THE WAY IT IS DONE

Each and every subscriber to any issue of The Journal will be entitled to vote for a contestant according to the length of time they pay in advance for their subscription. A schedule of votes allowed on every issue, for different periods, is published today. Every contestant should commence at once to hustle for subscribers to The Journal, bearing in mind that new subscribers count many more votes than old subscribers, for it is only through an increase in circulation for such a large outlay of cash and scholarships. The public will be kept advised by publication from time to time as to the standing of the different contestants and the votes to their credit. Instruction in canvassing or conducting your campaign for subscribers and votes will be given to any contestant who applies to the contest manager. For the purpose of awarding the scholarships and cash prizes, the field of The Journal has been divided into four districts, as follows: Multnomah county, Oregon; Willamette Valley (as far south as Eugene); Southern Oregon (all south of Eugene); Eastern Oregon. A liberal measure of votes is allowed for subscriptions to the semi-weekly edition of The Journal to favor contestants working in districts where the population is scattered. The voting schedule is so keyed and the field is so divided, that a contestant living in the country or on a rural route has an equal advantage with the contestant living in the city of Portland. The young people living in the country has the advantage over their city rivals; they enjoy a larger personal acquaintance. NOW THEY ARE DISTURBED. The candidate who at the close of the contest has the largest number of votes, irrespective of locality or district, will have first choice of all scholarships. The second choice will fall to the contestant of highest vote in the district which does not get the first choice. The third choice will fall to the contestant of highest vote in a district which does not get either the first or second choice. The fourth choice will fall to the contestant of highest vote

WALTON MUST GO BACK TO CELL

Man Who Shot Policeman Sentenced to Three Years in Prison.

Three years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed on Charles W. Walton yesterday afternoon by Judge Cleland in the circuit court on the charge of shooting Patrolman Olaus Nelson while engaged in an effort to hold up a streetcar on Willamette Heights. Motions for new trial and arrest of the conductor in the case, Judge Cleland before sentence was passed, and Walton's attorneys took the first step toward another appeal to the supreme court.

The streetcar affray took place the night of September 1, 1904, and Walton has ever since been known as the man who shot the policeman and was sentenced to five years for shooting the policeman and to 20 years for holding up the conductor in the case. Last month he was returned to the Portland jail in consequence of a new trial having been granted by the supreme court. Three justices tried him last month before a conviction was secured, and the jurors then recommended him to the mercy of the governor.

Henry St. Rayner and Dan R. Murphy appeared for Walton yesterday, St. Rayner making a new appeal. He pointed out the section of the constitution that declares the policy of the law to be the punishment of criminals and not vindictive punishment. He then referred to the history of the case and the disagreement of several juries on the question of guilt. He said that soon after Walton's first conviction 10 jurors united in asking the governor to grant a pardon. Walton has been in four years in prison, and has been a model prisoner. The credits to which he is entitled would have completed his original five-year sentence in three months had the case not been appealed.

The second attorney then referred to Walton's talents as a musician, saying that when he was sent to the penitentiary he played four instruments well, but now he is a finished performer on 14 instruments. He has organized three concert orchestras of from 20 to 27 pieces each and has trained them into capable organizations, according to the statements of the penitentiary warden. Walton stood up to receive the sentence. Judge Cleland said that he regarded the offense as a serious one and that Walton was fortunate not to be before the court on the more serious charge of murder. He said he believed the crime called for a substantial sentence, but he also thought the recommendation of the jury for clemency should be taken into consideration. He therefore fixed the penalty at three years in prison.

There is still a possibility that Walton may be tried a second time, if the charge of holding up the conductor of the car, but this is not probable. The conductor himself is gone and cannot be located. District Attorney Cameron will decide as to whether to bring Walton to trial on this charge, on which he was sentenced to 20 years, and which he tried on this charge he will get off with approximately seven years in all.

July 23d. Will you? DR. N. J. FULTON, NATUROPATH. I Am the Foe of Drugs of Drugs. I am the foe of drugs because familiar with their faults; have knowledge of their evil effects upon the human system, and am confident that the sum total of their results upon the constitution is at least 90 per cent beneficial. On the other hand, NATUROPATHY IS ENTIRELY BENEFICIAL. It is this because it is the cure of Nature, and Nature makes no mistakes. Some people wonder how I am able to cure disease without the employment of drugs, and I AM AWARED AT HUMAN CREDULITY.

