

GLINN CONVICT'S SMOOTH GAME

H. Glenn Fools Hal D. Patton, Who Gets Him Behind Bars Quick.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., June 20.—H. Glenn, released from the penitentiary Monday, was arrested in Salem this evening, charged with forgery. The capture was made by Representative-elect Hal D. Patton, unassisted, who was a witness of Glenn's operations in this city last night.

Glenn completed a five-year term Monday for burglary, the crime for which he was convicted having been committed at Eugene. Glenn's operations were carefully planned. He was forged was that of H. B. Fleming, foreman of the iron foundry at the state prison. Shortly before closing time last night Glenn went to a telephone and calling up Patton, who is proprietor of a bookstore, said:

"This is Mr. Fleming at the prison foundry. There will be a man down in a few minutes with a check signed by myself. Will you please let me by letting him have the money?"

"In a few minutes Glenn appeared and got the money on the check.

"When the banks opened this morning Patton discovered the check was worthless. He went at once to the penitentiary and looked over the features of those recently released. Recognizing the picture of Glenn, he waited all day for him to appear. He caught him this evening about 7 o'clock. Patton followed Glenn to the grocery store of John Hughes and caught him in the act of passing an $18 check. In fact, Patton cashed the check for Glenn. Hughes then had Glenn placed under arrest. Sheriff Cullen was notified and the ex-convict reeled behind the bars of the Marion county jail after a short enjoyment of his freedom.

Other business men than Patton were tried in the same manner today by Glenn, but had been warned.

ITALIAN DISAPPEARS AND RETURNS AGAIN

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, June 20.—Your husband is in our hands. If you want to save him get $1,000 and leave it in the front yard.—Society.

Was the telegram received by Mrs. Antonio Androga, after her husband had been missing several days. This afternoon he returned as mysteriously as he had vanished and refused to disclose where he had been. He says that fear of death has sealed his lips and that he will finally tell the police where he was during his absence.

LEM WOON GUILTY

later by Detectives Tichenor and Jones. They found the men in rooms, the doors of which were barricaded and within which was a store of revolvers, knives, jimmies, daggers and guns as if in preparation for a big fight.

Immediately both factions in the Bow On tong, the old faction to which the case belonged and the new to which Lee Tai Hoi had been attached, began preparations for a legal battle. The Lee Tai Hoi faction, led by the immigrant, Ling Yee, secured Dan Malarky as special prosecutor. The defense was conducted by Chinese from Chinatown, including Frank Freeman and John Logan. This arrangement the ablest criminal lawyers in the state in the case and no stone was left unturned on the one side to hang the prisoners and on the other hand to save their necks.

The state had a strong case. The widow of Lee Tai Hoi positively identified Lem Woon. Lee, in his dying statement, accused Lem Woon of the murder and identified him as the man who had shot him. Three other Chinese identified Lem Woon as the one whom they had seen either in the house of Lee Tai Hoi or running from it after the shooting.

On the other hand, the defense had nothing excepting the allegations that Lem Woon was not the defendant's name; that he had never been called that, and that he had a brother who resembled him, and whose name was Lem Woon.

But from the dramatic moment when the widow of Lee Tai Hoi hobbled over to Lem Woon and pointing the stick that she carried at his face, declared excitedly she had killed her husband, there was little doubt which way the case was going.

Every move made by the state's lawyers, Mr. Malarky, Deputy District Attorney John H. Stevenson and J. J. Fitzgerald, was objected to by Mr. Logan and an exception was taken to every ruling of the court. It was an exceedingly hard fought battle on both sides.

That the general feeling among the law-abiding class of Chinese is one of satisfaction with the verdict, there is little doubt. The highlander element in the Bow On tong has been the cause of much uneasiness in Chinatown for more than a year and it felt that the hanging of Lem Woon proved effective in placing a quietus upon the warlike tendencies of the tong.

Both of the defendants in the case are small Chinamen, rather insignificant looking and are of the coolie class. They have been working at the cannery part of the year and joining the remainder. Both were active tong members.

today is reform that has for its object the election of United States senators by direct vote. It has five times been endorsed by the national house of representatives—three times when the house of representatives was Republican. It was indeed by a two-thirds of the states of the union and there is probably not a state in the union in which it would not be endorsed at a popular election and yet in spite of the record made in the house of representatives and by the various states, this reform is rejected by a seven to one vote in a Republican national convention.

"Here are seven propositions upon which the Republican party in national convention assembly, has retreated from the position taken by that party in congress from the position taken by the president.

"What have Roosevelt Republicans to say? The president has awakened a spirit of reform within his party, he has at least revealed to the world that there are reformers in the Republican party. Can that spirit now be quelled by a stand-pat convention? Millions of Republicans have enlisted at the president's call to arms and are ready to march forward; will they turn their banners and turn back merely because the president acquiesces in the sounding of a retreat?"

FIFTEEN DEAD WHILE OREGON AND SISTER STATES ARE COOL HUMIDITY PROSTRATES THOUSANDS.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Chicago, June 20.—Two million persons almost prostrated under a heat wave of 24 hours' duration, about 15 deaths since sunrise and scores of prostrations of infants, aged people and those who labor in the heat, comprise the weather record of Chicago. No relief is promised by the forecaster. An occasional reviving breeze from the cool lake is blown ashore by winds that reverse the air currents which brought heat winds from south and caught the oppressive temperatures.

These brief respites from exhausting heat are life-savers for suffering babies and the aged. The prediction for tomorrow is for continued warm weather with hot southerly winds. Park commissioners have prepared the city's pleasure grounds along the lake shore and in the suburbs for enormous crowds that are expected to seek relief from the torrid wave.

