POOR CHERRIES IN MAJORITY

Weather Conditions Cause Early Fruit to Come in Quite Bad Shape.

Thus far the present season there has been great disappointment over the quality of cherries in this market. Early varieties have been almost useless for market purposes. Most of the receipts have been of very small size; very poor color and mild taste. Few of them have shown the usual first-class keeping qualities of the cherries that Oregon is famous for.

How to account for this is a mystery to the trade, unless weather conditions during the past erratic spring can be held guilty—and whenever nothing else can be found the weather is always sure to receive more than its share of the blame.

However, climatic conditions were such this spring that cherries could not mature properly. When the time came for the blossom to go into the fruit it was the weather conditions that caused a large loss at the start. For awhile the fruit grew in fine shape. Then all at once cooler weather came on and checked its growth suddenly. Then again a hot spell came along and began to ripen the fruit too fast; this condition being followed again by warm weather and then vice versa.

Every single one of these sudden changes in climatic conditions brought about the downfall of a certain amount of the cherry crop. When the time came for the fruit to ripen it began to fall in large numbers from the trees, and the big bumper crop that so many had predicted turned out to be a very ordinary affair after all. To some extent these big crop reports came from the cannery men, who by this means wanted to impress upon the growers that prices should be lower.

Selfish in Their Estimates.

That these reports of heavy cherry productions were spread by the cannery men for the sole purpose of bringing down the price ideas of the growers is a certainty. All of them wanted to buy supplies as cheaply as possible and by talking a heavy crop wherever they went they hoped to accomplish their purpose.

While it is quite possible that Oregon will produce quite a fair crop of late cherries, it is now a certainty that the early fruit will show but small volume and its quality will generally be such that satisfactory market values will be unobtainable. Some first-class Royal Anns are now being received from The Dalles and from a few sections of the Willamette valley, but arrivals in general cannot be marketed over 4c a pound. Kentish cherries are beginning to come to market and they are thus far finding but little demand because of the press of other fruits and the cool weather. Present arrivals are quoted along Front street at 4@5c a pound. For first-class Royal Ann cherries, packed in small boxes, the price obtainable today by Front street sellers ranges between 75@80c.

For first-class strawberries there is quite a good demand along Front street at this time. However, good strawberries are scarce and prices are holding quite stiff, although ordinary and poor quality is being sold at prices that would make the growers weep were they to see the transactions. However, their seeing will be believing when the weekly returns are received.

FEWER EGGS ARE COMING.

What Dealers Say of Conditions in the Local Market at This Time.

"Eggs do not seem to be coming in as freely as they were, and the market is firmer. It is likely that with lighter receipts prices will advance. Get your eggs to market while they are fresh. There is lots of complaint as to quality these days. Butter is steady and unchanged. Poultry has had a better week with, a very fair demand for hens and a large demand for springers, especially if they are of good size. Spring ducks are in large supply and dull. We look for a very good demand for hens and springers the coming week. Veal has been in fair supply only, but the demand is rather light, and it takes best grade to bring quotations. Pork is plentiful and in poor request and at lower prices. Potatoes are plentiful, and prices on the same are lower."—Everding & Farrell.

BRIEF NOTES OF TRADE.

New York, June 27.—The list opened steady and after opening strong lapsed into dullness and remained so until the last hour, when a general recession took place on profit-taking sales. The leading issues were advanced but they did not hold however.

It is said that the Rock Island company's financial affairs have been adjusted and that the various rumors of an adverse are without foundation.

The funeral will be held from the Baptist church at Brush Prairie at 10:30 tomorrow, with interment in the Brush Prairie cemetery. He leaves a wife and four children.

The light of day has not been shed on the original draft of the Declaration of Independence for five years, and there is no likelihood of its being placed on view until 1928.

