HOP OUTLOOK BADLY MIXED

Growers Do Not Know Whether to Pick Their Crop or Not.

"Oregon stood to produce just about one-half a crop of hops a short time ago and now I am told on good authority that only about half of the growers know whether they will pick their crop or not. Question: What is the coming baled hop crop in this state going to amount to?"

This is the report that comes to The Journal from a Willamette valley correspondent. Everywhere the growers are depressed regarding the future of the market. The late upward movement of contract prices has gladdened the hearts of some, but others are of the opinion that the big prices will not last after harvest. On the other hand it is the general opinion of the hop trade that contractors will eventually force the local value up to 12c on the coming crop in order to allay all fears of the producers that they will not receive a sufficient price for their hops to pay them for cultivating and gathering.

Picking Up All Old Hops.

During the past 24 hours there has been considerable activity in the spot hop market. The resale of 400 bales at Grants Pass was reported at 5c a pound, George Herren being understood to be the purchaser. These hops, it is stated, were sold several months ago to another firm but for some reason or other they were not taken in and the deal was called off.

The larger firms now have their men out in the country gathering up all the 1907 hops they can secure at prices that go no higher than 5c a pound, but some few growers who still retain best quality are not willing just now to let go.

While the market for contracts is quiet temporarily, it is stated that several small lots have been written up for the coming season at 9c and 10c a pound. The favorable conditions of the foreign crops and the denial that any great acreage had been plowed up in England have both been factors toward causing the quiet.

Vermin Showing an Increase.

According to the hop trade another cause for the slowness of contracts on the coming crop at this time is the increase of vermin in the yards. This is a condition entirely unexpected even by those who have been in closest touch with the yards. Several large growers told The Journal this morning that their yards were infected with many more lice than usual. Few of the growers are going to spray because they do not have the funds to spare and others will not spray unless conditions become radically worse. Most of them are depending upon the weather to kill the vermin but these cloudy days are not the best preventive.

Hop Conditions Elsewhere.

The New York Producers' Price Current gives the following view on the hop situation:

"The local market continues very dull and no transactions of any importance are reported. Business on the coast and in New York state is also very slow, with no change in conditions. Coast crop news is good, as they have had very favorable weather in all sections. There is no change in estimates. In New York state scattered showers have improved the outlook, but there is considerable complaint that the spell of dry weather has cut down the probable yield. The vine continues healthy and free of vermin, and everything points to good quality. The English crop is in good shape, and should produce an average yield. The continent reports very favorable conditions."

SUBSTITUTORS WORKING

Eastern Egg Men Said to Be Playing Same Old Game in Egg Market.

Eggs are firmer in some quarters, with the general price around 24c. Some are selling a fraction lower, while others are selling higher. The quality is the worst of the year, many rots and seconds coming at this time because of the holding by producers in the hope of higher prices. It is likewise stated that some interests are selling eastern storage eggs as fresh stock.

Cabbage market is firmer, and prices are showing an advance. Sales at $1.75 and $2.

Tomatoes from The Dalles are in slightly better supply, with sales good around $1.50 a box. California stock lower because of better quality of local stuff.

Two cars of watermelons arrived in good shape this morning. Same price. A car of "cants" and two cars of bananas also came in fine condition. Cantaloupes generally higher.

Loganberries are not moving so freely, and values are now ranging from 75c to 90c for good stock.

Raspberries are in larger supply with sales around $1.10 for good stock.

West & Owen, local cheese brokers, received the following advice from a prominent factor at Tillamook, and gives the truest view of the cheese situation: "Flush is past and market is firm; pastures are beginning to dry up somewhat, and the milk supply continues to fall off on account of the continued dry weather here."

A shipment of apricots arrived from Rock Island, Wash., this morning in fine shape, and found a demand at $1.25 a crate.

Poultry market continues firm at former prices.

Dressed meats are steady, with small arrivals.

New potatoes are down another notch, with heavier supplies of local stock.

Chicago, July 16.—Wheat market hesitated at the opening with mixed values on account of the mixture of foreign news.

Liverpool opened ⅛d lower but gained strength and closed ⅛d up to unchanged from yesterday's close.

This market gained in trading after the start and closed near the high marks for the day.

Corn was very firm in sympathy with higher wheat, the market closing ¾c to 1⅝c above yesterday.

