

SHED NO. 2 LOOKS FOR JOB, FINDS BICYCLE FOR ALICE

Prohibitionist Committee Again Decides Not to In- vite Her to Convention— Woman Delegate Says, "Glad of It."

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Columbus, Ohio, July 16.—Another affront was offered Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth by the Kentucky delegation to the national convention of Prohibitionists here today, when an effort was made to take from the table an invitation for her to attend the convention.
Colonel Demaree presided over the meeting of the delegation and after the routine business had been completed, he turned up the tattered invitation and said:
"Let's send it."
A. T. O'Leary of Covington said:
"I move that the invitation be taken from the table." Mrs. Frances Besuchamp, president of the Lexington W. C. T. U., arose and declared:
"Oh, what's the use. Let's quit this foolishness. Mrs. Longworth is out in Yellowstone park and I am glad of it.
She couldn't get here even if we did ask her, and I am glad of that, too." Demaree then put the motion to a vote. Those opposed to extending the invitation received 15 votes, six more than on the first occasion when it was tabled.

16-Year-Old Ben Swindler Turns Detective—Lo- cates Stolen Wheel.

Ben Swindler has done his first piece of detective work, has been paid for his successful efforts and now wants to be a sure-going detective when he gets a little older.

Ben Swindler, Whose First Detective Case Was Successful.

of the job he felt must be awaiting him somewhere. Near Gresham he met A.
Dowsett, the Gresham telephone agent, whose bicycle had just been stolen.
"I'll give you $5 if you find that wheel," young man, said Mr. Dowsett.
Ben took the job. The bicycle he sought had one tire with peculiar lumps upon it, so with this clue in his possession Ben went to work. His soon found the track of the tire in the dusty road. As the bicycle tire was evidently headed for the city and its ready money pawnshops, Ben lost no time in pedaling Portlandward with every ounce of speed at his command.
Before the Morrison street bridge was reached the multitude of wheels of every kind had wiped out all traces of the lone tire. Ben went from one bridge to another over and over again, but still not a sign of the bicycle he sought could be found. Finally he gave it up and crossed the river. There on Front street was the mark of the tire.
Then the boy began his search of the pawnpots, asking each broker to see the bicycles in stock, as though he were a prospective buyer.
A man in a shop on Front street near Morrison was the stolen bicycle.
"I wish I could buy a good pair of bloodhounds," said Ben yesterday.
"Then I could do real work as a detective."

BOOK THIEF HAD $660 ON PERSON

Detective Arrests Man Steal- ing Volumes From Port- land Public Library.

Despite his denials the police feel confident of fastening upon the shoulders of Douglas McDonald the theft of 100 books from the public library. Good work on the part of Acting Detective Fennant resulted in his arrest at o'clock yesterday afternoon.
Fennant watched McDonald make two trips from the library to his room at the Appleton, North Sixth street. He carried a book under his coat on each trip. After the second journey Mc-Donald was arrested.
The strangest part of it came when the young man (he is but 22) was searched at the police station. A monster pack of greenbacks totaling $660 was found in his clothing, and as nearly every piece of currency was of the 1c denomination the roll was the largest seen at police headquarters for a long time. McDonald declared he had earned every cent of the money.
The thefts from the public library have been going on for the past six weeks. According to McDonald's statement he has been in the city just that length of time. No search of the pawnshops has yet been made, but it is believed the books will be recovered. It is also expected that the description of the man who sold them will tally with that of the young man with the $660 roll.

PHILO HOLBROOK SR. LEAVES BIG ESTATE

Philo Holbrook, Sr., former county commissioner, who died on July 5, left property worth more than $50,000. This is the valuation of the real estate in an application for probate of the will this morning, and it is stated that there is personal property worth $1,000.
Mrs. Hannah Holbrook, widow, receives all of the real estate under the will. Five surviving children—Philo Holbrook, Jr., Mildred C. Holbrook, Emily H. Holbrook, Samuel C. Holbrook and Helen Holbrook—are each given $500. The bequest to the children are to be paid by the widow within two years from the time of the testator's death if convenient, and must be paid within four years, but do not become a lien on the real estate. The will was executed in February, 1906, and witnessed by Harry E. Northrup and H. H.
Northrup. Judge Webster in the county court today admitted the will to probate and named the widow as executrix.

