

Summer Visitors at the Seashore.

SEASIDE, Or., July 4.—There was never more perfect weather than that which welcomed the Saturday and Sunday excursionists to Seaside this week. After the few days of rain the air was so clear and the sun so bright that it caused the ocean to take on a strange but beautiful blue. Old-timers on the beach say that they have never seen clearer days, and those who have a fancy for the color say that the shades which the sea takes on now are seldom seen. The sun has been especially fine and every night a great number of persons assembled on the front porches of the cottages or along the board walk to view the spectacle. Excursionists for the most part come to the beach for the primary purpose of seeing the ocean, and those who have come for that purpose during the last few days have had their desires gratified beyond all expectation. Eastern people who have never seen the Pacific, and persons from the interior who have seen no ocean at all, have marveled at the scene.

The three miles of board walk which now extends along the ocean front affords a great opportunity to look out over the sea and to become quite prominent during the winter the walk was extended up to the upper Necanicum bridge, and it is now possible to go to the beach on the board walk and return by the inland walk. Almost as soon as an excursion train gets in the crowd finds its way to the beach from and the parade on the walk begins. The active have a three-mile course of ocean front and salt air, and those less energetic inclined find a place to sit and look out at the ocean or watch the passers-by. The clear weather has made the board walk a very popular place. Large front porches are becoming quite a feature of the cottages, which front on the walk, and some of the porches are quite elaborately decorated. The pier and some part of the board walk near the Moore is brilliantly lighted with electric lights and some of the cottages have colored lights at their gates.

Fish From Pier.
There have been quite a number of pogies caught off of Pacific pier during the past week. The fish are very fine and catching them from the surf has become quite a fascinating pastime. There are any quantity of fish here beyond the pier breakers, but to get a line to where they are from the shore is quite difficult. The pier extends a considerable distance out into the ocean beyond the last breakers and from it a line can easily be dropped to where the fish are plentiful. The most successful fishermen use a heavy line weighted with lead and baited with clam necks. Pogies are a little more difficult to fish for than the surf later in the season. With a little practice, however, women and children become almost expert in the matter. The most popular things which makes the fishing so popular is its convenience. No long tramp over rocks or rough ground is necessary to get the supply in the ocean does not seem to diminish.

Bowling Fashinates.
Among the amusements at the beach, bowling holds an undisputed first place. As a matter of fact, the bowling alleys has become a rival of the postoffice. It is where the lost and found notices are posted and where the news of the day is talked over. Many have wondered why bowling still continues to amuse the beach crowds when it has nearly disappeared from the minds of the people in the city. Persons who never say more than "oh, well" in the city when they do of bathing in the surf, during the summer, enthusiasm during the summer. Games are played between the guests of the various summer hotels, between the guests of the seaside and Gearhart, Portland and Astoria, between the old and the new, and young and the old in fact, between all who play so long as it makes a game.

Pool's alleys at Seaside are starting on their twelfth season. They were built on the rails of the Astoria & Columbia River railroad were down, and when the Shell road was nothing but a well equipped summer party, the alleys through the entire season and they are the first place on the Shell road to open and the last to close. During the 12 years some very remarkable scores have been made. At the top of the record board is 70 by Mayo in 1907. This is the highest possible score at the cooked hot game. Even at this early stage of the season scores of 70 are chalked on the record board. The original alleys were brought here from Eugene by Pool brothers and were owned in that city by Frank Chambers.

The City of Canvas.
One of the features which Nicholas F. Sargent is planning to put in at the old Holiday place is a tented city similar to the great tent display at Seaside Beach, Cal. Tents will be provided and leased to patrons for the season. The tents will have all of the conveniences and accommodations of a cottage and attract many to the beach who prefer this method of living at the coast. Each tent will be provided with well equipped kitchen, sitting room and bedroom, with hot and cold water, electric lights and telephone. At the hotel Mr. Sargent will be able to supply the tent dwellers with prepared foods of all kinds and also conduct a delicatessen store. It is Mr. Sargent's plan to have a long street running through the canvas city and half of the tents on each side of the street. A number has already been unloaded on the ground and 25 new cottages are to be erected near the Seaside house by Mr. Sargent. For the most part people live in the cottages and take their meals at the hotel.

LONG BEACH AND VICINITY

Long Beach, Wash., July 4.—The weather here this week has been ideal. There has been a steady influx of people ever since the Pottermade has first sailed every day and from 20 to 30 to the population of North Beach. The visitors are scattered over the 14 miles of beach between Ilwaco and Ocean Park. Seaside and Long Beach lead the list of the stations for early arrivals. At Seaside a greater part of the cottages have been increased in fact, the hotel at that place has had guests for two weeks and plans to have a postmaster and merchant of the resort reports a good business, growing with bounds from day to day. During the winter Mr. Stratford found it necessary to move the postoffice into another building to make room for his growing and increased business. The new arrangement will be a convenience to the people of Seaside. The winter Mr. Stratford found it necessary to move the postoffice into another building to make room for his growing and increased business. The new arrangement will be a convenience to the people of Seaside.

At Long Beach everything is up and on the move. All of the stores around the depot are open and doing well. The crystal baths are running and Sylvian Hall will open on Saturday night. Most of the cottages on the beach front are occupied and both the Portland and Long Beach hotels have a good registration of guests. The amusements of Long Beach have been augmented by two moving galleries, a moving picture theatre. The bowling alleys are both doing their share to entertain the visitors and the sport is so popular here now as of old.

There have been a number of bonfires on the beach during the week. The great quantity of drift that was washed ashore during the winter promises to make this form of entertainment a last one. Horseback riding has become quite a pastime also. A number of parties have gone up the beach to Ilwaco and to the cranberry marsh. A number of persons have walked to North Head Light-house during the week.

Trip to North Head.
On Friday a party of guests from the Hackney cottage that made the trip to the North Head Light-house. The party went down by the beach road and returned by the old Ilwaco road, which goes up the gorge and over the hill called The Rocks. The old road is a hard one to travel but used to play an important part in the history of the beach before the railroad was built and when there were only means of transportation between Ilwaco and North Beach points. The Hackney party visited the Light-house and viewed the ocean from North Head. Those who made the trip were Miss Rita and Miss Emma Berry of Muscatine, Iowa; Mrs. Charlotte Hull of Portland; A. Hackney of Seaside and Ben Rybak of Portland.
