

TAILOR MADE CONVENTION

Sherman's Nomination at Chicago Simply Ratification of Dope Sheet Handed Out by President Roosevelt at White House.

(Heart News by Longest Leased Wire.) Chicago, June 20.—Sherman's nomination for the vice-presidency yesterday at the closing session of the Republican convention was a mere matter of form. Having been approved by the president in advance, it only remained for the delegates to register Washington's selection, which they did within an hour after the final session had been convened.

The chief feature of this session, aside from the nomination of Sherman, was the appearance of Speaker Cannon on the platform for the convention to second the nomination of his colleague, Sherman.

It was "Uncle Joe's" first appearance in the convention, and he was given a rousing reception. At the start of the proceedings, Permanent Chairman Lodge repaired an oversight of yesterday. It seems that in the tumult and the shouting the usually calm and methodical speaker had forgotten to formally announce that William H. Taft had been nominated for the office of the president of the United States; wherefore, Senator Lodge did then and there with all the form requisite upon such occasions, announce, amid bared bosoms, that William Howard Taft had been nominated, and the convention got down to business.

Longworth's Present. The Coliseum was only half filled, but it was noticed that Mr. and Mrs. Longworth were still among those present. The daughter of the president did not miss one session of the convention, and she and her husband remained always until the final fall.

Chase Osborne of Michigan moved and A. L. Wilcox of Pennsylvania seconded the motion, that the convention proceed to the nomination of a candidate for the vice-presidency. The remaining speeches were limited to 10 minutes and second addresses to five minutes. The memory of yesterday's fearful flood of oratory still lingered in the minds of the delegates.

New York, united at last on something and cheering justly to make up for all the times when the hall with flags flying, and the assemblage was so overgrown at the peace which at last possessed the convention, that it added as it was, and hot and eager to have it over with, it saluted New York with a burst of applause, and "Little Jim" Woodruff took the platform to put Sherman in nomination, Delaware having given way to New York.

Sherman's name showed the temper of the delegates. They let out a wild whoop, led by the New York delegation which swept the floor. The cheering and applause lasted quite three minutes.

Uncle Joe's Appearance. Silence had barely been restored when the quaint figure of Cannon was seen stalking down the center aisle of the hall. As the crowd recognized the speaker, another cheer broke loose. Senator Lodge lent Cannon a hand and helped him to the platform, and the laughter and applause became general.

"Uncle Joe" had left his cigar behind, but otherwise he looked just as if he had emerged from one of his campaigns to appear at a brief engagement. One trouser leg was caught in his shoelace, and a cuff hung far below its rightful place at his wrist. His vest was unbuttoned all the way down. His face was set in a characteristic smile. His first act was to plunge his hand into the water pitcher and abstract a bit of ice, which he applied tenderly to the back of his neck. The crowd roared its pleasure. You see, it is always the aim at the last day of the convention to put everybody in good humor.

Cannon, in brief, put himself squarely on the Taft band wagon. But he did it with such quaint gesture and charm, and in such an "Uncle Joe" manner, that the convention was kept in a state of laughter and cheers throughout.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO ELECTROCUTION (Heart News by Longest Leased Wire.) Watertown, N. Y., June 20.—Guilty of murder in the first degree was the verdict of the jury today in the case of Mrs. Mary Farmer, charged with the killing of Mrs. Sarah Brennan.

Justice Rogers sentenced Mrs. Farmer to be electrocuted at Auburn prison during the week beginning August 2. The crime for which Mrs. Farmer, who is 29 years of age, was convicted was most heinous. Her victim, Mrs. Brennan, who was 65 years of age, was her neighbor and intimate friend, and the motive was to gain possession of the Brennan home, deeds of which Mrs. Farmer had forged in October. Mrs. Brennan was hacked to pieces with a hatchet and her body stuffed into a trunk.

FRENCHMEN DO NOT MAKE CZAR

President Fallieres Encounters Opposition to Proposed Visit to Nicholas.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Paris, June 20.—President Fallieres is experiencing the same opposition in his proposed visit to Emperor Nicholas that was encountered by King Edward a few days ago. Following the example of the laborites and liberals of England, the united Socialist party is making a clamorous protest against the visit.

The French opposition, however, will not be as strong as that which developed in England, for France has long stood as the friend of Russia, and the great majority of her people are anxious for the entente to be continued and strengthened.

KILLED WHILE STEALING CHILD

Father of Little Girl Attempts to Take Her From Mother.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Des Moines, Iowa, June 20.—Frank Parker, a business man of Denver, died near Kellogg today from wounds received yesterday while he was trying to kidnap his five-year-old daughter from the home of his wife. Parker was shot by George Young of Denver a former business partner.

