

NEW GAMES AT CHICAGO

First Days of Convention Marked by Small Attendance—What the Delegates Are Doing—Forecasts of Candidates.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Chicago, June 13.—With the first meeting of the Republican national convention only three days in the future the number of delegates on the ground is remarkably small. Three big contingents, those from New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana and some other ones came in today, but the big crush will scarcely be here before tomorrow night or Monday.

Thus does the anti-pass feature of the railroad rate law operate against the delegates. Here, however, they are not to pay for their hotel bills, but to pay for the actual meeting of the convention and spend their time meeting old acquaintances and discussing with the others all of the party issues which in the meantime were being determined by the leaders behind some closed doors.

But there is nothing to all this talk. The "allies" are thoroughly beaten, and they know it. In fact, in private conversation and not for publication they freely admit it. A new Republican party has been born during the last several years, and right in its "papa," the old time element, including the Aldrichs, the Cranes, the Paynes and the Dalys, which used to run the party according to its own ideas, has now discovered that times have changed, that new policies have come to the fore, that they have not kept up with the times, and that younger men, representatives of the coming election, are taking their places as leaders.

Who will be the running mate on the ticket is still an open question. Deep down in the minds of many of the party is the name of Delivered. There is a quiet current setting in. The talk of nominating Senator Dooliver of Iowa for second place was renewed with increased vigor today.

Senator Bryan of Kansas returned from his visit to Delivered's home, with the statement that the consequent low was in a receptive mood. The Minnesota idea was the boom of the campaign. It is the opinion of the committee from that state, and the attorney who helped prepare the case against the Standard Oil trust, which resulted in the imposition of such a whopping fine, and who is now conducting the prosecution of Harriman. So encouraged were they by their own efforts that urgent telegrams were sent to the other members of the delegation, who are not expected to arrive here until tomorrow night.

Despite all this activity it is still probably true that if New York state will be given the opportunity to do so. The New York delegation is in a peculiar position. It is instructed to vote for Hughes for president, and yet several members of the party on arrival here decided that there was only one man on the train, and he was half-hearted about it. It was also declared there was no talk about the viceregal situation. Senator Depew, one of the "big four," said to a United Press representative that this subject has not only been discussed by them, but would be earnestly suppressed until after the presidential nomination had been made. Hughes, of course, will not be pushed for the place.

The only strong objection to Cortell is that to take two members of the political cabinet to make up the ticket would emphasize the control of the administration over the convention and make it look like a personally conducted excursion.

As for Congressman Sherman of Utah, the New Yorkers seem to think that he could be of much more service to the party by running for governor of the state than by taking the second place on the national ticket. Sherman has a great many friends among the delegates outside of his own state. "J. J. Bledsoe" today called on the man with brains to match his voice. Those who remembered the hearty tones of the popular Utican were disposed to cheer.

Foraker Undaunted. Senator Foraker does not propose to allow any old steam-roller or any other kind of a political weapon to run over him without a protest. Today his representative here, Robert H. Stevenson,

STRANGE ACTIONS BEFORE MURDER

Mrs. Daniel Cooper Buys Her Children Theatre Tickets Then Kills Them.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Cadillac, Mich., June 13.—Cadillac is agast over the crime of Mrs. Daniel Cooper, who, with chloroform and pistol, killed her husband and six children, then herself.

In every instance the woman shot her victims through the head after administering the drug. The dead: Samuel Cooper, 48 years old. Mrs. Cooper, 35 years old. Fred Cooper, 18 years old. Harry, 14 years old. Inez, 11 years old. Saussey, her youngest, 5 years old. Georgia, 5 years old. Florence, 1 1/2 years old. When Mrs. Cooper's mother entered the home of the Coopers yesterday she found only one alive of the whole family, the son Fred, who died later at the Emergency hospital, unable to tell any more of the tragedy than to gasp, "Mother did it."

Mrs. Cooper's body laid across that of her baby, on a bed, and beside her, with every chamber empty, a revolver. The belief is that the crazed woman first chloroformed the members of her household before she shot them. That she had plotted for some time was indicated by her actions the night before the crime. She took all of her children to the Alamo theatre, where a special vaudeville show was in progress. She induced the girl ticket agent to sell the family for half a dollar, and said: "You will never have to let them in cheap again, because none of us will ever come here after this." Then she bought candy and peanuts for the children and all walked about the streets happy in the company of the mother, who, within a few hours, slew every one of them.

