

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS BRINGS BIG MEN OF THE STATE TO THE CHAUTAUQUA

ACTOR HACKETT FACES DILEMMA

It Is Give Up His Daughter or the Name of the Other Woman.

(United Press Leased Wire.) New York, July 11.—"His baby or the woman in the case?" That is the query which has Broadway guessing in the affair of James K. Hackett, who will arrive tomorrow on the French liner La Bretagne to answer the suit of his wife, Mary Manning, for divorce.

If Hackett will give up his 4-year-old child now in the wife's possession, she, it is said, will shield the name of the woman who is accused in the suit. Any attempt by Hackett to fight it, it is said, will result in the publication of the woman with whom, his wife believes, he is infatuated.

On June 1, three days before Hackett's departure for Europe, his wife obtained the child by a writ of habeas corpus. It has since been in her custody.

For a long time it has been whispered that Hackett was on friendly terms with a star of one of last season's plays, but that she is a different thing from a formal mention in a suit for divorce, and when Hackett appears tomorrow to answer the suit, many will ask the question, "The baby or the lady?"

Mississippi Orator Plainly Shows Why He Leads His Party in Congress

School Children's Exhibit of Flowers Draws Attention of All Visitors

The point of all this was well nigh lost in the somewhat disjointed exposition of the theme, which was the dilemma that there is no genius without labor. Hard work has produced the genius of the world, declared Mr. Williams. Poe's wild excesses were not what shaped his words, but the days and nights he had spent in close application, as shown by the books that he took from the library and read...

Before presenting Mr. Williams, however, he called upon Governor Chamberlain, who was on the platform, to give the distinguished orator a word of greeting from Oregon. Governor Chamberlain, in a short but felicitous speech, extended the honors of the state to Mr. Sharp, and believed that the Chautauqua management was doing a great thing to bring men who held the destinies of the nation in their hands to Oregon, that they might know the merits of requests that were urged upon congress for the benefit of Oregon...

"At the age of seventeen I was thrown on my own resources," writes the cashier of a western bank, "and being long in business I lived in a cheap boarding house where they served black coffee three times a day. At first I was very nervous, but I soon became accustomed to it, and after a while thought I could not get along without it. I worked hard during each school term (I was attending college) and taught country school between times. At the end of three years I had finished my course—my nerves, too, and I went back to the farm to rest up. This did me some good, but I kept on drinking coffee, not realizing that it caused my trouble, and later accepted a position in a bank. About this time I was married and my acquaintance called me Slim. On the advice of a friend my wife began to serve Postum and she made it right from the start (boiled it 15 minutes after boiling actually starts). I liked it and have used it exclusively for three years. I am not longer dubbed slim, my weight has increased 40 pounds and I have nerves to stand any strain without a flinch. And I have increased my salary and my share of bank stock. I can work 15 hours a day, sleep soundly and get up feeling like a healthy boy."
