DYNAMITER
ARRESTED

John Claudianes Taken Into Custody and San Francisco Police Are Looking for His Brother Peter—Hired to Blow Up House.

Prisoner Goes Over Ground With District Attorney Langdon and Points to Places Where Explosives Were Hidden.

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, July 14.—The detective force of the city is today searching every possible corner of the city for Peter Claudianes, a Greek, 21 years of age, who has been implicated in the dynamiting of houses of James Gallagher, the chief witness in the graft prosecution, by a remarkable confession made by his brother, John Claudianes, who says he himself actually exploded the charges of dynamite. Notices have been sent to chiefs of police in every city in the country and men have been sent from here to Chico, Cal., where it is thought some trace of Peter Claudianes can be found.

John Claudianes, the confessed dynamiter, is in jail here and is being closely guarded. He made his confession to District Attorney Langdon between midnight and 5 o'clock Saturday morning, and the information has been carefully guarded in the hope that the police could locate his brother, Peter, who, he says, made a deal with other persons to kill Gallagher for money.

The confessed dynamiter refuses to divulge the names of the people who paid for the attempt on the life of Gallagher. He said he was to receive $5,000 as his share of the money, and that he did not go to Chico. This is the reason he was ready to confess his crime.

Dynamiter Proves His Story. The confession of John Claudianes clears a mystery that has baffled the police of the bay cities for over two months. The dynamiter was able to substantiate his story by going over the ground with Langdon, and it is believed he is telling the truth. His brother, Peter, who he says planned the crime, may be able to implicate others in the crime if he can be located. The man under arrest refuses now to admit even that he did the dynamiting, apparently regretting his confession.

Letter Gave the Plot Away. The confession was dramatic. A letter written by John Claudianes addressed to his brother Peter at Chico, Cal., explaining the plot, was responsible for the arrest of the confessed dynamiter. The letter says that unless money is forwarded to the dynamiter it was indorsed on the envelope "Return to J. Claudianes, 16 Byington avenue, Berkeley, Cal." Claudianes was located by the detectives, who had come into possession of the letter. District Attorney Langdon questioned Claudianes closely, and at first the man refused to give any information. He was finally forced into a corner and admitted that he himself did the dynamiting.

Langdon was skeptical, and Claudianes offered to take him over to Oakland and go over the whole scene of the crime with him. Carefully guarded, the man was taken to the place, and he was taken away in an automobile to the home of Gallagher, where the ex-supervisor, his wife and three sons so narrowly escaped death April 22.

Made Three Attempts. Claudianes told Langdon that he had watched the house for three weeks, gaining knowledge of the routine by posing as a photo peddler. He got $20 a week and $10 a day for watching the house, he said, and made three attempts to blow it up before he actually succeeded. They got the dynamite from Arizona, he said, and carried it to Oakland in a valise as baggage. "I used four feet of fuse," said Claudianes, and had eight minutes in which to get away after he put the dynamite on the porch. An auto was waiting for me and I was in another part of the city when the explosion occurred.

Meant to Make a Clean Sweep. Claudianes took the district attorney and his detectives over the whole ground and pointed to the places where he had hidden the dynamite before the explosion. He said he had 32 pounds of dynamite in this job, the Greek said. "It was right; here that I placed it," and he pointed to the place.

DIFFERENT NOW. Athlete Finds Better Training Food.

