EQUAL CHANCES FOR ALL TO WIN

Country Contestants Have Same Show at Scholarships as Others.

Lloyd Henry, a farmer boy contestant, of Lafayette, starts out bright and early to land a scholarship and a cash award in The Oregon Journal's third annual contest.

Lloyd was born in Lafayette, Or., 17 years ago and has lived there ever since. He finished the grammar grade work in the public school and this June graduated from the tenth grade in the high school.

Lloyd has proven himself to be a fine athlete. He, in company with another boy, represented Lafayette High school in the track meet held in Corvallis this spring. Lloyd carried off second place in the high jump. His friend also received honors, thus the little school at Lafayette was brought to the front. Lloyd looks the athlete every inch. Tall, broad-shouldered and chested, and fine looking, he will win honor and favor wherever he goes.

Lloyd belongs to the well-known family of Henrys who have lived so long near Dayton, Lafayette and throughout the Willamette valley.

The Henrys are members of the United Evangelical church in Lafayette. Rev. A. A. Winter, pastor of the First United Evangelical church of Portland is an uncle of Lloyd and no doubt he and other Portland church members will do all they can to aid young Henry. Rev. J. Bowersox of Ockley Green is another friend of Lloyd, and Rev. Mr. Bowersox feels interested in The Journal contests since his little granddaughter, Jennie Bowersox, won out last year.

Professor D. M. Metzger and others of the Dallas college faculty are well known to Lloyd's family and they will be sure to aid this farmer lad in his laudable ambition to win a scholarship.

Lloyd works on his father's farm, and although he has entered the contest, he will have to help occasionally with the haying, as help is scarce this year.

Lloyd is a rustler and the day after he entered he spent canvassing. Lloyd plans to canvass broadcast, and he promises to make a run for whatever he chooses to select as a reward.

It should be borne well in mind that clever students in rural districts have an equal chance with city boys and girls to win scholarships and cash awards in The Journal's scholarship contest. A study of the conditions will show that the districts are so divided that the scholarships will be evenly distributed over the whole territory in which the work is carried on. The value of Journal scholarships cannot be overestimated. It will be seen that scholarships are valued up to $175. With a $150 cash award added the very snug sum of $325 is made. Add the cash commissions on all new subscriptions secured for the Daily Sunday and Semi-Weekly Journal and it will be readily seen that a similar amount is not earned by thousands of clever men in Portland today. Scores of smart boys and girls should be encouraged by their parents and friends to enter this contest, and they should be given hearty support.

The winning of a Journal scholarship will greatly stimulate students and give them a good idea of business. It will also fill them with confidence in themselves. The early experience will be very helpful to them in the future. If it were not for their advanced years many men and women would gladly take advantage of this grand opportunity given to all under 30 years of age.

DAIRY EXPERT GOES TO GRADUATE SCHOOL

Professor F. L. Kent, dairying expert at Corvallis Agricultural college, left last night for New York to attend a graduate school held annually by working educators in colleges of the country. The Oregon Agricultural college will be well represented, as Professor Kent will be accompanied by C. I. Lewis of the horticultural department, A. B. Cordley of the department of entomology and O. G. Simpson, newly-elected assistant in the dairying department.

The graduate schools held every year at some one of the prominent colleges have the support and assistance of the United States department of agriculture, and are attended by numbers of the government experts. Lectures are given and experiments made, and the lessons learned are applied in the work of the state schools. Oregon's professors hope to get much valuable information concerning the work over the country, and in turn will transmit some of the results of their own experiences. The departments to be discussed include dairying, horticulture, veterinary science, agronomy and animal husbandry. The Cornell session will be the third annual meeting thus held in this country.

While in Portland yesterday Professor Kent, who is president of the Oregon State Dairying association, conferred with Secretary Crissey regarding the next annual meeting date of the association.

Postoffice Clerks Happy.

There has been great suspense among the clerks at the postoffice for several days—ever since the annual allowance for the vacations of the mail carriers arrived.