STEAMER IS WRECKED

merchandise, principally cork. Some were underneath the deck and beyond the comb of the hatch. The men caught on the ship all lived close by and with one thought as to their safety their wives, children and other relatives rushed to the pier head. The night was a fearful one. Men with their clothing ablaze, writhing in agony, dashed madly out on the deck. Instantly there was a concerted rush to the rescue and some cool heads sent in a fire alarm.

Doses Injured.
The firemen quickly responded, knowing that there must be some men in the flame-swept hold, and went aboard the ship. Time after time they were driven back by the blaze, which soon spread to all quarters of the ship. A dozen of the firemen fell victims to the dense smoke.

The longshore gang was made up of white and colored laborers, and most of them were unknown to each other except by number. When the explosion occurred they were scattered about and spread out over a wide area, and every person within a radius of 25 yards was caught in its path. Scores of men after recovering from the first shock of the explosion, rushed to the rescue. Repeatedly the workmen plunged into the gangplank trying to save their companions, and in several instances they were successful.

Edward Mooney, a stevedore, was the hero of the hour. He was on the deck of the liner when the first terrific explosion occurred. Mooney saw a dozen or more of the men in the flames and he had no time to think of his own safety. He realized at once that there must be other men who had not been so fortunate as to escape. The boss stevedore ran over to the hatchway which was belching flames and smoke like a volcano and sprang into the fiery furnace to save his life. Onlookers cheered when in an incredibly short time Mooney reappeared carrying the new to which he had been rescued. It was a feat of heroism such as is seldom witnessed. He carried out 10 living and three dead.

Finds the Bomb.
Captain Wells of the tugboat A. A. Churchman, swung his vessel alongside and got aboard the burning steamer. He found the bomb and found a tin box five and a half inches long which the frayed ends of wires were connected. He took the bomb up to the deck where the fire captain forced him to surrender it, saying that it was part of the cargo and that he would not let it go into the hands of the fire. The German consul, when the coroner looked over the remains of Henderson and Butler he found them mutilated by heavy metal slugs, which obviously were contained in the bomb. The 80 other longshoremen were either struck by splinters or were cut and bruised.

Superintendent Shell of the line said: "I cannot account for the explosion. It was not caused by spontaneous combustion, I am sure, and there was nothing of such a nature in the cargo; that is, the listed cargo, which would cause such a terrible explosion. The police are rigidly continuing their investigation. Tugs and fireboats pumped so much water into the Arendia that it is now resting on the river bottom with only about 10 feet of freeboard showing."

BURTON TO READ FROM MONSIEUR BEUCAIRE

Well Known Essayist and Litterateur to Be Heard Here Saturday.

Dr. Richard Burton, who is to give a dramatic reading of Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire" Saturday evening, June 27, at the Unitarian chapel, has had in New England and the middle northwest a reputation as a man of letters for many years. While this appearance will be his introduction to Portland he has previously given lecture courses at the California universities. At Seattle, June 17, he delivered the commencement address at the University of Washington.

Dr. Burton held for some years the chair of English literature in the University of Chicago, accepting a similar position at the University of Minnesota in 1898. His teaching work was interrupted by a year's service at the publishing house of Lippincott & Co., reading and passing upon all manuscript submitted to them for publication, until the lure of the classroom soon called him back, where his popularity is attested by the fact that although his lecture-room accommodates 200 students, the demand for his courses—altogether a popular one—has at times assumed the proportions of a riot.

Dr. Burton is known not only as a teacher and a public lecturer, but as an author as well, having put forth a number of volumes of both poems and essays.

An interpretative reading of "Monsieur Beaucaire," which he is to give in Portland has been received by eastern audiences with tremendous success. In Buffalo the Commercial had this to say of him: "His fine voice and sympathetic interpretation made his rendering altogether delightful, and the fact that he was able to hold an average audience spellbound throughout so simple and quietly moving a story was an evidence of his real power."

JAMES "T." AND JAMES "S."

The following communication was received from Corvallis today by The Journal. There may be some ulterior motive in the writer's effort to get it in print—nevertheless, here goes:

"No, James S. Sherman of New York is not James T. Sherman of Sitka, Alaska, as incorrectly reported by a morning newspaper. Of course, everybody knows that typographical errors sometimes occur in large newspapers (with small circulations) and for this minor mistake we must blame the printer. No, friend, 'James S.' is correct, not 'James T.' Now all ye wise paragaphers turn loose ye dogs of journalism."

MAYOR VETOES BREWERY LAW

Holds Ordinance Might Be Used to Evade the City Charter Provisions.

Contending that the ordinance passed by the city council at its last meeting might be used by designing persons to evade the provisions of the city charter, Mayor Lane has vetoed the measure passed defining manufacturers of malt liquors.

This ordinance was passed without a dissenting vote and was understood as a protection to the Weinhard brewery which has so far escaped the wholesaler's tax. The state law prohibits wholesalers from selling liquor within 400 feet of a public school and inasmuch as the Weinhard brewery is across the street from the Atkinson school the measure was popularly supposed to be aimed so as to protect the brewery. The text of Mayor Lane's message follows: "I return herewith ordinance No. 17960 not approved. This is an ordinance which defines and prescribes a license fee for manufacturers of malt liquors.

"This ordinance if it becomes a law it seems to me would operate to give countenance to the sale of malt liquors within the distance from public school buildings which is prohibited by the city charter, and might be used by designing persons to evade its provisions in that respect.

"If it is the intention to secure additional revenue from selling liquor within the distance from public school buildings which is prohibited by the city charter, and might be used by designing persons to evade its provisions in that respect.

"I refer the ordinance to you that you may look further into the matter."