Provisions were sharply advanced because of the improvement in hogs.

Latest News of Oregon Crops

NORTHWEST WEATHER FORECAST.

Oregon and Washington—Fair tonight. Friday, fair, warmer, except near coast; northwest winds.

Idaho—Fair tonight, cooler southeast portion; Friday, fair and warmer.

Considerable rain fell in the inland empire during the past 24 hours, according to the reports received by the weather bureau. At Walla Walla the rainfall amounted to 0.48 of an inch, and at Spokane 0.40 of an inch. Over at Pocatello, Idaho, the precipitation totaled 0.22 of an inch during the past 24 hours, and the grain, especially the spring sowing, was benefited to a considerable extent. The rainfall at Lewiston, Idaho, during the 24 hours amounted to 0.08 of an inch, and was the smallest received in the inland empire. However, the rain deficiency to date in Idaho has been small. Over in Gilliam and other counties where the grain has been starving for rains, the downpour was considerable, and there is no doubt that the spring sowing was helped somewhat, although the rains would have been far more welcome had they arrived sooner. Contrary to reports given out by some interests the electrical storms yesterday did comparatively no damage to the growing grain.

North Powder, Or., July 16.—For cash in hand W. H. Gorham yesterday sold 200 acres for $7,500. The farm lies about three miles from here. The reason for selling is because Mr. Gorham has too much land.

Mr. Lindley yesterday sold to James Dalton for C. S. Moore 2,390 sheep for $2.25 a head. This time last year he could have readily sold the same band for $4 a head.

Payette, Idaho, July 16.—At the beginning of May J. H. Shawhan, a pioneer horticulturist, discovered that blight was attacking his Bartletts. He set two men at the task of cutting out the affected branches. They worked continuously from May 4 until last week, when the hot weather ended the blight, and the result will be that there will be a very good crop of this variety. His other varieties are the Amjou, Clairgeau and Flemish Beauty.

In addition to his pear orchard, Captain Shawhan has four acres of Jonathan apples that are big money producers. They are planted 50 trees to the acre, and last year they yielded an average of 11 boxes to the tree, making 550 boxes to the acre. The first ones shipped to Chicago brought $3 a box. The entire crop averaged over $1.50 a box, making the neat sum of $725 an acre.

Athena, Or., July 16.—On account of the rains that have fallen the wheat harvest, which was about to begin in this section the middle of this week, has been postponed until next Monday. Reports from all growers in the big wheat belt of Umatilla county are to the effect that the yield will be heavier than had been expected earlier in the season, and if these conditions are borne out there will be little, if any, shortage in the sum total of the wheat crop of Umatilla county.

There will be about 15 new combines in the fields about here this season, a carload of new headers, two new threshers, and with plenty of help the growers expect to get along first-class during the harvest.

BRAZIL PUTS STOP TO COFFEE FUTURES

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New York, July 16.—For all practical purposes it may be said that gambling in coffee prices has ended in all the principal exchanges of the world. This was brought about by the remarkable experiment now being made by the government of Brazil to control, for the benefit of her own people, the surplus coffee supply.

It was resolved that the government should buy from the planters their surplus coffee and hold it against possible future short crops and the increasing demand of the world, and thus prevent a collapse in prices. The necessary legislation was enacted and the government borrowed $45,000,000 to buy up the coffee.

Transactions in options and futures on the New York coffee exchange have almost ceased.

Out in the country the grain trade is quite eagerly bidding 82c for club wheat of the new crop on the basis of Portland delivery. This price is now being quite freely offered by the trade, some interests being willing to pay an advance of 1c a bushel over this figure for select quality. To date the purchases of new wheat have been small with interior millers doing practically all the buying to date.

New crop barley is being moved in a limited way around $1.07½@1.10 per cental on the basis of Portland delivery. Samples of new barley received show good quality.

The flour market, while slow locally, is good considering the season of the year. There is but little business reported for export on the present crop and practically none on the new crop.

On the Portland board of trade they were bidding an advance of 1c for September at 81c with December at the same price.

Oats bidding was stronger and an advance of 2c a cental was bid for September at $1.12 and an advance of 3c for December at $1.15.

Barley also showed strength on account of the nominal offerings and the market closed 2¼c per cental up for September and 4½c for December delivery.