Parker came here several days ago and stated to search for his wife and child. He told friends that Young had induced his wife to leave him, and that the couple were living near here somewhere. He located the pair near Kellogg and went to the house to take his child away from her mother. Young objected and in the row shot his former partner.

BANKER ARRESTED

(Continued from Page One.) tor from Washington, is president of the First National bank. He has held the position of vice-president for several years. Parker is also known as being quite wealthy and has been interested in many banking institutions in eastern Oregon. Parker's arrest has caused much comment in eastern Oregon. The returning of the indictments against him and his subsequent arrest came as a complete surprise not only to the people of Baker City but also to many business men in Portland to whom he was well known. The First National bank is one of the largest and strongest banking institutions in eastern Oregon. Fred Wunder lives in Baker county for years and has followed the mining business since he was a young man, always with the one hope that some day he would strike it rich. Just as his dreams were about to be realized, he realized, he claims, Parker jumped his claim and swore falsely in his efforts to obtain possession of it. Wunder brooded over his loss for a time and was finally induced to come to Portland and present his case to the United States district attorney for Oregon. The result was the indictments against Parker.

DISOWNS HIS COLT

Jo Bong Declines to Recognize Weapon Taken From Him by the Police—Lem Woon Goes to the Jury This Afternoon.

The evidence in the Lem Woon high-binder case is in and the question of whether Lem is to hang for the murder of Lee Tai Hoi will be left to the jury some time this afternoon.

This morning's testimony was for the most part unimportant and was mainly an attempt by the defense to show that dying statements by Chinese are not to be believed and that the victim of the highbinders, when dying, had accused the defendant of his murder through motives of revenge.

To further this, Jo Bong, who was arrested with Lem Woon, and who was originally charged with the murder together with the other defendants, was placed on the stand. Jo had trouble with the interpreters and it took half an hour and the combined efforts of three of them to get him to state whether or not he had cooked any rice after hearing the shots at Fourth and Pine. He testified that he had not cooked any rice, and became scared and therefore ran home to the tong headquarters at Second and Oak streets and locked the doors. He said he had not heard the officers knock as he was chopping wood. The rice question was not important, but Jo would not answer it for some reason. He simply said he had not cooked any rice. He did not know why he had hid in the closet when he heard the officers coming, and when Mr. Malarky held the big .38 Colt that was found in the closet in his face and asked him if it was his, Jo looked the other way and denied any knowledge of it.

Dying Statements. Lim Hong, Chinese cook at the Sargent hotel, was placed on the stand and told of the family of the Limes. He said that dying statements were more sacred than any statement. The defendant, Lem Woon, was a member of Lim's family society and had never been called Lem Woon to his knowledge, but was always known as Lum Suey. Sam Ahtye of San Francisco, the defense's interpreter, was called and told the same story about dying statements. He explained under cross-examination that he had come up at the request of the Chinaman who is conducting the defense—the blue-jacketed, bald-headed tong man from San Francisco, as he was a friend of his. He said he does not know the defendant, but had no guarantee of expense money. When Mr. Malarky asked him if he and his bald-headed friend had not cooked up many jobs of this kind together, Mr. Logan interjected and said that the question was insulating.

That started the two leading attorneys into another squabble, in which names were hurled back and forth at a furious rate and the business of the trial was given up for the time being while Mr. Malarky and Mr. Logan had it out. Nobody tried to referee.

With Sam Ahtye the defense rested, Mr. Malarky called the court clerk and photographer to show that the defendant had stated that his name was Lem Woon at the time of the preliminary examination and that such was the name that had been entered in all the records. Deputy District Attorney John Stevenson opened the closing arguments for the state, finishing at 11:40. A 1:30 Attorney Frank Freeman opened for the defense. He will be followed by Mr. Logan, and Mr. Malarky will close. The case will go to the jury this afternoon, and both sides expect a verdict this evening.

Two witnesses were introduced following Lem Woon. Mr. Malarky stated they were eating lunch in a sandwich wagon opposite Lee Tai Hoi's home at the time of the murder and that they heard no noise between the first shot fired and the three or four following, as had been stated by the state's witnesses.

PLAN ADDITION TO BABY HOME

The overall condition of the Baby Home necessitates an addition to the building, and a special committee of Hon. H. H. Northrup and F. S. Akin has been named to secure the purchase price of a lot of ground immediately adjoining the present property on the west. The society has on hand cash to the amount of $100 and a subscription of $1,000. The latter is not available, however, until the entire amount of the purchase price is raised, which is $4,700. The proceeds of the charity ball at the Knights Templar hall, some $553, have been added to the building fund. The committee feels confident of securing the amount needed before the expiration of the option, July 1. The board of directors met yesterday afternoon when these matters were discussed. There are at present 31 babies in the home and all are in good health. The present quarters are inadequate for the necessities of the little ones. But one death has occurred during the past six months and that was an infant who was in very poor health when received.