NEWSPAPER MEN GO TO CONVENTION

The Hotel Portland was well filled this morning with Washington newspaper men and politicians on their way to Vancouver, Wash., to attend the annual convention of the State Editorial association.
Among the arrivals were Lieutenant-Governor Charles E. Con of Port Townsend, J. W. Lyons, secretary of the Republican state central committee, W. A.
Steele of Seattle, treasurer of the National Editorial association; Eugene Lorton, editor of the Walla Walla Bulletin; Henry McBride, former governor, and who in this year a candidate for the same office, and Welford Beaton, a well-known Seattle newspaper man.

PIECE OF MIND COST PIECE OF COIN

Andrew Myers was fined $20 in the municipal court today for giving Francis J. McKenna "a piece of his mind," in terms that were considered too strong by the judge. Myers alleged that Mc-Kenna had moved the Northern Hill station on the St. Johns line that it would better suit his own convenience, and that he had simply told McKenna what he thought of him.
McKenna testified that the depot was his own property, that Myers had previously abused him, and when he repeated the language used in this instance the fine was imposed.

COST MONEY TO LEAVE TEAM TIED

Anton Burkhardt, the scavenger who has been in the police court times out of number, was fined $10 today for leaving his horses out all night at the city crematory.
Burkhardt declared that he was afraid to untie his horses because they were acting viciously, but superintendent Daggett had a different story and Burkhardt's record was much against him.

Elks Celebrate Day at Dallas With Large Proces- sion of Members.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Dallas, Texas, July 16.—Over 75,000 people watched the monster parade of the Elks today. The streets were thronged with people long before the parade of the "best people on earth" was scheduled to begin and the spectacle was one of the finest ever seen here.
The visiting delegations in their purple and white uniforms, carrying banners of their respective lodges, made a line over three miles long. Floats and plenty of funny stunts marked the parade at intervals and were seen here.
The members of the Los Angeles delegation today reported to the police that a thief had broken into their apartment last night. He had gained access to their suite during the night and when they awakened today they found their cash and three gold watches, valued at $205 apiece, missing.

Roseburg, Or., July 16.—Two horse races on which $2,800 was staked by the owners, were pulled off at the district fair track near this city yesterday. The horses, which are well known in Oregon, were Oregon Frank, owned by C. H. Brown, Oakland, "Princess," owned by Dr. J. R. Chapman, Roseburg, "King Kohr," owned by W. Cardwell, Roseburg, and "Lady Beach," owned by S. T. Smith, Roseburg. Winners, Oregon Frank over Princess, King Kohr over Lady Beach.

ANOTHER POWER SITE FOR S. P. RAILROAD

Eugene, Or., July 16.—S. W. Curtis appropriated 12,000 miners' inches of the waters of the lake and his property will be the most successful hydroelectric power site for the generation of electricity with which to operate the trains over the mountains on the proposed railroad. The Odell lake site is the farthest link in a chain of filings extending from only a few miles east of Eugene to the summit of the mountains.

PORTLAND ROSES FOR REAL HATPINS

The Delamoths Distributing company of Spokane, which is the company that is putting on the market the real rose hatpins which have lately attracted a good deal of attention, has a representative in Portland looking for Portland roses. N. Blackman Walton offers to buy roses from all who will sell and praises highly the roses he has seen about the city.
"I took an automobile ride about the city yesterday," he said, "and there is no question that you have beautiful roses here and many that we could use. We wish only buds or half blown roses, leaving the fully blown blossoms to the florists. We prefer the Kaiserlins, Niphetos, Killarney, Richmonds and Liberty. A local representative will call at the home of anyone who wishes to sell roses and the people who have them should write to the company at Spokane. The representative will call daily or weekly and will attend to the shipping.
Oregon roses are sold under the name of Oregon roses, Mr. Walton says, these roses are justly famous as the most beautiful in the world and the industry will help spread their fame. The marketing process was discovered by J. G. Delamoths of Spokane and can be applied to any other metallic substance but is being directed primarily at this time to roses. The company uses from 200 to 500 roses a day. G. Freeman and supply any roses, even if only a dozen at a time, are asked to write to the Delamoths Distributing company, Exchange National bank building, Spokane, Wash.