The money which provides for the men in uniform 15 days' leave of absence away from the routine of delivering letters and papers and things got here from Washington last week. The clerks looked for their allowance at the same time. Day after day passed and no allowance. Postmaster Minto was getting worried, the lower clerk in the office was walking stiff as on pins.

But everything is all right now. The allowance—$1,500—arrived in Portland yesterday.

Country Club Decides to Include Poultry Exhibit During Fall Meet.

The Country Club and Livestock association decided yesterday afternoon to include a poultry display in the regular weekly program for the Pacific national meet here in September. It will be held under the auspices of the State Poultry association.

The question of holding a dairy product exhibit was taken up at length and while several of the committee favored a show, it was decided that the time was too short to prepare one this year, and the same decision was reached when the question of holding an industrial exposition or agricultural implement display was brought up. Some of the leading implement dealers of the northwest notified the association that would be glad to hang up valuable prizes if such an exhibit was held, but it was thought best to wait until the organization could erect permanent buildings to house each of these exhibits. The matter was gone into further, and at the next meeting arrangements will be made for the addition of the following permanent buildings to the equipment of the association for future annual shows. A poultry exposition building, dairy building, an apiary exposition building, for bees and honey, and an industrial exposition hall.

The following committee was appointed to urge upon President Josselyn of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, and General Manager J. P. O'Brien of the O. R. & N. to provide some adequate means of transportation of the crowds to the Country club tract during the races and livestock show this fall: H. C. Campbell, chairman; Dr. Henry Waldo Coe, Dr. Emmet Drake, E. L. Thompson and Tom Richardson. This committee is to call on President Josselyn and General Manager O'Brien, either today or tomorrow.

The street railway company will be asked to put in a loop from the Rose City Park line to the Montavilla line, so that cars may "loop in" and "loop out," to and from the race track; the O. R. & N. will be asked to assemble all available rolling stock in Portland for the week of the big meet, and to run special trains as often as possible from Fourth and Stark streets on the west side line to the Union Depot and out the O. R. & N. to the Country club. It is understood that the O. R. & N. is willing to give a five-cent fare for this trip, providing satisfactory arrangements in other respects can be made.

A list of more than a dozen concessions was presented at the meeting, but the committee decided to issue concession blanks and request that the concessionaire fill them out in proper form for action at the next meeting. Such spectacular concessions as the hippodrome chariot races held at Pasadena at the mid-winter fair each year, which have been offered to Portland, Strobel's aeroplane, and one or two other heavy feature attractions were turned over to a special committee on entertainment and amusement consisting of the following: Julius L. Meier, Chairman; Dr. Emmet Drake and Tom Richardson.

RAILROAD TO SHOW BEACH PHOTOGRAPHS

The O. R. & N. company will this week have a set of photographs taken showing scenery along the Ilwaco road, including the 10,000 foot tunnel under Fort Columbia. About 1,000 Portland people spent the Fourth at North Beach. There were also many guests from the inland empire. It is said the people of the interior are beginning to realize that here on the Oregon coast are some delightful summer resorts, and that they are easily accessible from Portland.

The O. R. & N. company is making a special effort this year to arouse the interest of inland people to the merits of the coast resorts. Special excursions, with tickets good for one or two weeks at the beeches, will be run in July and August by the O. R. & N. company, from Boise and Walla Walla.

"North Beach is the finest beach in America," declared John H. Scott, assistant general passenger agent of the Harriman lines, after a trip taken on the steamer Potter and the Ilwaco railway to that beach, where he spent July 4. "I have seen nearly all the beaches, and I believe the beach at Ilwaco beats the world. The route now offered by the O. R. & N. Co. is a great improvement over the old mode of travel between Portland and the beach. The Potter goes to Megler landing, the new dock at the terminus of the Ilwaco road, and there is plenty of water, so that it is no longer necessary to pay any attention to the tides. The new Ilwaco road is a beautiful route along the lower Columbia river, and the improved service is pleasing the traveling public immensely."

TONGUERS BAD AS CHORUS OF FELINES

Another complaint regarding the noise made by the Tongues of Fire devotees at Mount Tabor came to the county commissioners yesterday, this time from Father Brusseau, who lives in the outskirts of Montavilla, and says he is unable to rest peceably at night because of the din that comes from the tents of the Tonguers. He also made an appeal to City Attorney Kavanaugh to have something done to abate the noise.

