Every contestant should commence at once to hustle for subscribers to The Journal, bearing in mind that new subscribers count many more votes than old subscribers, for it is only through an increase in circulation that The Journal will receive returns for such a large outlay of cash and scholarship.
The public will be kept advised by publication from time to time as to the standing of the different contestants and the votes to their credit.
Instruction in canvassing or conducting your campaign for subscribers and votes will be given to any contestant who applies to the contest manager.

For the purpose of awarding the scholarships and cash prizes, the field of The Journal has been divided into four districts, as follows:
Multnomah county, Oregon.
Willamette Valley (as far south as Eugene).
Southern Oregon (all south of Eugene).
Eastern Oregon.
A liberal measure of votes is allowed for subscriptions to the semi-weekly edition of The Journal to favor contestants working in districts where the population is scattered. The voting schedule is so keyed and the field is so divided, that a contestant living in the country or on a rural route has an equal advantage with the contestant living in the city of Portland. The young people living in the country has this advantage over their city rivals; they enjoy a larger personal acquaintance.

HOW THEY ARE DISTRIBUTED. The candidate who at the close of the contest has the largest number of votes, irrespective of locality or district, will have first choice of all scholarships.
The second choice will fall to the contestant of highest vote in the district which does not get the first choice. The third choice will fall to the contestant of highest vote in a district which does not get either the first or second choice. The fourth choice will fall to the contestant of highest vote in the district which does not get the first, second or third choice. The remaining scholarships will be given out to contestants according to their standing, alternating between the districts.
The cash prizes will be given out similarly. He or she, however, will keep the cash commissions earned during the contest for new subscribers.

CAREER IN SCIENCE.

Excellent Opportunities for Young Men, but Not Much Money. The members of the Illinois State Academy of Science recently discussed the opportunities for young men to earn a living in various branches of science. On the whole they thought, the opportunities are excellent, though they offer nothing very great in the way of financial compensation.
John G. Coulter, the well-known professor of botany, said that the demand for trained botanists exceeds the supply. The most extensive employer of young botanists in this country is the United States department of agriculture. The bureau of plant industry of agriculture are not yet able to obtain all the men they need adequately trained in the various branches of botany.
There is a large field for botanists in the market for the standpoint of agricultural science.
Professor W. A. Noyes of the University of Illinois said that 25 years ago a large number of chemists were employed in the manufacture of iron and steel. Today chemists are required, not only in the manufacture of iron and steel, but also in iron foundries and factories of all kinds. About 8,000 chemists are now employed in the United States. Not long ago nearly all chemists here were engaged in teaching, while the majority of them today are working in industrial lines.
Dr. Bain, who is at the head of the Illinois geological survey, said that many railroads and mining and development projects are now being undertaken by private enterprises. This is a much easier way for geologists to get good places than it was a decade ago. It is difficult to find competent men in large establishments where steel, geological and other zoological workers. It is believed that the demand for trained zoologists will continue in the next decade.
The prospect is good that competent men of science will have better opportunities in the future than ever before to earn a comfortable living. Capable and industrious workers make a good living, but are rarely able to accumulate wealth. Probably men of science will continue to be content with relatively poor financial returns for their work.