Board of trade closing:

Wheat—September 81c bid; December 81c bid.

Oats—September $1.12 bid; December $1.15 bid.

Barley—September $1.07½ bid; December $1.12 bid.

Amalgamated Copper dividend unchanged.

American Locomotive company has orders for 300 engines.

Bank of England rates unchanged at 2½ per cent.

New York, July 16.—Westinghouse Electric was a star attraction on the stock market today, scoring a net advance of 1¾ points, after heavy buying, said to be due to a good improvement in business conditions. Missouri Pacific came in for a like advance, in addition to the sharp rise of yesterday, making a total net gain in that issue of four points in two days.

The stock market in general was mixed, Union Pacific losing ⅜, while Southern Pacific was ¼ higher. Canadian dropped 1¼, and Northern Pacific 1¼, while Rock Island preferred gained 1⅝ above yesterday.

The regular dividend was declared on Amalgamated Copper.

ALBANY AND LINN GO AFTER PRIZES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Albany, Or., July 16.—Albany and Linn county are making an effort to carry off the most valuable prizes at the coming Salem cherry fair. About 100 boxes in commercial pack have been prepared and are to be sent to Salem to compete with the other exhibits on display there. Judge C. H. Stewart and Fruit Inspector E. C. Roberts have been assisted in gathering this display by the Commercial clubs of Scio, Brownsville, Lebanon and Harrisburg.

The cherries entered are of the following varieties: Royal Ann, Bing, Lambert and Centennial. A large portion of the exhibit will have eight cherries to a tier in the commercial pack and this is considered remarkably good. Last season the county carried off the silver cup with a display containing nine cherries to a tier. The display was seen by hundreds yesterday and many tourists and easterners pronounced it exceptionally fine.

MANY HEAVY LOSERS AROUND ROCK CREEK

Rock Creek, Or., July 16.—The water spout which broke on the divide between Rock Creek and Willow Creek yesterday morning, did a great deal of damage to gardens, fences, fluming, ditches and dams. All the way from Olex to the John Day river a solid wall of water was emptied into the John Day at the mouth of Rock creek, which caused a raise in that river of one foot.

The heaviest losers on lower Rock creek were William Head, Wilbur France, F. Wiseman, Mose McKinney and Jones and Christy. It will require several days to repair the ditches and dams so that irrigation may be resumed.

The rains which fell before and after the cloudburst were of benefit to crops of all kinds and served to lower the temperature of the atmosphere sufficient to bring much cooler weather.

MASHER COMES TO GRIEF IN FRISCO

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, July 16.—"Ruffles, Fluffy—Peach, blond, large eyes; fond of dancing. First mash July 15, 1908."

The foregoing and scores of similar entries, including the names and addresses as well as the description of the personal charms of 26 different girls were found in a "mash log" carried by Otto E. Marini, who today is mashing dry bread in the city jail.

Otto mashed the wrong girl early today and the society for the prevention of vice took a hand in the game. When he was searched the prisoner was found to possess a book wherein he entered a record of his various conquests. The police inquired about Marini of several of the girls whose names they found in his book and they charged that he had annoyed and insulted them at various times.

SON AGAIN A BURGLAR; FATHER WILL LOSE HOME

Roy Sommers, apt pupil of the modern Fagin, Charles Sligh, now doing a five-year term in San Quentin prison, has turned out a disappointment. Sommers, under plea that he was influenced to burglarize by Sligh, recently was given parole from the state penitentiary under $1,000 bonds furnished by his father in Indiana. He has broken his parole, has been arrested in Tacoma, charged with burglary, and will go back to Salem, while his father will lose the home he offered as the price of the boy's liberty.

Sligh, the Fagin, under the name of J. C. Roberts, and the number 22,700, is serving a five-year term in San Quentin for burglary. He and his two pupils, Roy Sommers and Redmond, were arrested at Seaside and brought back by Captain of Detectives Baty last spring, on information furnished the police by Mayor Lane, several of whose intimate friends had been robbed. Redmond and Sommers were both found guilty of burglary in the Portland courts and were sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary.

As soon as sentence was passed an effort was begun to secure liberty for the two boys. Redmond's parents are people of good standing in Woodburn, Or. Sommers, whose real name is Will Riley, is the son of a railroad man in Indiana. The latter offered to mortgage his farm to secure a $1,000 bond that Sommers would not leave the state if paroled. The parole was finally given, it being understood that Sligh had virtually forced the two boys to commit a dozen or more daylight burglaries, and had given them lessons in crime and in how to enter houses.

