PRESIDENT INJURED

Roosevelt Thrown Twice From Horse and Barely Escapes Death—Chief Executive Trying Spirited Animal Over Water Jump.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Washington, June 3.—It has just become known here that President Roosevelt was thrown from a young horse and barely escaped death yesterday afternoon in Rockcreek park, where he was trying the spirited animal in going over a water jump. The president saved his life by turning quickly to one side as the horse fell, and sustained severe bruises and was badly crushed.

The president, when the story came out today, said:

"It really didn't amount to much and is hardly worth printing. I am not injured at all seriously."

Horse Fell Violently.

The horse became frightened as it approached the jump. It staggered and fell violently. Roosevelt quickly realized the situation and his oldtime western experience when he learned to ride on bronchos on the plains came into play. He turned quickly in the saddle and was plunged into the water.

The horse jumped to its feet in great fright. It dashed away at breakneck speed, but Sergeant McDermott, the orderly for whom the president was trying the animal, succeeded in capturing it and returning it to the place where the president fell.

Mounted Animal Again.

The president mounted the animal again, saying his injuries were of no consequence whatever. He rode the animal half an hour afterward and went through another experience almost as dangerous as the first.

The horse was very nervous after the fall, and as the president was riding he came to a place where it was necessary to cross a stream. The horse went into the water all right, but when it felt the cold stream it shied and gave a sudden jump.

Thrown Into Stream.

Roosevelt leaned forward until his head was almost beside that of the horse. The animal staggered in the rough bottom of the creek and then fell at its full length in the water, carrying the president down with it. Roosevelt released his feet from the stirrups and sprang from the saddle, landing in the creek, and was not hurt. He managed the horse after that in a masterful fashion.

Persons who were driving in the park in a carriage saw the accident and told of it today. It became known in this way, as the members of the president's party and the White House were instructed not to let a word of it get into print.

Mrs. Roosevelt was with the president during the ride, and saw both the accidents. She is an expert horsewoman, and would have aided the president if she could have reached him in time.

Mrs. Roosevelt Was There.

But Sergeant McDermott was closer than she, and though she was greatly excited, she is none the worse for the experience.

President Roosevelt today tried in every way to belittle the experience, and denied that he was suffering any inconvenience from his injuries. Those who saw the horse fall with the president say that his life undoubtedly would have been lost if it had not been for his dexterity in shifting his position. The animal went over in such a way that it would have crushed the life out of an unexperienced horseman.

SPOOKY FLAMES CLEAN COP'S COAT

Officer P. L. Evans was a victim of the accident that spilled paint on several patrolmen's uniforms. Yesterday afternoon he decided to eradicate the marks. Benzine was one of the perquisites which he mixed with elbow oil. The object of his efforts was his uniform coat, which was not removed from his person during the process. He had been eradicating for about 15 minutes when he suddenly disappeared in a blaze of pyrotechnical grandeur. Willing hands tore the flaming garment from Evans' person. The same hands started to extinguish the flames, when, lo! just as the coat left the officer's body the blaze left the coat, and, more mysteriously still, no marks of any kind were left on the coat. So far Captain Baty and all the bluecoats are nonplussed.

TROUTDALE VICTIMS WILL ALL RECOVER

The three victims of the O. W. P. wreck on the Fairview-Troutdale line yesterday morning, who were brought to the Good Samaritan hospital, were reported as resting quietly this morning. All of the three, Conductor C. Saulson, Dr. H. J. Hancock and L. N. Kummer, will survive their injuries, but their nature will retard a quick recovery.

Admitted to Practice.

Captain John J. Bradley of the United States army and who is stationed at the Vancouver, Washington, barracks, was admitted to practice in the United States courts for this district this morning. Captain Bradley is a son-in-law of Captain J. A. Sladen, United States commissioner.

Other attorneys admitted to practice in the federal court by Judge Wolverton this morning were A. A. Anderson, Frank B. Rutherford and A. E. Cooper.

Cut in Two.

The price of seats in the Rose Festival grandstand on Morrison street have been reduced from $1 to 50 cents. All parades pass the stand twice.

AIMS GUN AT AUTOIST

August Ergt of Denver Seized by Policeman as He Levels Pistol at Occupants of an Auto Just Out of Parade.

Tragedy stalked dangerously near Portland's Rose Festival this morning and was averted only by the opportune presence and quick action of Officer C. D. Henson, who grappled August Ergt as the latter was on the point of firing his revolver into an automobile filled with women and children. Ergt was brought to police headquarters, where he will be made the subject of a rigid investigation.

The averted tragedy occurred on the corner of Third and Pine streets. The automobile, parade had just disbanded and the machine was returning down Third street. It was gaily decorated with bunting and floral pieces.