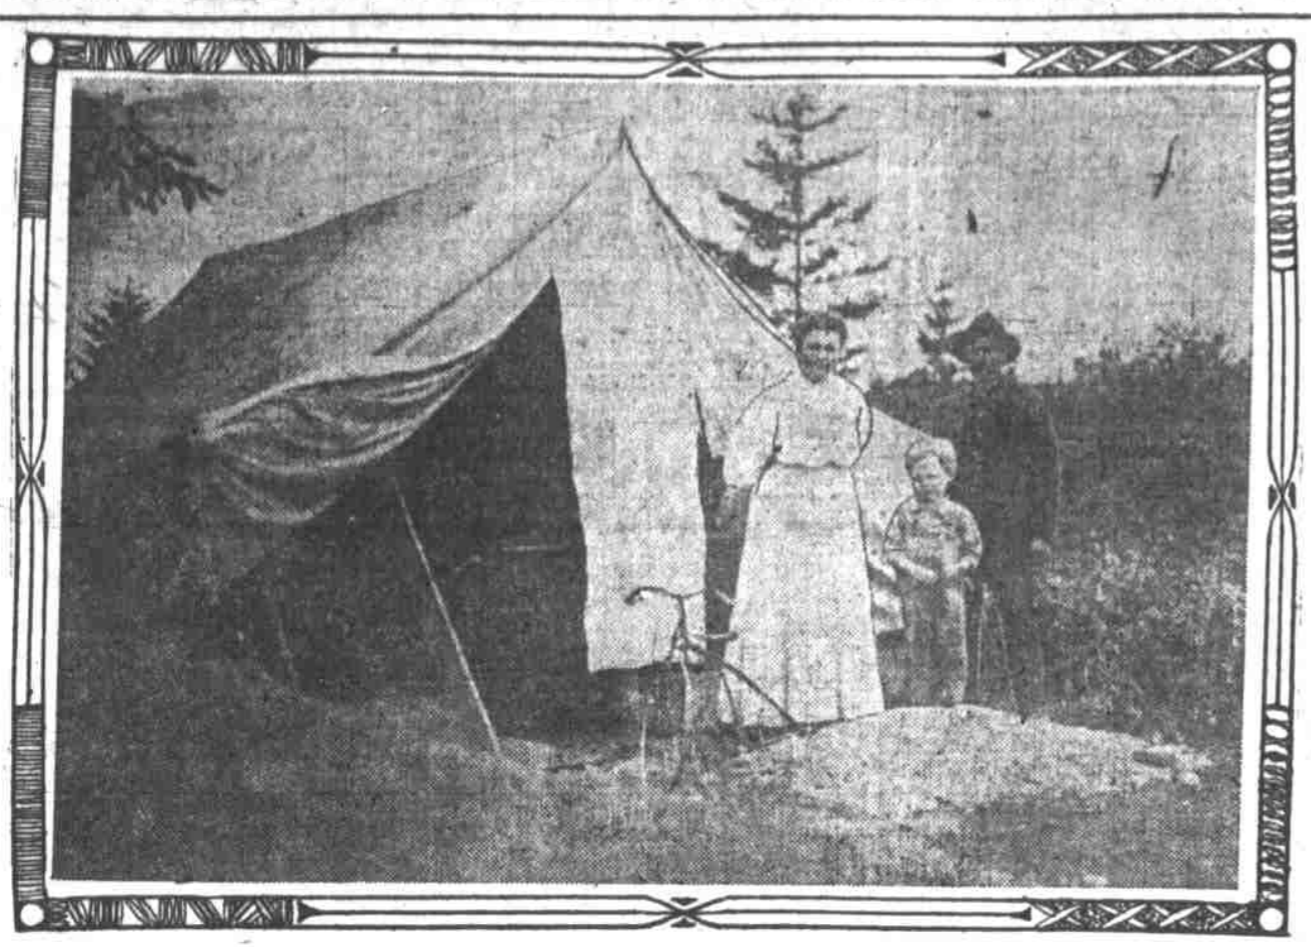

It was formerly the belief that to become strong, athletes must eat plenty of meat. This is all out of date now, and many training men are turning to the well-known food, Grape-Nuts, made of wheat and barley, and cut this meal down to a small portion, one or two spoonfuls.

Three years ago, writes a Michigan man, "having become interested in athletics, I found I would have to stop eating pastry and some other kinds of food. "I got some Grape-Nuts and was soon eating the food every meal, for it was found that when I went on the track, I felt more lively and active. "Later, I began also to drink Postum in place of coffee and the way my muscles and strength on this diet was certainly great. On the day of a field meet in June I weighed 124 lbs. On September 14, I weighed 141. I attributed my fine condition and good work to the diet, and the using of Grape-Nuts and Postum, my principal diet during training season being Grape-Nuts.