LESS THAN HALF A DOZEN DRUGS ARE REALLY USEFUL. There are thousands upon the market every kind of wicked mixture, and poor unskilled persons make it possible for their sponsors to wax opulent in their manufacture. NATUROPATHY CURES AND LEAVES NO STING BEHIND. It is the master of all diseases. It is the cure that leaves the body pure and healthy; it does not impregnate the blood with poisons that live in the system until the body dies. I HAVE CURED HUNDREDS OF MEN AND WOMEN. I can cure you—if you will let me. No matter what your affliction, in justice to yourself you should at least consult me. There is no expense attached to this.

FIFTY THOUSAND NAVAL OFFICER DIES

Thomas Smeckmbs to Apoplexy.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Del Monte, Cal., July 4.—A stroke of apoplexy ended the life of Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas (retired) last night about 8:30 o'clock. The stroke occurred shortly after dinner. Admiral Thomas was proceeding from the dining room along the main hall of the Hotel Del Monte, in company with Miss Swinburn, daughter of Admiral Swinburn, when he fell prone to the floor. He was carried to his room, a distance of 150 feet, but life was extinct when he was laid on his bed. He uttered no word after he fell. Dr. Bowditch, Meriton, arrived a few moments after the stroke had occurred. He pronounced the admiral beyond all aid. The admiral leaves a widow, daughter, and one son, a Lieutenant on the battleship Kearsarge. The former were at the hotel with the admiral and his daughter's death was a severe shock to them.

Rear Admiral Thomas was second in command of the Atlantic battleship fleet on its cruise from Hampton Roads to San Francisco. On the arrival of the fleet at San Francisco, Admiral Thomas succeeded to the command on the retirement of Admiral Evans. He was in command of the fleet for five days at San Francisco, when he retired and was succeeded by Rear Admiral Sperry.

JURY PUZZLED OVER TESTIMONY (Continued from Page One.) Vance Information for $25 a claim. The indictment had charged an agreement between both Kribs and Rogers, for which Kribs was the defendant $800 according to the testimony. In regard to the testimony of Kribs, the court had instructed the jury that it was the jury's duty to believe the witness and it was for the jury to say whether the story told by him was to be believed. Kribs, who had testified, had discredited himself in his testimony by making contradictory statements. The court was divided whether that contradiction would discredit the truth of his story. It was agreed that the jury should be instructed to believe the statement made by Kribs and sworn to before Detective Burns prior to the indictment, could be used to show that Kribs had not taken the oath of the witness-stand as before the grand jury, and was not to be considered as evidence in the case at all. It was over these instructions and over the testimony of Dr. Twitchell, who had said that Burns says he waited all night many times after night, that the disagreement of the jury came about. The case was given into the hands of the jury at 10:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The jury after retiring and electing E. Allen as its foreman, took the case to the jury room. This ballot showed seven votes for conviction to five against. The second ballot showed five for and seven against, the fourth four for and eight against, the fifth two for and ten against, the sixth two for and eleven against, the seventh two for and ten against, the eighth two for and ten against, the ninth two for and ten against, the tenth two for and ten against, the eleventh two for and ten against, the twelfth two for and ten against, the thirteenth two for and ten against, the fourteenth two for and ten against, the fifteenth two for and ten against, the sixteenth two for and ten against, the seventeenth two for and ten against, the eighteenth two for and ten against, the nineteenth two for and ten against, the twentieth two for and ten against, the twenty-first two for and ten against, the twenty-second two for and ten against, the twenty-third two for and ten against, the twenty-fourth two for and ten against, the twenty-fifth two for and ten against, the twenty-sixth two for and ten against, the twenty-seventh two for and ten against, the twenty-eighth two for and ten against, the twenty-ninth two for and ten against, the thirtieth two for and ten against, the thirty-first two for and ten against, the thirty-second two for and ten against, the thirty-third two for and ten against, the thirty-fourth two for and ten against, the thirty-fifth two for and ten against, the thirty-sixth two for and ten against, the thirty-seventh two for and ten against, the thirty-eighth two for and ten against, the thirty-ninth two for and ten against, the fortieth two for and ten against, the forty-first two for and ten against, the forty-second two for and ten against, the forty-third two for and ten against, the forty-fourth two for and ten against, the forty-fifth two for and ten against, the forty-sixth two for and ten against, the forty-seventh two for and ten against, the forty-eighth two for and ten against, the forty-ninth two for and ten against, the fiftieth two for and ten against.