At the intersection of Pine streets something went wrong with the machinery. The chauffeur was working his steering gear and other apparatus in an effort to start it when Ergt appeared.

"Move on and let me pass," he ordered.

"I will as soon as I am able," said the chauffeur.

"Well, you'll move on right now," said Ergt.

In vain the chauffeur expostulated, seeking to impress on him that the machine was disabled. Equally futile were the frightened protests of the women occupants. The man worked himself up to a frothing passion in his tirade against the occupants and suddenly, without a second's warning, whipped out a revolver.

At the moment when his forefinger rested on the trigger, when for an instant he seemed to wait in order the better to enjoy his blood-thirsty anticipations, Officer Henson sprang at him from behind and knocked the gun from his grasp. After a short struggle he was subdued and brought to police headquarters. The occupants of the automobile left before their names were secured.

Ergt displays no symptoms of an unbalanced mind. He answered all questions in a cold, matter-of-fact manner. He claims Denver as his home and says he has only come from there recently. It is the belief that he is one of the band of anarchists who have of late created a reign of terror in Colorado's capital city.

SCORES PERISH IN TEXAS TORNADO

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Wichita Falls, Tex., June 3.—Scores of persons are believed to be dead in the path of a tornado which is sweeping Texas today. Reports indicate that it is the most terrific of all the storms which have visited this part of the country in the last month.

Communication from most of the damaged area is cut off. Wires are down and railroad tracks are blocked.

A messenger from Vernon reported that he knew of one man having been killed there and several fatally hurt. The town was badly damaged. All communication with Vernon is cut off.

Other small towns are known to have been struck by the twister, but no definite information could be obtained as to the extent of damage this afternoon.

ISSUE IS PLAIN, SO ELLIS SAYS

Washington, June 3.—Representative Ellis of Oregon, after expressing gratification at his own reelection, was asked today if he thought Chamberlain's election settled the Statement No. 1 issue. He said:

"I presume it does, as that seemed the plain issue and so understood by all. I am disappointed in the result, but suppose it cannot now be avoided. The issue was made too open in the campaign to be questioned."

PENINSULA ROSES GREETING TO VISITORS

A carload of the choicest roses grown on the peninsula is presented every day to visitors arriving at the union depot by the Peninsula Rose Carnival association. Half a dozen young ladies are on duty at the depot who meet the crowds as they leave the train and present each person with a rose and a souvenir. The peninsula people have a special car fitted up for transporting roses which is loaded with the choice blooms every morning and brought over to the west side. The car first goes to the fair grounds, where the peninsula booth in the Oriental building is dressed with fresh roses, and then is run to the union depot and thousands of blooms are left with the committee of young ladies for distribution to the incoming festival visitors. This thoughtful action on the part of the Peninsula association is much appreciated by the thousands of carnival visitors and will do much toward establishing Portland's reputation as the center of rose culture.

VERY AGED MAN KILLED HIMSELF

Salem, Or., June 3.—J. I. Thompson, 88 years old, killed himself in the basement of his home in this city about 11 o'clock this morning by shooting himself with a rifle. He placed the muzzle of the gun to his mouth and pulled the trigger. Death came almost instantly.

At one time Mr. Thompson was county clerk of Polk county, and was reputed to be quite wealthy. He had lived in Salem between 25 and 30 years. He had made arrangements for his coffin and prepared other matters before taking his life. He had become gradually more despondent as old age came on, and grew worse when a number of large eruptions appeared on his neck and other parts of his body.

CHOPPED UP BODY

Eccentric Wife Admits the Use of Five Gallons of Gasoline and Spending Night and Day Watching Husband's Remains Burn Up.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Seattle, June 3.—In the Kitsap county jail at Port Orchard, Mrs. Edward King is confined in a cell, waiting to be formally charged with the murder of her husband. In a basket in the custody of the sheriff are the charred bones—all that remain of the body of the dead man. The story of the death and disposition of the body of King is similar to the methods of Belle Gunness, the Indiana murderess.

Admitting that she destroyed the body in a most horrible manner, Mrs. King, the wife and alleged murderess, denies that she killed her husband.

Angered at Husband.

She found her husband dead in a chair, she says, and being angered at him because of his conduct toward her she dragged the body to the yard and there with an axe chopped it into small, convenient pieces, and with the aid of a five-gallon can of gasoline spent a night and a day in burning it, until all that remained was a basketful of charred bones.

The Kings lived for eight years near Olalla, Kitsap county, between Seattle and Tacoma. For eight years prior they lived at West Seattle, where they were well known and where their only daughter, Mrs. Fisher, now resides.

Disappeared From Home.

