During the month of May a further decrease was shown in the consumption of beer in the United States. During the period tax was paid by brewers ou 4,967,875 barrels of beer, a decrease of 503,485 barrels from the corresponding period a year ago. This compared with a decrease of $3,003 barrels in January, 198,953 barrels in February, 508,569 barrels during March, and 102,296 barrels for the month of April, 1908, compared with the same period in 1907. For the first five months of the year the decrease in beer consumption reached a total of 1,293,497 barrels. The largest decrease thus far this season in beer consumption was in March, when the number of barrels of beer consumed was showing a greater decrease by 6,111 barrels over that shown last month. This was due entirely to climatic conditions.

The great decrease in beer making means that much less demand for hops. Nowadays the average brewer will use one pound of hops to each barrel of beer, thus showing that the brewers used 1,293,497 pounds of hops more in 1907 than they did this year. As there are about 180 pounds of hops to each bale the decrease in consumption is somewhat startling.

**Rop Production Meavy**. During the month of May a further

While the consumption and make of beer has shown a heavy decrease of late, the production of hops is still unusually heavy; in fact, the prospects now are that there will be twice as many bales of hops grown this season as will be needed. There is still an unusually heavy carryover of 1905 and 1907 hops and it is estimated that of the past two years there is a sufficient number of bales remaining unconsumed to tide the brewers over for one year at least. With this great amount of hops available for brewing and with decreased consumption of beer staring them in the face, it is quite unlikely that brewers will centinue to call for so many bales of hops as they have in recent seasons. Hop Production Meavy. recent seasons.
Instead of diminishing the decrease in beer consumption is increasing each month and with hot weather now on in the east it is likely that another disappointing record will be shown from the standpoint of the maker and hop producer.

Hop Sales Are Mominal.

Eop Sales are Mominal.

At the moment there is but a nominal trade in the local hop market, and even this only at very low prices. Dealers say they have no orders to buy and about the only business available at the moment is in contracts and actual trade in these is not nearly so heavy as some interests would have the producer believe.

The New York Producers' Price Current gives the following view of conditions in its latest issue:

"The market has continued inactive the past week in all sections with very little demand from either merchants or exporters. One small sale of Sonomas is reported on the local market around 7½c here, otherwise we hear of no transactions. There is general com-sonomas is reported on the local marge around 7 ½c here, otherwise we hear of no transactions. There is general complaint that business with brewers is yery duff, and that the brewers themselves are also complaining of a continued and the complaining of a continued falling off in beer sales. Cropnews continues unchanged. Favorable weather in New York state has continued, and the crop is in excellent shape, with everything politing to a good crop. A little vermin was reported, but this has since disappeared. The weakness noted in 1907 state hops continues, and the good crop outlook undoubtedly has caused more anxiety to clean up the old stock. Favorable weather is also reported from all coast sections, and the vins is growing rapidly, and promises an average growth. Mail reports from England also continue good, with the crop looking well. Continental reports are the same, so practically the world's crop is in good shape at the present time."

Chinook Salmon Prospects Good

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Astoria. Or., June 24.—During the past week the fishing situation shows signs of improvement, as there has been a good run of bluebacks. Old fishermen and cannerymen agree that a good blueback year means a good chinook year, and the history of canning proves it to be true. As the flood is now rapidly subsiding and warmer weather is near a big run of fish is expected in about 10 days or two weeks.

Arrangements are again being made to fit up the motor schooner Erie for a deep sea fishing cruise off the bar. She will be equipped in a much better form than when she went out the last time. A new and much larger trawi will be tried this trip. Experiments have proved that this kind of fishing can be made a financial success.

PORTLAND LIVESTOCK RUN.

Portland Union Stockyards, June 24.

Receipts were liberal in all lines of the local livestock market today. Demand for sheep is quite healthy and prices are being maintained as quoted yesterday, even though arrivals for the day are quite heavy. In all 1,630 head arrived, compared with 300 a year ago, 500 two years ago and 3,384 for this same day in 1905. Hastern buyers have been such liberal purchasers in the local market that prices are seemingly at the bottom and a geaction is soon due.

Cattle market continues unusually dull with the run good during the 24 hours. Receipts were 385 head compared with 100 for this same day a year ago, 275 in 1906 and 74 in 1905. No sales are being reported above $1, even on the best lots of steers. Hog market is steady with the run showing a total of 215 head during the past 34 hours. New York, June 24.—The stock market was very dull today but the little professional trading shown was inclined toward the bullish side. Copper shares were strongest and led the list today. Anaconda was most eagerly bought and forced the price higher in order to equalize the sharp decline of yesterday, due to the reports of a fire in the mine. The regular dividend on Ontario & Western was declared but this had been expected and the announcement had no effect whatever on today's market. Pennsylvania likewise declared its regular dividend. London was firmer and generally higher for American shares. generally higher for American shares.

Owing to the circumstances of the case and upon the recommendation of the district attorney, Judge Wolverton let Calvin off without a jail sentence when he pleaded guilty in the United States court this morning.

Until brought to Portland by a deputy United States marshal, Morris had never ridden on a railroad train, had never seen a steamboat, had never even seen and didn't know there was such a thing as street cars.

His Lips Never Smacked.

His Lips Mever Smacked. And furthermore, Morris Calvin, Crook county, Oregon, has never been kissed. Owing to this fact he has become known as Oregon's unsophisticated man. Until last night Morris had never seen the inside of a jail, had never eaten in a restaurant, had never heard the rumble of a wagon on paved streets, had never seen an automobile nor did he know there was such a thing as a bicycle.

He had heard of city skyscrapers, to be sure, but he thought they were something that floated about high in the Morris has never been inside of a the-

And the thousands and one other forms of amusement which are afforded the people of a city are all new to Morris.

But in spite of all the fascinations of a great city, Morris slept in a cell at the county iall last night. And his dreams weren't of music and dances and beautifulfy sowned women and the buzz of automobiles. But instead his fancies were far away in his old home country in Crook county, and the dreams were of green valleys and mountains and cattle and horses and of the people he has known all his life, and who are natural and more to his liking. Eas Good Record Otherwise.

Eas Good Ecord Otherwise.

Morris is 22 years old. He lives with his father and mother and has never been in trouble before. All his life has been spent on the range and he had no anticipations, no longings for the city. He knew not of the city, nor did he care, and he was happy.

But last Valentine's day Moris got hold of a funny valentine. And poor Morris fell from grace.

District Attorney McCourt stated to the court this morning that with the exception of the valentine incident, the defendant had always been on his best behavior. Since he was a boy, he said, Morris has worked hard and taken care of his family. During that time he has accumulated nearly $2,000 in cash and a bunch of horses and cattle.

Owing to these facts the young man, though he claimed ignorance of the law relative to sending obscene matter through the mails, was let off with the $200 fine and without a jail sentence.