SEVENTEEN MARION PRECINCTS ARE DRY

No Protests When County Judge's Proclamation Is Issued.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.) Salem, Or., June 13.—Seventeen out of forty-one precincts in Marion county went dry at the last election and were officially proclaimed dry by County Judge Scott this afternoon. There were just 17 saloons in these 17 precincts, divided among three of them—Silverton, Stayton and Amunville, Chemawa and Macleay formerly dry, reverted to the wet column. As there were two saloons at Macleay two years ago before the prohibitionists won these two saloons will likely be reestablished.

Five precincts in the city of Salem went dry and the whole city is now going dry by 50 votes. All three Silverton precincts are dry, besides the following rural precincts: Amunville, Elkton, Jefferson, Madras, Stayton, Liberty, Rosedale, Scotts Mills and Turner in two precincts, Breitenbush and Marion. The vote was a tie and the judge decided it would remain wet. A saloon went dry by one vote. In the dry Salem precincts there were no saloons. No protests were made. The session of the county court when the prohibition vote was canvassed this afternoon. The protesters who held that the ballot was made up wrong, were treated from their position. A technical defect was found, however, in the petition calling for the prohibition vote in Silverton. But as all the precincts went dry in the subdivision this discovery was of no avail, for the precincts were voted dry under the county petition, which was not defective.

UNITED HAT STORES.

Opened Upon the Eastern Style and Proves a Success.

The first exclusive hat store in Portland is the pronounced success that was predicted by the eastern people residing here. The United Hat Stores at Washington and Seventh streets, opposite the Imperial is not a big store but it does big business. The patronage would do credit to a store six times its size and six times as old. A specialty is made of 8 hats in all shapes and colors. Even in straw hats the United has done a land office business the past week. "We appear to have a small store, said the manager yesterday, "but we have an immense reserve stock. No style of block in any shade can be called for that we cannot furnish at once. We are eastern men, and we are here with the goods. Every hat is shaped to the head, and no one leaves the establishment without getting all he wanted, and at a less figure than he would have to pay elsewhere. I don't know why we are selected by so many critical dressers, unless it is because ours is a selected stock. The selection both ways proves satisfactory."

son, announced that the contests in which Foraker delegates are involved will be carried not only to the credentials committee, but to the floor of the convention. Charles L. Kurtz, Foraker's old first aid; Eli M. West and John B. Wheatley, who for years have been active in Ohio politics, will arrive here tomorrow morning and take up the fight. Stevenson said: "If the nomination is to be stolen, it must be in daylight and in the open convention. There can be no dodging this morning and was not at his office when the national committee can be fully disclosed only by an open fight on the convention floor."

CALEB POWERS PARDONED BY GOVERNOR WILLSON

New Republican Executive Also Frees Jim Howard Who Will Probably Become Prison Evangelist After Visiting Louisville Friends.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.) Frankfort, Ky., June 13.—Governor Willson today pardoned Caleb Powers and "Jim" Howard, charged with complicity in the assassination of Governor Goshel of Kentucky. Howard was serving a life sentence in the penitentiary for the killing, while Powers was repeatedly tried as an accessory. The pardons, which are unconditional, were announced by McKensie Todd, the governor's private secretary. The governor worked on the cases until 2 o'clock this morning and was not at his office when the pardon was announced. James Howard was notified at the prison and at once prepared to leave his stripes. He was delighted. After a visit to Louisville friends he may take up the work as a prison evangelist. The reasons given by the governor for issuing the pardons are based upon an application filed with him accompanied by petitions signed by nearly 100,000 persons, of which 249,000 were Kentuckians, including a large portion of Democrats.

THREE DAYS FOR THE CHERRY FAIR

Management Extends Period One Day—County Court $100 to the Cause.

Salem, Or., June 13.—At the petition of a committee including Fruit Commissioner C. A. Park, J. H. Albert, president of the Salem board of trade; F. W. Powers, representing the Nurseries' association; Clarence Bishop, of the board of trade and District Attorney Charles McNary, the county court this afternoon voted to appropriate $100 to be used to promote the Cherry Fair to be held in Salem, July 9, 10 and 11. The fair is regarded as an enterprise worthy of the support of the county and it is proposed to make it much more successful than last year's attempt. Arrangements are being completed as fast as possible and different awards have about all been arranged. The cherry crop this year promises to be one of the best ever raised in the Willamette valley and growers are jubilant over the prospects. Prominent speakers and fruit growers from as far east as Kansas City will be present to see Oregon's wonderful cherry in its native growth and it is planned to make the fair an educational as well as a showy feature.

It pays to watch the business chances in The Journal.