On Sunday, May 24, King disappeared from his home. On the night of that day and the following Monday neighbors noticed that a fire was kept burning in the yard in the vicinity of the home.

As the Kings were somewhat eccentric, people thought nothing of the incident.

On Monday a neighbor went to the King ranch to borrow a plow.

Mrs. King hurried to meet the man, who told his mission. He asked for the plow, and it was given to him, but he was not permitted to approach nearer the house than was necessary to secure the desired implement. As the neighbor left he noticed that Mrs. King returned to a small fire that she was attending in the yard. The odor from it was unpleasant.

Nothing Was Suspected.

Although neighbors noticed the fire, too, nothing was suspected until Thursday, when the daughter arrived on a visit to her parents from West Seattle. She inquired for her father, and was told by the mother that he had disappeared on the previous Sunday and had not returned.

The daughter insisted that the absence of her father be reported, and Thursday evening the mother and daughter visited Olalla and told of the mysterious disappearance. On Friday morning several residents of Olalla began searching. Among the searchers was Emil Swanson, Dr. Pry and a man named Reed.

Searched the Woods.

The woods in the vicinity of the home were thoroughly searched all day Friday, but no trace of King was found.

On Saturday morning Swanson spent his time about the King house. He was followed almost constantly by Mrs. King. Swanson paid particular attention to her, as the earth seemed to have been dug up and there were signs of a fire.

"Oh, there's no use in you looking around here," Mrs. King said to Swanson, "that's just where I burned up some of the old man's clothes."

This was suspicious. Swanson became aroused by this time and he turned over some of the earth.

Charred Bone Found.

A charred bone protruded through the soft soil and he picked it up. Swanson called Dr. Pry and he identified the bone as that of a human being.

Further search revealed other bones buried but a few inches below the surface.

Mrs. King professed ignorance of the origin of the buried bones and was not accused by the searchers with having disposed of the body.

She appeared greatly troubled, however, and shortly after the discovery walked over to Dr. Pry and said:

Admits Burning of Body.

"Doctor, I burned the old man up. I came home and found him dead in his chair. I was mad because of the way he had treated me. He had beat me. He drove me from the house. I took his carcass out into the yard and chopped it up with an axe and burned it and threw the bones away and buried some of them."

Then the woman, who has for two years past been slightly affected mentally, as the result of a stroke of paralysis, broke down and nothing further could be secured from her. She was taken to Port Orchard, where she is now confined in the county jail.

After her arrival at Port Orchard, Mrs. King told Sheriff McKay that if he would go back and search in the orchard near the house he would find some more bones. This was done and the gruesome remains of the husband already in the hands of the sheriff were added to.

Do Not Believe Story.

The officers do not believe that King died a natural death. Circumstantial evidence of bloody murder was given them by a neighbor of King's, J. T. Stevens. On the Friday preceding the disappearance of King, Mrs. King had visited the Stevens home and told Stevens she wanted some poison. She asked where she could get it and what she should do if she came to Seattle for it. Stevens told her she would need a prescription from a physician.

Later, on Friday or Saturday, Mrs. King purchased a gallon of whiskey. King was an excessive drinker and it is thought he was induced to drink himself into a stupor by his wife, who then killed him.

ARGUING TO SET ASIDE BRIBERY INDICTMENTS

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, June 3.—The motion to set aside the three indictments against Patrick Calhoun and Tirey L. Ford of the United Railroads and ex-Boss Abraham Ruef for the bribery of the supervisors in connection with the passing of the overhead trolley franchise, was argued today before Judge Lawler by Attorneys A. A. Moore for Calhoun and Ford, Frank Murphy for Ruef and Assistant District Attorney Heney for the people.

The motion is based on the alleged bias of the McFarland grand jury which returned the indictments and the alleged misconduct of Heney in the grand jury room before the indictments were returned.

The examination of the grand jurors was concluded yesterday afternoon. Today's argument was interspersed with several spats between Heney and the attorneys for the defense.

VICTORY FOR WETS

Local Optionists Wage Unsuccessful Battle on the Grounds Chosen by Their Opponents—Saloons Eliminated From St. Johns.

The wets gained a substantial victory over the drys in the local option elections in Multnomah county. The one notable exception is in St. Johns, where the verdict of two years ago was reversed by adding precinct 89, University Park, to the two St. Johns precincts, the net result giving a dry majority. The vote was 521 for prohibition and 507 against.

Two precincts voted singly on the thirst question. All the other contests were waged in combinations of precincts. In all except St. Johns, and possibly one of the country subdivisions, in which the returns are incomplete, the wet contingent was victorious.

