SOCIETY

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES are gradually dying away to nothing. At the close of the season charity affairs are interesting matrons and maids a good deal but aside from these there is little of moment. The baseball game yesterday played for the benefit of the Flower Mission day nursery was well attended and prominent matrons interested themselves in it. The Collegiate Alumnae play Monday in benefit for their Oregon scholarship fund was well attended and aroused much interest in the cause. This week the "Toy Shop" performances for the benefit of the Institute club will engage most of the attention and next Saturday the Visiting Nurses' association will come in for its share of support.

Aside from these affairs the commencement festivities of the secondary schools in town and the home coming of children from colleges and preparatory schools about the country have taken up the time. The university of Oregon commencement this week which opens with baccalaureate Sunday today has taken a good many interested people to Eugene, and Wednesday there will be a large party going down for home coming day. Most of the prominent men in town have enlisted in that excursion for an opportunity to study the college town at close range.

The daily society columns have reviewed the larger events of the week, which have consisted mostly of weddings. The Garde-Marx wedding at the hotel Portland Tuesday evening with its elaborate dinner following was given in detail Wednesday. The wedding of Robert Stuart Howard and Miss Louise Von Destinon and of Miss Helen Katherine Brigham and Norris B. Gregg, a beautiful wedding at the First Presbyterian church, both Wednesday evening, were reviewed the following day.

A good deal of local interest is felt in the nomination of Mr. Taft for the presidency among those who met him on his visit here last summer. Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Wilcox entertained Mr. and Mrs. Taft at their beautiful King's Heights home, and Mrs. Wilcox gave an elaborate reception for Mrs. Taft, inviting most of society that remained in town at that time.

Saturday, June 27, promises to be an unusually busy day at The Oaks. The management has given the day to the Visiting Nurse association, the proceeds to be devoted to the care of the sick and poor of Portland. The work of the association has become so heavy that an extra nurse has been added to the staff of nurses, three of whom are now employed. Miss Florence A. Baldwin is the superintendent, with Miss Mae Walker and Miss Lena Marshall, both graduates of the Good Samaritan hospital as assistants. For the afternoon there are being planned many children's parties, but the evening will be given over to the dancing matrons and maids. The patronesses for the dancing party are: Mrs. T. B. Wilcox, Mrs. H. W. Corbett, Mrs. W. S. Ladd, Mrs. H. C. Campbell, Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mrs. Richard Koehler, Mrs. Gordon Voorhies, Mrs. Whitney L. Boise, Mrs. R. P. Effinger, Mrs. James Laidlaw, Mrs. C. E. S. Wood, Mrs. James D. Hart, Mrs. John A. Shepard, Mrs. Frederick G. Sykes, Mrs. Joseph N. Teal, Mrs. William C. Alvord, Mrs. F. J. Bailey, Mrs. C. H. EVENTS OF THE WEEK

The entertainment and social in the Irvington club hall last Friday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Altar society of the Holy Rosary church, was a success. The program was excellent and was listened to by a large and appreciative audience. The opening number was a soprano solo by Miss May Collins. Her sweet voice and musical ability were highly appreciated. Miss M. Calligan followed with a recitation, in which she acted her part well. Her encore numbers were clever impersonations. Little Miss L. Caveline next gave an exhibition of difficult fancy dances, with an ease and grace that were charming. The Webber orchestra's selections were well received, and deservedly so. Miss Mollie Gregory gave some excellent readings that were received with rounds of applause. Judge F. Hennessy completed the program with a particularly interesting talk. Refreshments were served and a pleasant hour was spent. The accompanists for the evening were Miss E. Lightner and Miss E. Hoben. W. Sheehan and Fred Donnerbeg of the Holy Name society were ushers.