"Before I used Grape-Nuts I never felt right in the morning—always kind of out of sorts with my stomach. But now when I rise I feel good, and after a breakfast largely of Grape-Nuts with cream, and a cup of Postum, I feel like a new man. There's a Reason to Believe. EARLY MORNING FIRE THREATENS THREE LIVES

Driven from their home by a fire which destroyed their house and two other buildings at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the family of D. L. Day of Kern Park is camping on the ruins until a new home can be built.

If it hadn't been that D. L. Day of Kern Park had put up his new home in a hurry this summer, he, his wife and their 5-year-old boy might have been burned to death in the fire that destroyed Mr. Day's house, a drug store, a grocery store and a real estate office in the little suburb early yesterday morning.

The fire had spread from the rear of the drug store to the roof of his house when Mr. Day was awakened. He saw that if he was to save his family and any of his furniture he would have to act quickly. So he and his wife put their shoulders to the wall of the cottage and actually tore it down in order to save their belongings. They were able to do this because the cottage had been built hurriedly and merely for temporary occupancy.

Although almost everything they had in the house was destroyed, the Days haven't lost courage. They are camping on the ruins of their home now and have telegraphed to California an offer for the lot adjoining theirs in Kern Park with the idea of putting up a new house before winter.

NO RADICALISM IN SUNNY TENNESSEE Democratic Convention Ratifying People's Local Option Choice.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Nashville, Tenn., July 14.—That radicalism is dead in Tennessee and that local option will not be succeeded by drastic state-wide prohibition legislation, is the assertion of the constitution of Governor M. R. Patterson, who is assured of the Democratic nomination for reelection. The nomination on the Democratic ticket in Tennessee is equivalent to election. Governor Patterson was practically renominated and elected at the state primaries held several months ago. Today the state Democratic convention is in session going through the formality of ratifying the choice of the people.

The gubernatorial campaign was particularly bitter this year on account of the liquor question. Governor Patterson advocated local regulation, while his opponent stood for absolute prohibition. to the wrecked vestibule of the Gallagher home. After Claudianes had explained the details of the first Gallagher dynamiting he went with Langdon and the detective to the scene of the second explosion at Perkins and Belmont streets, where three empty houses belonging to the ex-supervisor were blown up.

"I used 32 pounds of dynamite here," he explained to Langdon. He said that he had been sent to the trial of Claudianes to wreck all of the Gallagher property. "I won't tell you who paid for it," Claudianes refused stubbornly to give any information as to who was to pay for the dynamiting. "I won't tell you that," was the only thing he would say to the district attorney.

Only once in his confession did Claudianes mention the graft cases. He said he had been sent to the trial of T. J. Ford, chief counsel for the United Railroads, to watch. "To watch what?" asked Langdon. "Just to watch," snapped back the Greek. After the man had gone over the ground with Langdon, he was taken to San Francisco and started to walk away from the party. District Attorney Langdon, however, had him locked up. "You'll never get anything from me if you lock me up," he threatened, and he has so far kept his threat.

To District Attorney Langdon, who has visited him in his cell several times, he has denied that he even confessed the crime, and has made up of incoherent stories when questioned.

I was constantly belching gas in my efforts to relieve my stomach. I was in this condition for nearly three and a half years, although I tried a number of doctors. FIREBUG MAKES TWO ATTEMPTS WITH BRAND

Two different fires started in the rear of the old frame building at Fifth and Alder streets between 10 and 11 o'clock last night are thought to have been the work of an incendiary. Both fires were started in some rubbish heaps in the rear of the building, one being at No. 131 and the other at 135 Fifth street. The first was seen from across the street by J. W. Adams, an insurance agent. Mr. Adams put this out. The second fire was put out by the fire department, which received the alarm at 10:55 p. m. In each instance a man was observed skulking near the building and getting away after the fire was started.