In the two large subdivisions on the east side the wets made it nearly two to one. This result was not unexpected by the other side, as the voting districts were carved out and shaped by the liquor interests to anticipate and forestall possible prohibition excursions into their territory. At that time it was not known what the drys might do, and the object of the wets was to gain advantage of priority in filing in case of conflict between the petitions.

In the district composed of precincts 42, 43, 44, 46 and 47 the wet majority is 400. The vote stood 914 to 514. Every precinct gave a wet majority. In 42 the vote was 228 to 146, in 43 it was 149 to 88, in 44 it was 58 to 43, in 46 it was 279 to 151 and in 47 it was 200 to 81.

In the subdivision composed of precincts 52, 62, 63, 69, 71, 72, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78 and 79 the result on the returns received shows that the wets have 1,802 votes to 869, or more than two to one. The vote is complete except for precincts 63, 69 and 72.

Precincts 100 and 101 voted together on prohibition and the combined vote gives 157 in favor, 178 against. This territory includes Troutdale and Fairview.

Precinct 3 voted alone and gave 61 in favor of prohibition, with 183 opposed. Precinct 67, also voting alone, polled 93 for prohibition and 127 against it.

Precinct 99 voted with 102, and the returns from the latter are not available. No. 99 gave 47 for prohibition and 44 against.

A peculiar feature of the vote in St. Johns is the repetition of the neck-and-neck race run on the same question two years ago, so far as the two St. Johns precincts are concerned. Had it been left to St. Johns alone, the wets would have four majority. They lost No. 90 by 183 to 236, and carried 91 by 174 to 117. The addition of 89, which was 178 to 150, gave the balance to the drys.

CHAMBERLAIN HAS CLATSOP BY 300

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Astoria, Or., June 3.—With but five precincts to hear from, unofficial returns in Clatsop county give Chamberlain a majority of 291 over Cake and indicate that he will carry the county by fully 300. The precincts yet to hear from are Chadwell, Elsie, Jewell, Mishawaka and Push.

The Republican legislative and county ticket is elected, the only place in doubt being county commissioner for the two year term and with the returns thus far received Moore is slightly in the lead. The county high school carried by a large majority, the university appropriation was sustained, the fish bill was given an overwhelming majority in every precinct, but equal suffrage and the single tax measure were defeated. The returns thus far received give the vote on the offices where there was a contest as follows: For senator, Cake 843, Chamberlain 1,134; for representatives, Leienweber 1,666, McCue 1,488, Wooden 574; for sheriff, Carlson 804, Pomeroy 1,640; for coroner, Gilbaugh 1,586, Polh 791; for commissioner, Moore 1,162, Morton 1,107.

Prohibition carried in the three Astoria precincts and at Olney by large majorities. In Astoria precinct No. 1 the vote was 250 for and 36 against. In Astoria precinct No. 6 the vote was 157 for to 101 against and in Astoria precinct No. 7 it was 158 for to 55 against. In Olney precinct the vote was 84 for prohibition to 6 against it. For constable John Sayer was reelected by a vote of 693 to 502 for Wilson and 194 for Olsen.

RAILROADS IN FEAR

Persistent Hammering on Part of Newspapers Results in Common Carriers Desisting in Increasing Rates.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)

Washington, June 3. — Newspaper hammering of the plan to increase rates has resulted in compelling the railroads to desist therefrom, apparently. The announcement was made at the office of the interstate commerce commission today that the commission had information that new tariffs would be filed July 1. The law compels that new tariffs shall be filed a month in advance of the time new rates are to go into effect. June 1 has passed, and no increased tariffs have been filed, indicating that the plan announced after the trunk line meeting at New York looking to increased rates beginning July 11 has been abandoned. The shippers' victory in this matter is wholly credited to the newspaper publicity, which has been persistent throughout the country against increases.

FULTON STILL OPPOSES IT

Says Even If Chamberlain Has Received Popular Vote, Not the Duty of the Legislature to Send Democrat to the Senate.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)

Washington, June 3.—Senator Borune said today: "No further statement is necessary from me, as my views are well known as to Statement No. 1, of which I have been and am an advocate. If Chamberlain has received the popular plurality he is entitled to receive the vote of the legislature for senator as the man the people selected. It is no longer a question. The legislature is bound to ratify the popular choice."

Senator Fulton said: "In my judgment a Republican legislature was not elected to put a Democratic senator in office. Some years ago The Journal printed a statement from me in which I said that when the direct primary law was adopted, the people didn't understand, in my judgment, that a legislature might be expected to elect a senator of the other party, simply because he received more votes than his opponent. I said then, as now, that the highest duty of a member of the legislature is to abide by his oath of office to support the constitution, which as far as the election of senator is concerned, is to choose the one most likely to serve the interest of the people, and a Republican legislature could not elect a Democrat who stands against Republican policies without violating their oath of office."