First Acquittal. The Booth case is the first of the so-called Heney indictments to have been lost to the government upon trial. Clarence Heney, who was charged with the assassination of William McKinley, has been dismissed as not being of sufficient weight to secure a conviction, but the first acquittal to come out of a full trial in the Booth robbery case. This is due perhaps to the fact that Mr. Heney, who was charged with the assassination of William McKinley, has been dismissed as not being of sufficient weight to secure a conviction, but the first acquittal to come out of a full trial in the Booth robbery case.

In the Booth case the government labored under the disadvantage of a change of heart on the part of its chief witness, Frederick A. Kribs. When before the grand jury, Kribs had sworn positively that he had paid Booth a check of $800 for the sole purpose of compensating him for advance information given to the agency of Booth and as a clincher said that he had never at any time secured any information from the defendant personally and did not know that he was a convict, as he supposed that he had done so.

The specific charge that he had made a contract with Kribs to furnish advance information to the agency of Booth and that Kribs could file on ahead of others, and in support of this charge Kribs swore before the grand jury that he had given Booth a check for $800 in payment of his services. Malarkey Flays Becker. Yesterday afternoon's session of the trial was enlivened by the continued onslaughts of the defense attorneys, assistant to District Attorney McCourt, during the closing of the latter to the jury, but the most interesting feature of the trial was the testimony of Malarkey. Malarkey had stated during his closing argument that he courted Becker from the time he was first questioned by the grand jury, and that at the same time he announced to the government that he would make any agreement except in return for a check of $800, and that he would not introduce new arguments in closing. He said that should Judge Becker do this he would insist on interrupting in the interest of his client. Once during the argument of Malarkey, Mr. Becker interrupted him, but was driven to cover with a fire of cross-questions out of which he floundered by refusing to answer. When his turn came, however, Judge Becker was bombarded by Malarkey until he grew restive and peevish and refused to answer further questions, saying that if Malarkey did not cease he would appeal to the court for protection. Malarkey countered by saying that if the judge did not want to answer his questions he would of course not ask them but he reserved the right to correct him and call him a liar. Judge Becker then misinterpreted the testimony. Accordingly he peevishly Mr. Becker continuing during the remainder of his address with demands that he read testimony, usually given on cross-examination, which controverted the points made by the attorney for the government. Judge Becker left for San Francisco on the midnight train.

SHAH'S TROOPS CONTINUE MASACRE AT TABRIZ

It Will Cease Only With the Death of the Last Revolutionist.

(United Press Leased Wire.) St. Petersburg, July 4.—A message from Tabriz today says that the shah's troops are rapidly overcoming the revolutionists and that the Cosaks will control the city fighting, pillaging and looting are still going on, however, and the end will come only when the revolutionists have been all killed. Last night was a night of terror. Drunken bands of Cosaks paraded the streets engaging in hand to hand fights with the revolutionists. The shah's troops have been unable to secure any control of the troops. The shah's commander has been shot and killed, but very few of his officers are able to get any consideration from the Cosaks.

When daylight broke today the city presented a terrible spectacle. The poorer section was in ruins and the streets were strewn recklessly about. No effort had been made to clean the city of its dead. Most of the main streets were deserted except for the moving bands of soldiers who went through the ruins of the houses setting loot. No quarter was given. The Cosaks refused to recognize the white flag and killed all revolutionists that had not fled from the city. The shah's troops will take over a thousand before the massacre has been finished. The shah's officials are exercising a rigid censorship of all news that goes out of the captured city, and it is hard to learn the exact state of affairs.

THIRD KIDNAPER ACCUSES LOREAL Charles Barns, Tony's Stepson, Corroborates Story Told by Rogers. (United Press Leased Wire.) Fresno, Cal., July 4.—A third kidnap case has been run to earth in the arrest of Charles Barns, a stepson of a California woman, who made a complete confession to Sheriff Clifton in regard to the kidnaping of Edna Domingue and implicated Rogers and Loreal. According to the Barns story the trio entered the house of the girl some six weeks ago, but at the last moment Loreal was taken ill with asthma, and while he is subject, and the plan fell through. Barns says he waited all night on the road for the appearance of his stepfather. Barns story agrees with that of Rogers in practically every detail.

