WEATHER REPORT

A disturbance of energetic character is central this morning over North Dakota and general rains have fallen over Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and the Dakotas during the last 24 hours. At Huron, South Dakota, the excessive amount of 3.54 inches was recorded. Clear skies continue to prevail over the entire southwest. Fair weather also prevails over the northeastern portion of the country due to the high area which this morning is passing off the New England coast. Over the south Atlantic states, however, moderate general rains occurred.

The indications point to a continuation of the present showery weather over the entire forecast district tonight and Friday.

THE RIVER.

The stage of the Willamette at Portland will probably reach 21.1 feet by Friday morning and 21.3 feet by Saturday morning, when it will probably remain on a stand for a day or two.
