Directing Canal Zone Affairs With Assistance of Strong Hand of United States Government—No Revolutions Wanted.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN. (Copyright, 1908, by Frederic J. Haskin.) Washington, July 13.—The presidential elections in the republic of Panama would have precipitated a revolution if it had not been for the strong hand of the government at Washington.

As a result of the firm attitude taken by the Washington government, the Conservative party, now in power, has submitted to the will of the people as expressed in the municipal elections in June, and the July elections have but to confirm the selection of Domingo Obaldia, the Liberal candidate for president.

The American government did not take part in the campaign by espousing the cause of one party or the other. It merely declared that it would see to it that there was a free ballot and a fair count, let the results be what they might.

The Liberals have been the "outs," but their victory this time will count them in power. Their leader, Senor Obaldia, will be president if he is elected.

His natural course would have been to support Obaldia. But when he came back to the isthmus he began secretly to give aid and encouragement to Arias.

At this juncture Joe C. S. Blackburn, governor of the canal zone, went to the administration leaders, headed by President Amador, and told them that the voter must have an opportunity to register to vote, and to have his vote counted.

The administration leaders replied that even if many liberals had been denied the right to vote, there was no remedy for it after the fact.

He said a dishonest election meant a revolution, and that a revolution meant the disorganization of the canal zone, and probably the destruction of millions of dollars worth of American property.

Governor Blackburn added that he could not speak with authority as to what would happen, but that he believed there would be several battles in the harbors of the isthmus about that time, and that the marines stationed at Camp Elliot would be made ready to protect the American interests against any outbreak.

New Discovery Cures Rosacea and Brackets Minor Skin Troubles Over Night. A few months ago a dispenser of posam, the new discovery for the cure of eczema, decided to allow the druggists of the country to handle it.

This great success is not surprising when it is remembered that, in eczema cases, as soon as applying with first application, proceeds to heal immediately, and cures chronic cases in a few weeks.

There are other elements than that in the free expression of the people's will. For instance, the province of Colon had for its governor Porfirio Melendez.

In our own country we have abundant opportunity to understand and appreciate the advantage of the party in power. In a legitimate fashion, but in Panama the advantage is a hundred times greater.

FALL OF THE BASTILLE STILL REMEMBERED

POET'S MODESTY AT LAST BEARS FRUIT

For some years Addison Bennett, author of "Rabbitville Letters," has been trying to quell a fancy for poetic composition. Recently the inspiration became too strong for mastery, and he was delivered of a number of characteristic and sensational "poems," a number of which he carried for a time and read privately to friends.

Then, at Woodburn last Friday evening, his opportunity came, and in an entertainment which he furnished by invitation of a local club he sprung the poems. Somewhat to his surprise, his readings made a hit. His homely humor is genuine and enjoyable.

The entertainment was under the auspices of the Woodburn Commercial club, and the author gave an extended program of readings from various poets, interspersing the selections with verses of his own. His poem on old times at "Baltimore" was a feature especially enjoyed by all. The Woodburn Cornet band contributed music for the recital.