TAFT GUEST AT SAGAMORE HILL

Luke Wright, Also, While Group of Trust-Busters Just Happen Along.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Oyster Bay, L. I., June 27.—William H. Taft was greeted by a big crowd of the citizens of the "summer capital" when he arrived this morning to spend the day with President Roosevelt. He waved to them when they cheered, and when cornered by the newspaper men smilingly posed for his photograph. Then he shook hands with at least 200 people before he started for Sagamore Hill.

Taft declined to discuss politics and said that he had no new information regarding the selection of a chairman for the national committee to manage the campaign.

General Luke E. Wright, the new secretary of war, who succeeds Taft in that office, was with him and will be in conference with the president much of the day. William L. Ward, national committeeman from New York, also was in the party.

A little flurry was caused by the arrival of a delegation of "trust busters" and reports are not lacking that things ominous to "malefactors of great wealth" and "corrupt and illegal combinations" are happening. In this party were Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel for the department of justice; United States District Attorney H. L. Stimson of New York; Lincoln J. Steffens, the great exposer, and Robert Bridges, assistant editor of Scribner's Magazine.

GAVEL AT DENVER IS FOR CLAYTON

Alabaman Favored by Bryan and All Leaders—Bell for Temporary.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Denver, Colo., June 27.—Mayor James C. Dahlman of Omaha, who arrived here this afternoon as the representative of William J. Bryan, confirmed the report that the Nebraskan prefers Theodore A. Bell of California and Henry D. Clayton of Alabama for the two chairmanships of the convention.

Dahlman declared that Bryan has no choice in regard to the vice-presidential candidate and intimated that no hint would come from Lincoln regarding the nomination.

He said that the last platform of the Nebraska state convention probably would be adopted so far as it applies to national issues and added:

"I suppose it will contain an anti-injunction plank that really means something. There will probably be strong planks favoring an actual revision of the tariff and control of corporations."

Mayor Dahlman will represent Bryan at the meeting of the sub-committee which will make the preliminary arrangements for the convention.

It is stated on the best authority that Clayton will be the permanent chairman and Bell the temporary chairman. It is understood this is desired by the leaders, in view of the long service in the party and the prominence of Clayton.

Sketches of the Slated Ones.

Henry De Lamar Clayton, who is expected to be the permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention, has been a member of the Democratic national committee since 1888. He was elected to congress from the Third Alabama district in 1897 and has served continuously since that time. He was a presidential elector in 1888 and 1892. He served as United States attorney for the middle district of Alabama from May, 1893, to October, 1896. His home is at Eufaula, Ala.

Theodore Arlington Bell is the new leader of the Democracy in California. Bell was the candidate of the Democratic party for governor of his state in 1906 and made a stirring campaign on the issue of driving the Southern Pacific railroad from politics in California. It was upon this issue that Bell attained his leadership of the party. Bell was born in Napa county, California, July 25, 1872. He was admitted to the bar July 25, 1893, and served as a member of congress from the second California district from 1903 to 1905.

RANCHERS USE RANGE OF INDIAN RESERVE

Government Representatives Seize Stock and Suits Will Follow.

The government has recently had trouble with ranchmen living in the vicinity of the Klamath Indian agency whose cattle and horses have been ranging on the reservation. As a result several of these men are to be prosecuted by Uncle Sam. Representatives of the government at the agency have corraled several bunches of the cattle and are now arranging, through the district attorney's office in Portland, to file suit against these violators of the law.

The treaty between Uncle Sam and the Indians was signed at Klamath lake, October 14, 1864. J. W. Perit Huntington and William Logan, commissioners of the United States, represented the government when these articles of agreement were entered into relative to the land on the summit of the Cascade mountains.