The commissioners received a complaint several days ago from Dr. Chance that the Tongues of Fire had fenced in a portion of the county road and erected their tent on public ground, but the commissioners have taken no action. Mr. Kavanaugh said that he would have a policeman visit the grounds this afternoon and report on the situation, one thing to be determined is whether the city or the county has jurisdiction.

ELK HERD LEAVES FOR DALLAS, TEXAS

Representatives of Oregon lodges left last night over the Southern Pacific to attend the national convention of Elks, which meets next Monday, July 13, in Dallas, Texas. In the party were: Ralph E. Moody and Henry Blackman of Portland, John C. McCue of Astoria, and W. S. Levens of Baker City. Dr. Carleton Smith joined the delegation at Salem, Alex Sweek, representing the Portland lodge, left for Dallas by way of Denver last week. Governor Chamberlain, who had planned to make the trip, found it impossible to get away, as did his alternate, D. Solis Cohen.

Los Angeles is putting up a strong fight for the annual of 1909, and in case the California city wins out the Oregon delegation will make every effort to have the next year's delegates routed through Portland on their return east. Several thousand copies of the Portland Rose Festival souvenir book will be distributed by the Oregon delegation among the visiting ladies to the Dallas convention.

Astoria, Or., July 7.—The furniture firm of Charles Heilborn & Co. was adjudged a voluntary bankrupt in the United States district court. Pursuant to instructions Judge C. H. Page, as referee in bankruptcy, at once placed G. O. Morn in charge, pending appointment of a trustee.

CHLOROSIS

A Form of Anaemia Which Afflicts Growing Girls and Which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure.

There is a form of anaemia, or bloodlessness, that often afflicts growing girls, the medical term for which is chlorosis, or green sickness. It has been called the anaemia of development. It requires care and proper attention, as neglect may cause a life of unhappiness and suffering. There is also danger of consumption, especially if a dry, hacking cough is noticed. The disease is in the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are particularly well adapted to cure it. We have yet to hear of a case in which these blood-making pills have been tried without success.

Mrs. Martin Wells, of 433 Beldan avenue, Syracuse, N. Y., was cured by this treatment. She says:

"When I was about 15 years old I became all run down from chlorosis. I was pale, thin and weak. I had frequent sick headaches, which lasted all day and when I got up in the morning I often had dizzy spells. I had a backache all of the time, was without an appetite and could hold nothing on my stomach. My blood was watery and poor and I was troubled with palpitation of the heart. My people were afraid I was going into consumption.

"The doctor did me no good and then my mother bought some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took two boxes at first and gained in strength. I continued using them until fully restored to health. My system was built up and I haven't seen a day of sickness since."

Parents of girls who go into decline as they reach the period of development should not neglect the first warning symptoms, for the whole future health of the child depends upon the way in which the child passes this critical time. Nature needs some help in most cases and the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the most efficient that can be given. They contain no stimulant, opiate or narcotic, are absolutely harmless and cannot injure the most delicate constitution.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information, will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE PLAY

Heilig—Yiddish Players in "Gabriel"

By J. F. S.

After having witnessed the Yiddish players in "Gabriel" at the Heilig last night I haul down my colors. I surrender unconditionally. It is not within the province of the beaten to ask any favors whatsoever, but most humbly may it be suggested that next summer Messrs. J. White and J. Stone, managers, M. Spivach, stage manager, or even Miss Ida Rosenzweig, wardrobe, take a few weeks off and write a magazine article on the aims and methods of the Yiddish players. It might help to clear up a few things in the minds of some of us that at present we can't explain. We admit that we are dense but we are anxious to improve.

