

ERUPTION FROM INSIDE

Journal Reporter Plays "Supe" at Vesuvius, and Sees How the Wheels Go Round—Sixty Feet From Ground Too Low.

Out at the carnival of Naples and the eruption of Vesuvius on the Multnomah field last night, Mr. Pain had a free "supe." It was a Journal reporter. He wore a white helmet, a gorgeously colored sash, a fit-him-quick jacket and he looked like a pictured tourist in a tropical country. And he felt like a—

The city editor sent the reporter to write up the fireworks as viewed from behind the scenes. At the gate H. M. Hanaford, manager of the fireworks production, was waiting. The newspaper man was being hustled off toward the city in the distance. Mr. Hanaford ushered him to the tent and assisted him in removing his overcoat.

A helmet was placed on his head, a jacket slipped over his arms and a sash wound time and again about his body. Then Mr. Hanaford began leading again. Then everything was light and bright. There were hundreds of gayly dressed men and women about. The reporter staggered a bit, then came to. He was out on the "stage," actually taking part in the show. And he didn't know it until the stage manager appeared. The reporter looked around south the stream of lights and away in the distance he saw a black mass several blocks long. It was the eruption. Then the stage light came. But it wasn't so bad after all.

Behind the Footlights.

The stage manager said his name was Cunliffe—James Cunliffe—and it was plain that he was the big stick on that end of the grounds. Mr. Hanaford is boss in front and Mr. Cunliffe controls the works.

"If you can," said the stage manager, "follow me around awhile and I'll show you a thing or two." And he led the reporter on the other end of the grounds with the reporter hot on his trail. The carnival was on in full blast. But on the right-hand end of the scene too many men had congregated. Consequently Mr. Cunliffe's hike from the opposite end.

"How's it come they were all here?" asked the reporter, looking for pointers how to act to become a good "supe."

"Women—the ballet—are all on this end, and the 'terse' reply.

About 200 "supe" part in the production every night. They are paid 50 cents each. About 20 of these are women. Some of the girls are quite promising actresses. That is, they think they are. Some of the ballet girls wore a sort of "directors" costume—lights and scene dresses which disclosed the shapes which most of them hope will make them famous.

Carnival Stunts Begin.
Finally a squad of Italian policemen appeared. They were holding a group of more of the ballet, and citizens, and the priest and his procession of acolytes went marching by. And oh, yes, the queen and her king and other ballet. (They were the same girls and had sneaked off the stage at the other end.) The king didn't have his shoes shined. The queen and king took the throne and majestically looked over the field. The queen waved her hands for Cunliffe to blow his whistle. The vaudeville stunts began. And oh, yes, the band began to play.

All of a sudden Cunliffe became so busy and darted about so rapidly that one could only keep track of him by his whistle. He blew his whistle and blown every few seconds. Jim Cunliffe does all the blowing. Every time the band changes a key and a trumpet to be fired or anything else happens the whistle of the stage manager must first be heard. Consequently you can well imagine that he is a mighty busy man.

Between whistles Mr. Cunliffe turned the reporter over to Nick Eckert. Nick is the firing man. He has a gun which worked on a battleship. Nick has the firing idea down to a science. When he isn't firing he is "sup." Nick is from New Orleans. He has been with Pain five years. He sets the showers of fire, the rockets and everything. He also has charge of the dynamite, 50 blunts of which are set off one after the other. As Vesuvius begins to erupt. By the showmen this is called the "picture." The dynamite fired by the electric battery. But Nick doesn't have charge of this. He has been promoted long ago.

Smoking is not permitted behind the scenes. When the reporter started to be puffing away on a freshly lighted cigar. He wanted to "choke" it, but there were so many "supe" looking on that he was bluffed and threw it away.

Then showers of fire, rockets, the parachute displays and others which go off in the air with such loud reports are fired by means of mortars. The firing apparatus is all back of the "city." This is where Nick Eckert and his assistants await the signal whistle and go their way.

Sixty Feet Too Low.
But before the firing begins there is a long blast from Cunliffe's whistle and a man in the uniform of a clown appears. He is called "The Fool." He is a top notcher in his profession. He is a little man and from the audience looks like a boy. He is 45 years old, however, and has been making tight ropes since his father started in the business by his father when he was but 5 years old.

Mr. Weitzman gets $500 a week. The rope he walks in the Multnomah field is 60 feet from the ground. Last night he was kicking because the ropes were not counted. The tight rope is a little too near the ground, he said to the reporter. The last night while he was preparing for his stunt. "I don't like the lights so near me. I wish I were going up a hundred feet to work."

Mr. Weitzman has never had a fall. "If I fall," he explained, "it's my own fault." He usually performs with his sister, but she was unable to come to Portland, since he was hurried on one hour's notice from New York City to fill this week's engagement. Weitzman has been with the Pain people 24 years.