Three tribes of Indians took part in the transaction. Some of the names of the chiefs and headmen of the Modocs, the Snakes and the Klamaths, all of whom signed the treaty and whose names appear in the statutes of the United States, are as follows:

Keint-poos, Chuck-e-i-ox, Kile-to-ak, Mo-ghen-kas-kit, Blow, Le-lu, Poo-sak-sult, Che-nult, No-ak-sum, Mooch-kat-allick, Boos-ki-you, Toon-tuck-to, Ski-a-lic, Ta-tet-pas, Muk-has, La-lake, Chil-o-que-nas, Kile-to-ak, Sky-te-ock-et and Ya-hooskin.

EDDIE, OUR HEARTS GANG WITH THEE

The following appeared in today's Spectator:

"The Journal lost a valuable man this week when C. Edward Hogue, the clever telegraph editor of my highly interesting contemporary, resigned to go to San Francisco to become manager of the United Press office in the Bay City. Mr. Hogue has had a deal of journalistic experience, and knows all of Oregon as intimately as he does his own home. Aside from being a good telegraph editor, Mr. Hogue was a popular one, which is rather unusual. Everybody in a newspaper office knows that the news editor and telegraph editor are in an iron-clad combination to keep everything good and readable out, and print only a lot of uninteresting stuff about conventions and things that do not matter. Mr. Hogue takes the place of F. W. Bell, who will have charge of the Portland office of the United Press, while R. Gittings, who has been doing capital work as the coast editor of the Journal, becomes telegraph editor."

PROSPEROUS ERA IN MARSHFIELD

Hotels, Electric Lines and Street Pavements Are Some of Improvements.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Marshfield, Or., June 27.—The atmosphere is changed with prosperity on Coos Bay. Ground was broken for the Chandler hotel, a $75,000 structure, this week, and a force of men is now at work. The building is under contract by a Portland firm.

The laying of asphalt on the business streets was begun this week. The contract for the paving has been let to a street-paving firm of Eureka, Cal. The teams arrived overland, and the men, steam rollers and paving material, by the steamer Eureka. It is the first permanent street-paving ever done in Marshfield.

Bonds have been authorized for the building of a $50,000 high school and additional public school buildings, and the contract is to be let within 30 days. A new free ferry-boat to connect East Marshfield, across the bay, will be installed this summer. The building for a new sash and door factory has been erected and the machinery is being installed.

The Welch, Mangan & Custer corporation has been formed to take care of the fish and prepare them for market. The dry heat process will be used. Salmon and other fish of the bay will be handled at a plant now being constructed at the Gridiron wharf. The deep-sea fish will be handled at Sunset bay. Offers have already been made for the entire output.

Negotiations are being closed for the transfer of the Libby mine property, involving over 1,500 acres. The prospective owners are Chicago people and it is their purpose to not only work the mines to full capacity, but to develop the land now laying idle.

The big Smith mill is getting well under operation, cutting as high as 275,000 feet in each shift of 10 hours.

Work is in progress on the Coos Bay Electric & Terminal Railway company's new line.

A new pavilion, stables and grandstand are being erected at the race track in preparation for the biggest fair ever held west of the Coast range mountains.

Every arriving boat, both from Oregon and California ports, is loaded to its capacity, and the overland stages are crowded. There is a growing demand for houses to rent and inquiry for real estate and business openings, and a general air of confidence and progress prevails.

UNIVERSITY ASSURED OF SOLID SUPPORT

Methodists Pledge Themselves at Banquet Given President Homan.

"High Points at the General Conference," was the subject of an address by Dr. Fletcher Homan, new president of Willamette university, at a banquet and reception last night in the Commercial club banquet hall, given in honor of Dr. Homan by about 20 prominent ministers and laymen of the Methodist church.

After telling his hearers some of the more important matters that came before the recent general conference of the Methodist church at Baltimore, Dr. Homan directed his remarks along the line of educational work, with especial reference to what is being accomplished by the Methodists. He spoke of the fine work that has been done by Willamette university, and predicted that the university would soon be ranked as one of the leading denominational institutions of learning in the country.