"Gabriel" is called the "Yiddish La Tosca," heaven knows why. I don't want to get into any argument about that, however. What particularly interests me is the man who stands half behind the scenes and reads from a big book. He reads continuously, occasionally repeating his words with haste and frantic emphasis. As he speaks a sentence it is repeated by the actors in the center of the stage. Sometimes they get it wrong and then the man with the big book advances out from behind the sheltering tree and waves his arms excitedly at them, while they begin all over again. If you were attending a rehearsal you would think the book was a prompt book and the man a prompter. You might imagine the members of the company to be trying out a play for the first time without even having gone over the scenes together. But of course that's clearly out of the question. Clearly Mr. Spivak or Miss Rosenzweig or someone will have to write that explanatory article.

There are eight characters in "Gabriel." There is Gabriel, an artist, played by J. White, and Gabriel's wife Dinah, played by Ida Blum. Gabriel has long, black hair, his clothes are peculiar and clearly he is a victim of the artistic temperament. He dances about wildly, and his kisses are like liquid fire. He is nimble on his feet and sings pretty well. Then there is Herzog Albrecht, played by J. Stone, a sort of Yiddish Donald Bowles, who wears a charming white suit and his black hair in a despairing tangle on his head. All through the first scene Albrecht is in deep despair. He moans and groans and implores the doctor to give him something. But the doctor laughs scornfully and leaves him.

Scene 2 gives us Chinkeh and Finkeh. Chinkeh is ravishing in a pink silk petticoat, a chemise and a hat with red plumes. Finkeh is the usual Hebrew character caricature, with a long black coat and a hat over his ears. Chinkeh's stage business is to walk along the street and bump into Adrian, advisor to the Herzog. After each of these encounters with Adrian—there are nearly a dozen of them through the evening, each led up to identically the same way—Chinkeh pummels Adrian, Adrian pummels Finkeh, and all three go off the stage lamenting to the time of the man with the book, whose voice drowns theirs as he reads from his scroll.

There are more scenes—many of them—and several acts besides. But the first two give you a good idea of what happens in the "Yiddish La Tosca." You'll know as much after seeing them as though you saw all. And the lure of the roof gardens proves almost irresistible after act 2.

Marquam—Vaudeville.

Two large houses saw the new bill at the Marquam yesterday and there was no question as to the pleasure afforded them by the acts provided by Pantages. Quartets are ever popular, and the Rialto quartet, billed the headliner for this week, was encored until it couldn't sing any more. All four have excellent voices and their songs were good enough to assure the interest of the summer crowds.

Electra has the scientific act, it being a demonstration of the things that can be done with electricity outside of the better known uses of the power, while Glenroy and Bunnell furnished good entertainment with their sketch, "Married Life." Wells DeVeaux plays a number of musical instruments with unusual skill and Atwood and Terry are comedy acrobats. The bill contains a deal of good entertainment.

The Oaks—"The Head Waiter."

If you want laughter and song and dance, pretty costumes, new stage settings and an enjoyable evening's entertainment, you can find all of these by visiting the presentation of "The Head Waiters," the screaming Ward and Vokes comedy, which is being served to the people at The Oaks this week by the Allen Curtis Comedy company.

Last night was the first night for "The Head Waiters," and they made a hit with the largest Monday night audience of the season packed into the airdome. With the action set in a rathskeller, the two billionaire tramps, Harold and Percy, represented by Arthur Clamage and Herbert Lindley, are given every opportunity to serve all kinds of comedy.

Charles Figg, in his song, "Dreaming," illustrated by tableux, was one of the features of the evening, and won merited applause. Albert Leonard, with his original dances, Miss La Ponte with her songs and Winifred Green with her rendition of "Lanky Yankey Boys in Blue," all were more than well received by the audience.

"The Head Waiters" will be presented during the entire week and on Sunday night at The Oaks.

Lyric—"A Chorus Girl."

An entertaining and summery farce, "The Chorus Girl," is being given by the Blunkall-Atwood company at the Lyric this week. The plot is based on the old familiar story of what a tangled web we weave, etc., but it is novel and amusing in many ways. Ervin Blunkall plays the part of Hummingtop in a bright manner, Joan Storm is the wife who brings her mother home and incidentally stands sponsor for a few mother-in-law jokes, and Lillian Atwood is the chorus girl. The entire company acquits itself in a manner to thoroughly please the audience. There is a lot of entertaining dialogue and the situations are amusing.