When released Redmond returned to his home in Woodburn, and Sommers remained in Portland. A few weeks ago some burglaries were reported at police headquarters, accompanied by descriptions that made the sleuths think of Sommers. Today Chief Gritzmacher received a letter from the Tacoma chief of police asking him for information concerning Sommers, who had been arrested there for burglary, accompanied by a photograph.

The photograph and description were identified by Detectives Hellyer and Maloney as fitting Sommers, and he will be returned to the Salem penitentiary. The $1,000 mortgage given by the elder Riley will be foreclosed to make good the bond.

HELD IN TACOMA

Gives Name of Tilton When Arrested After Exciting Chase.

Tacoma, July 16.—E. Tilton, burglar, caught ransacking the residence of Lewis D. Craig, 405 South O street, last Saturday, is Roy Sommers, wanted at Portland for breaking his parole. The man was caught in the act of searching bureaus and trunks and fled, closely pursued by Craig and a score of neighbors. Finally a negro, hoeing a lawn, struck the fugitive on the head with a rake and felled him, sitting upon him until help arrived.

Tilton formerly lived here with a woman whom he introduced as his wife. From the outset he insolently refused to tell the police anything concerning his identity, saying he was from "nowhere," that he had been well raised and was a much abused man.

Captain of Detectives Fitzgerald sent photographs of the man to surrounding cities and was not surprised when word came today that the Portland police wanted the fugitive for numerous crimes. Tilton claims to be only 18 years old, but appears to be 30, and is well dressed and intelligent.

COOKE COOKED, COOKE'S COOKERS ALSO COOKED

The 40 Elmira, N. Y., persons brought to Baker City to get rich by Henry E. G. Cooke, who arrived in Portland last night, are still holding the sack. The sack seems to have a hole in it.

Cooke arrived down last night in the company of Clyde Nicholson of Portland. Mr. Nicholson is a deputy United States marshal. Mr. Cooke, who is a New York broker with a dandy office overlooking the great white way, now has quarters near Salmon street, overlooking Fourth street, the plaza and other sidelights of Portland. Sheriff Stevens is the boss of Mr. Cooke's new office building.

Mr. Cooke cannot leave his temporary quarters, however. He could if he had $5,000 in cash to put up to assure his appearance before a federal court in New York to answer to the charge of conspiring to defraud old Uncle Sam. Mr. Cooke will be taken before Judge Wolverton within a few days when United States District Attorney John McCourt will make a motion of removal to New York, where the defendant is wanted. Mr. McCourt is now awaiting a copy of the New York indictment.

Mr. Cooke says that he doesn't know what the government officials nabbed him for. He can't understand the situation in the least, he says.

And the 40 persons at Baker! They don't know just what to do. Several of them are young fellows. They all came out with Cooke in a private car. Their leader is in jail and they wander about the streets of Baker City like a lot of lost sheep. Like Cooke, they don't understand the deal either.

One or two of these persons, all of whom Mr. Cooke promised "twenty for one" dollars, are arranging to go back home—to Elmira. All they had to do was to come west—they didn't have to stay out here and grow up with the country. They could just remain a few days, hike back to dear old Elmira and reap the harvest for the rest of their livelong days.

Then old Uncle Sam stepped in. Cooke was hot—and his prospective customers were hotter. All their dreams and anticipations of wealth had been shattered. Now they are arranging to go home—to Elmira—one by one, traveling in ordinary day coaches or Pullmans.

PREDICT CRASH IF BRYAN IS ELECTED

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New York, July 16.—A fearful crash of stocks is predicted by some Wall street firms in the event of Bryan's election to the presidency. It became known today that certain firms have taken insurance with Lloyd's agency of London within the last two days to the extent of $500,000. It is stated that applications for at least $1,000,000 more have been made and are now awaiting action of the company.

This report, coming from the financial district, is looked upon by the Bryan leaders here from two points of view.

They say they are glad to know that the brokers believe Bryan will be elected, and at the same time they assert that the charge that financial crashes would follow his election is without foundation.

The announcement that the brokers are seeking insurance against loss with Lloyd's has caused much comment here.