Dr. Homan asked for the support of the Methodists of Oregon in building up the university, which was enthusiastically pledged to him. He pointed out that, because the institution had not been endowed by any rich philanthropist, it became more than ever the duty of all Methodists to support it.

Nearly all of the Oregon delegates who attended the general conference were present last night and most of them made verbal reports of their impression of the work of the Baltimore conference. Those who spoke and their subjects were as follows:

"The General Conference as It Appeared to an Onlooker," Rev. W. H. Heppe, D. D.; "The Trend Toward Diocesan Plan," Rev. B. F. Howland, D. D.; "The General Conference and the West," Rev. W. B. Hollingshead; "Impressions of the General Conference," Rev. J. W. McDougal, D. D.; "Personal Influence of the General Conference," Rev. D. R. Rader, D. D.; "Inspirations of the General Conference," B. Lee Paget.

SHOOTS WOMAN, THEN CUTS OWN THROAT

With one tremendous slash of his razor, John White, colored, tried to end his life, but instead of dying he lies on a cot in St. Vincent's hospital, and will almost undoubtedly recover to face a serious charge, that of shooting his landlady, Mrs. Gus Traverse, last evening. She is also colored.

White cut his throat from ear to ear, but somehow missed the jugular vein, and thus escaped death. Had his razor cut a fraction of an inch deeper he would have lost his voice for life.

White has been living in the Traverse house for some time, Traverse being a Pullman porter who comes no nearer than Pendleton. It is said that the quarrel between the woman and her lodger was caused by her telling him he must leave the house for good. He shot her in the wrist and then beat her over the head. She fled from the house, and White turned into another room, lay down upon the bed and slashed his throat. Taken to the hospital in the Red Cross ambulance, their wounds were soon dressed by Dr. Zeigler.

MIZPAH CHURCH TO GIVE SCOTCH SOCIAL

Members of the congregation of Mizpah church, Mary and Powell streets, have completed arrangements for the Scotch social which will be given in the church parlors next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The program will be unique and will be thoroughly flavored with Scotland and things Scottish. Costumes from the land of the thistle will be worn, the bag-pipe will be heard and other interesting Scottish features will make up the evening's entertainment.

NEW EFFORT TO GET THAW OUT

Meanwhile, the Slayer Is as Comfy as Anyone in Jail Can Be.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27.—Harry K. Thaw's counsel today made another effort in their desperate fight to save the young millionaire from confinement in the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane, by obtaining a new writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of demanding an investigation of his mental condition by a jury.

The order was signed by Justice Morchauser, who recently decided, after hearing evidence, that Thaw was a dangerous paranoiac.

The new action is brought on the ground that Thaw, after he had been acquitted of murdering Stanford White on the ground of insanity at the time of the act, could not be legally restrained without a formal inquisition as to his mental condition at the present time.

The immediate effect of the writ is that Thaw will remain in the jail here, where he is very comfortable. He is occupying a part of the quarters of Sheriff Robert Chanler, the multi-millionaire member of the "400," who lives at the jail.

Thaw likes it so well here that his fear of returning to Matteawan increases daily.

Thaw declared today that he could convince any jury of his sanity.

NELLIE GIGGEY NOT YET FOUND

Longshoreman Saw Strange Girl Acting Queerly on Wharf; Sole Clue.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Bellingham, Wash., June 27.—Charles A. Giggey, father of Nellie Giggey, who yesterday left a note saying she intended to end her life, never left the Northern Pacific dock in South Bellingham, off which Nellie is supposed to have jumped, all day yesterday, and the search was continued without success until it became too dark last night.

Frank Knight, a longshoreman, who happened to pass the dock at an early hour yesterday morning, stated that he saw the girl on the dock, and passed by her. After passing, Knight noticed that she was acting queerly, but he did not question her. He walked along the dock for a hundred feet or more, and glanced over his shoulder, but the girl had disappeared, and he supposed she had climbed down a ladder into a boat, and he paid no further attention to the matter.