WATER RIGHTS IN NEED OF GUARDS (Continued from Page One.) subject "conservatively" might have some show for consideration. The conservative action means letting in the Japanese and demands radical action, which it won't get. Weighing his "Merry Widow helmet," an enormous white headgear imported from Cairo, Egypt, Adam Dixon Warner of Los Angeles, known to California Democrats as "Silver Dick," is the center of attraction at the Brown Palace hotel today. He was announced upon his arrival that he was the advance guard of the California delegation to the Democratic convention. He made a striking figure in his "Merry Widow helmet" and in advertising purposes, and was immediately surrounded by newspaper and magazine photographers. Although he is not a delegate to the convention, "Silver Dick" declares he is "responsible for the most important present prominence in the Democratic party, and that he is here to see that the Bryan and Gray ticket is nominated. The first appearance of the Californians at the street today created a commotion. Many boys were inclined to be impudent, but their smiles which eliminated the merry smile which lay about the corners of "Silver Dick's" mouth. Women stared in awe and amazement at the remarkable head covering, which quite eclipsed the most artistic toupee and even the best politicians and business men stopped to look a second time and assure themselves that their eyes had not deceived them.

KERN COULD BE COERCED. Does Not Think Power of Injunction Should Be Abolished. (United Press Leased Wire.) Denver, Colo., July 4.—John W. Kern of Indiana, who has been in conference with William J. Bryan for the past few days, continues to declare he is not seeking the nomination for vice-president, as he does not want to place himself in the position of going after something he does not think he will get. Kern's position is that the vice-presidential contest had anything to do with his present position. Kern said the power of the injunction should be granted. Despite Kern's statement that he is working to prevent the nomination for the vice-presidency, his boomers are very busy.

TOM JOHNSON AT DENVER. Asks for Ownership, Initiative and Referendum Planks. (United Press Leased Wire.) Lincoln, Neb., July 4.—Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived here this morning and is conferring with William Jennings Bryan. Bryan's statement that he is asking for the insertion of a plank in the government platform declaring for government ownership of all public utilities. Johnson is making the plea on moral grounds. He also wants a plank for the initiative and referendum inserted in the declaration of principles to be adopted at Denver.

THOUSANDS LEAVE CITY FOR OUTING (Continued from Page One.) persons realizing the good time they had been anticipating for weeks. The lady who alone under paid but little attention to the merry-makers. Finally a young woman sat down beside her. "The dear old fourth," she said to the woman in black, "how I love it, and oh, what a good time I'm going to have today. In going out in the country to see all those dearest to me. Are you going to celebrate with friends?" The elderly woman shook her head slowly. There were tears in her eyes. "I'm going to spend my last day with my boy—my boy who is under guard. I say no more, and quietly sobbed, although trying to hold the tears back. She then pointed to a long, white pine box on a truck out on the station platform. "I'm so sorry," said the girl. "I didn't know." The lady carried thousands.

Hundreds of persons leaving on the morning trains went up the valley. Others went along the R. & N. for miles and miles, most of the day, however, going to The Dalles and other places within a radius of 100 miles. Many persons got left by the 8 o'clock Seaside train, although it left a few minutes late. They will catch the 10 o'clock train, which will leave at 10:30 o'clock. Those who are to be left in train never leaves the station without leaving some one behind. This afternoon will catch the evening train, which will leave at 7 o'clock. Those who are left this evening will go tomorrow morning. And so the trains all river boats coastwise-bound were crowded last night and today. All reservations on steamers leaving for Astoria last night were sold out three days ago. So, all in all, Portland is pretty well represented today along the beach resorts and throughout the northwest generally. Many persons took advantage of the two rest days coming together, and many men make longer trips than they would if the Fourth had come on any other day than Saturday.

Those who remained in the city—those who only about 20,000 left behind—were making a strenuous effort to have a good time, but in most instances they took down the Fourth. Those who had to work—there were really some who had to work today—worked and then took down the Fourth and quinine. The quinine made the ears ring and one could imagine that he was at the beach with all the happy ones. The whiskey did the rest.

HIGH WATER DRIVES OUT RIVER CAMPERS Several families living along the river bank in the north end of the fair grounds have been compelled by the high water to leave their homes and camp on higher ground. A report was made to the police that a bobo camp had been formed near the government building. Patrolman Larfield called forth, prepared to oust the tramps from the confines of the city without delay. But he found only peaceful campers who were anxious to leave and get back to their homes as soon as the stage of the Willamette will permit.