Rival Democratic Factions of Idaho Name Two Sets of Delegates.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Boise, Idaho, June 4.—Holding two conventions in the same hall at the same time, the Dubois and anti-Dubois factions of the Democratic party at Twin Falls late yesterday afternoon named two sets of delegates to the Denver convention. There was a split came over the election of temporary chairman. The Dubois faction attempted to name Glen McKinley of Twin Falls and the anti-Dubois faction selected Judge Perkey of Boise.

State chairman Lockhart declared McKinley elected, but anti-Duboisites claimed the vote had been incorrectly counted, and both men took the platform. The anti-Dubois faction proceeded with the business of convention, making temporary organization permanent and electing delegates, instructing for Bryan and opposing the anti-Mormon issue in national platform.

The Duboisites were so confused that they waited till the other convention adjourned. Then they elected delegates and declared for Bryan and passed resolutions against the Mormons. The convention was a scene of continuous bedlam and the police were called upon by McKinley to put the other faction out of the hall, but after closing up the situation the officers declined to interfere.

WASHINGTON IS MUCH INTERESTED
Governor's Victory Termed Voice of People Favor of Popular Vote.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, D. C., June 4.—The election of Chamberlain has absorbed Washington politicians today. The Times and Star both comment that the popular election issue is well defined, and hence should be assumed the popular mandate to be carried out by the legislature.

The Star says: "Republicans voted for Chamberlain knowing his politics and that as senator he would vote with the Democratic party. He who took this stand put his personality above party considerations. There could have been no understanding to the contrary for Governor Chamberlain's character and popularity repels the bare suggestion. Should these instructions be obeyed, undoubtedly, illogical as the result is, it will represent the popular will and show the course a government by majority. People of Oregon have spoken and with full knowledge of the matter before them. They knew Governor Chamberlain's political views of the office to which he aspired, and have expressed preference for him to represent them in the senate for the next six years."

BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING.
J. W. Crossley, in Charge of Publicity Work for Pacific Coast Biscuit Co.

A unique scheme to advertise the products of the Pacific Coast Biscuit company will be effected Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, when 100 balloons will be sent from the company's plant at Tualatin and distributed to the streets and attached to each balloon will be a prize to the finder when the three descend. W. Crossley, the originator, was formerly in charge of the advertising and premium department of the American Tobacco company and is now in charge of the Pacific Coast Biscuit company. Mr. Crossley heartily believes in proper newspaper advertising and has quite a reputation for evolving original ideas.

NORTHWEST GIRLS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Warning Against Refilling Lea & Perrins' Sauce Bottles.
Within a month two restaurant proprietors in Portland, Oregon, have been arrested and fined $25 each in Judge Cameron's court, for refilling Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce bottles with inferior sauce. In this connection the Portland Daily Journal says: "The eating public has been forced to take cheap mixtures labeled with the brand of well known and popular condiments, as the proprietors of scores of restaurants have been increasing their revenues by buying inferior stuff in bulk and selling it under false pretenses." Lea & Perrins Sauce is the original and genuine Worcestershire and is known all over the world.

Adopt Profit Sharing Plan.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Aberdeen, Wash., June 4.—The profit-sharing plan has been adopted by the Johnston Transfer company, and all the men in their employ have been invited to take stock in the company. This is being done by the men to the extent of their ability and it promises to be a very popular move on the part of the company.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.
"After doctoring 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over $200, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold." writes B. F. Aycock of Ingleside, North Carolina. Sold under guarantee at Skidmore Drug company's drug store, 25c.

SEARCH IS ON FOR HIGHWAYMEN
Reno Police Scour Nevada for Men Who Robbed Game in a Hotel.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Reno, Nev., June 4.—The police are today preparing to search every corner of the state for two masked highwaymen who robbed a gambling game in the Rawhide hotel of $700, lined up the guests against a wall and escaped.

Groups of men and women were standing in the lobby of the hotel shortly before midnight last night when the robbers entered, with masks tightly drawn across their faces. The women screamed when they saw the revolvers of the bandits and were scurrying for places of safety when they were commanded to stand up against the wall with the men guests.

While one robber held them in line with his revolver, his partner entered the barroom and raised a game, taking away $700 in a sack. The two men then disappeared down a side street. There is slight hope of capturing the pair, because no one can give a good description of them.

NEW INSPECTOR AFTER NOTTINGHAM
State Senator C. W. Nottingham will appear before Judge Cameron tomorrow morning to answer to a charge of violating the city's building ordinance. Senator Nottingham has two buildings at the corner of East Washington and East Stark streets. Some time ago an ordinance was put through the council giving him permission to build a passageway between the two.

In the complaint filed by Building Inspector G. E. Dobson, who was appointed to that position only yesterday, the senator is charged with having erected not a passageway but a building. The ordinance passed by the council for the senator's special benefit has already been established as invalid, the court holding that it was not constitutional to discriminate in favor of one individual against other individuals in practically the same circumstances.

Dobson's complaint takes no cognizance of the invalidity of the special ordinance. It merely states that Nottingham has erected and enlarged a building without a permit from the city.
