is the roses, the Portland roses, which dominate as they should, the exhibition. In spite of the continued cloudy weather, which has kept back many, those which have opened seem unusually large, well formed and perfect.

The Testout is shown in abundance and the place it has been given as official rose is not disputed. On every side are heard exclamations of visitors from other sections of the country who "never saw so many roses in their lives," who "didn't know there could be so many roses, who "think the Rose City well named," who gaze with rapture at one variety after another, each, they declare, more lovely than the other.

At the close of the rose show tonight the blossoms will be given away for the floral parade.

PROHIBITION CARRIES DAY

Fifteen Counties Without Saloons as Result of State Election.

VOTE ON PROHIBITION.

Dry Counties — Clackamas, Josephine, Gilliam, Sherman, Umatilla, Yamhill, Crook, Curry, Douglas, Jackson, Grant, Polk, Tillamook, Union, Wallowa. Total, 15.

Wet Counties—Marion, part of Washington, Wasco, part of Clatsop, Harney, part of Baker. In doubt, Lake, Wheeler.

Like the blistering south wind that blights the corn crops of Kansas, prohibition swept over the state at Monday's election.

Twenty-nine counties in Oregon voted whether they should retain saloons within their boundaries or put them out of office. Returns from 23 of these counties show that 15 went "dry." Marion, Wasco and Harney are "wet," Lake and Wheeler in doubt, while the prohibitionists carried portions of Washington, Clatsop and Baker counties.

Probably the most remarkable showing in the returns comes from Umatilla county, where two score and more of saloons will go out of business. Pendleton alone will lose more than two dozen.

None the less interesting is the vote returned from Crook county. But one precinct in the entire county remains "wet." Prineville, where the greatest fight was centered to overcome the work of the prohibs, went "dry" by three votes.

In other counties, particularly in the valley region, the majority returned for prohibition was heavy. Lane, Yamhill, Josephine, Marion, Jackson and Douglas go into the dry column by a majority vote ranging from 300 to 800, and final returns are expected to show a heavy majority in several of the eastern Oregon counties.

Returns remain to be had on six more counties which voted on the prohibition question, and it is probable that half or all of these will show when the count is completed a majority in favor of dryness. The results of the election on the saloon has caused general rejoicing in the ranks of those who fought to abolish the saloon, and will stimulate efforts to close up as soon as possible the few remaining wet counties, among which is Multnomah.

MANNING LEFT FAR IN REAR

Cameron Wins Decisive Victory in Contest for District Attorneyship.

George J. Cameron for district attorney to succeed John Manning, R. G. Morrow for circuit judge to succeed Judge Thomas O'Day on the bench of department No. 2, W. R. Ellis for congress, winner against John A. Jeffrey, and Clyde B. Aitchison for railroad commissioner from the second congressional district, winner over Hamilton and Young—this is the way the vote reads today.

Cameron has won a most decisive victory from John Manning, present incumbent of the office. With complete returns from all but 13 of the 114 precincts of the county Cameron has been given a vote of 10,922 as against a vote of 8,907, given to Manning, thus winning the district attorneyship by 2,015 votes, with the missing precincts still to hear from.

Robert G. Morrow received 11,779 votes while Judge O'Day received 9,574, Morrow winning by 2,205 votes with the 13 missing precincts yet to hear from.

W. R. Ellis was given a vote of 13,889 by Multnomah county, the 13 precincts not being here counted, while his Democratic opponent received 5,331 votes, Ellis thus having a majority of 8,558 votes in Multnomah county.

For railroad commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison received 10,172 votes in Multnomah county while Hamilton received 6,210 votes and Young, the Democratic nominee, 4,581 votes. This gives Aitchison a lead of 3,962 votes over Hamilton, his nearest competitor. This is the vote for Multnomah county with all but 13 of the precincts complete.

Sacramento Takes Butter.

Klamath Falls, Or., June 3.—An outside market has been secured for the butter manufactured by the Bonanza creamery. James H. Driscoll has just returned from Sacramento and states he has made arrangements for dealers there to take all the creamery can produce. This means the exportation of several thousand pounds of butter per week and a good price for butter fat furnished by the Bonanza farmers.

WILL STAY SEPARATE

Mount Scott District's Voters Do Not Support Annexation—Those Favoring It Already Plan for Election Two Years Hence.

Annexation of the Mount Scott district to the city of Portland was decisively defeated by the voters Tuesday. Complete returns show that in a total vote of 1,074 the anti-annexationists won by a majority of 104.

All the way out the Mount Scott line, from Clarks to Lents and over to Woodstock, annexation was the absorbing topic of discussion for weeks prior to the election and considerable bitterness was engendered. On election day the antis posted placards, "Down With Annexation," in conspicuous places near the polls.

Look Two Years Ahead.

Precincts 94, 95, 96 and part of 97 voted on the question. Ninety-four and 96 gave heavy majorities against, the others returning small majorities the other way. The annexationists are already talking of another election two years hence, in which the territory may be reduced with a view to cutting out some of the outlying and most hostile territory. This idea is based on the conclusion that the pro-annexation forces tried to take too large a slice at one bite. This is the way the precincts voted:

Precinct 94—In favor 71, against 140.
Precinct 95—In favor 155, against 136.
Precinct 96—In favor 205, against 286.
Precinct 97—In favor 54, against 37.

Annexation elections were held in two other districts, bordering Montavilla on the east, but the failure of election officers in precinct 92 to make returns of the vote on the question makes it impossible to give the result in either, that precinct being a part of both voting units. One is composed of 73½, 59½ and 92 and the other of 92 and 93.

Precinct 73½ gave 10 votes for annexation and none against. Precinct 59½ has no voters in its boundaries, and therefore does not figure in the election.

These precincts are in the section voted into the city at a former election, but the courts held the election invalid.

In the other division composed of 92 and 93, the result in 93 shows 19 in favor of annexation and 24 opposed. The destiny of both districts therefore depends upon the vote in 92.

In precinct 97 the voters gave emphatic disapproval to the proposal to allow stock to run at large. There were 55 votes in favor and 248 against it.
