

M'INTYRE'S ELOQUENCE CHARMS CHAUTAUQUA

TODAY'S PROGRAM.

MORNING.
 9:00—Devotional hour.
 11:00—Sunday school, under the direction of the State Sunday School association, R. R. Steele, president.
AFTERNOON.
 2:30—Music by Chautauqua chorus. Solo, Sermon by Dr. Robert McIntyre.
 4:00—Sacred concert by Chautauqua Indian school band.
 5:00—Chinese program, under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., of Portland.
 8:00—Music by Chautauqua chorus. Solo. Quartet, by Willamette girls. Sermon, by Dr. F. J. Van Horn, of Seattle.

The greatest lecture ever given from the Chautauqua platform is the unanimous verdict pronounced upon the address of Bishop McIntyre yesterday afternoon. Taking as his subject, "The Evolution of Abraham Lincoln," the speaker rose to heights of eloquence never before heard in the groves of Gladstone park.

The evolution of Lincoln came through three things; his humor which started him in life; his honesty, which carried him forward, and his humanity which consummated his life. Upon each one of these traits in the character of Lincoln, the speaker enlarged, and gave striking instances to illustrate his points.

One eloquent picture after another, warm with adulation, reached in merriment or dripping with the tears of a heartbroken country, the speaker brought in rapid succession before his audience which for two hours he held spellbound.

One of his most magnificent flights of oratory came in the illustration of the life of Lincoln he found when he gazed into Mirror lake in the Yosemite, and saw the sun rise six times from above that many mountain heights, each one of which he likened to the periods of Lincoln's career, namely, his long childhood, the period of preparation for the bar, political career in his state, his national career, and his death.

Intense heat was one of the perquisites handed out to Chautauqua visitors yesterday, but it seemed a gift to be desired, for they came by scores from the surrounding country and by car loads from Portland and Oregon City. To temper the heat a fine breeze shaded the historic oaks, kept people from suffering, and made them feel, hot as it was, a pleasant relief from the heat of the town.

But one sentiment was expressed, when the song sounded for the last lesson yesterday morning, teacher and pupils, and that was sincere regret. Stripped of the strenuousness of the classroom, these lessons take the form of familiar talks, and the relation between the teacher and the taught grows very close. Among some there is a feeling that something more systematic should prevail, and the regular Chautauqua course of study has been suggested, but to many this is the season of vacation and arduous work would defeat the purpose for which they came. At the close of Mrs. Miller's course of domestic science she was fairly besieged for recipes from which she had been teaching, and if she gives but a small percentage of those asked she will have employment for the rest of the summer writing them.

The readings from Uncle Remus and the memorial services which were held at the literature class of Dr. Hoodley brought tears to the eyes of many when they remembered that the last humorous and pathetic words have been spoken by that kindly soul, Joel Chandler Harris, who for many years showed the best and truest side of the negro character to the world.

The Indian program given at the Forum yesterday was as fine as it was unique.

 Mandolin Club
 Violin Solo—"Grand Fantasia"
 Ruthyn Turney
 The program was under the supervision of superintendent of Chemawa. The crowd that gathered around the erasement, on the grandstand and even clambered into the stands, the cars that stood on the tracks inside the grounds, to see the fireworks was simply immense. Large as the amphitheatre was one had to hustle for a vantage place.

Promptly at the appointed hour the first piece was set off, and for ever an hour there was a steady pyrotechnical display that has exceeded any that have ever before been shown on the grounds and would rival some of the best that have ever been offered in Portland. No accident happened to mar the pleasure of the evening, and altogether formed a happy and satisfactory conclusion.

There was the usual mad rush for cars, everybody believing they were going to be left and not a soul to say "I told you so" after the cars had pulled out.

The entertainment offered by Professor Grilley under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association did credit to the teacher and the association.

Few Campers Leaving.
 Time was when every camper on the ground thought it was his duty to take time by the forelock and get out before his neighbor, and by Saturday night the grounds were almost deserted. This year has been exceptional in that respect. Everyone seems to have a desire to linger on the Chautauqua grounds.

A subdued feeling of sadness and regret pervaded the Chautauqua grounds last evening when the lights went out at the close of the last program of the season when the "Good Night" flashed from the field down below the diamond and the last car went rolling through the grounds and the tenters realized that only a Sunday, to be good in, remained of their rest and vacation and season of study.

For seasons however, have closed with such entire satisfaction and good will as this one. From the start a feeling of good will and harmony between management and patrons has existed, consequently things have gone smoothly, and with the folding of the tents will come the determination to be among the early returners next year. The breaking up of the Chautauqua camp is always a sad and regrettable event, but the early returners next year are made that last for years, and the coming together time after time at Chautauqua is like the gathering of great family on a festive occasion. To these the fact that the assembly this year has been a financial success is a great joy, for it means another and an even better session next year.

Curious Mexican Indians.
 From the Mexican Herald.

Buried in the heart of a civilized, powerful and progressive foreign people, a little handful of Indians have lived for 300 years, and have contrived to keep during all that time their national characteristics, their traditions and their individuality. If you seek them you will find them in Amatlan de Cruz, Mexico. They are the Amatecos. The Amatecos are perhaps the only people in the world who have succeeded in retaining for themselves what is practically self-government. It must not be understood for a moment that they make any pretensions to being independent of the control of Mexican government.

National Dish of Brazil.

"After existing in South American countries for the last eight months it's good to get back to town where one can get something to eat," said R. G. Breen, a San Francisco mining engineer. "Most of the time I've been in the south was spent in Brazil. In that country the national dish is jerked beef and black beans, and one sees nothing else. Nowhere in South America, except in Buenos Ayres, can a stranger from the United States get a meal that will tickle his palate. The South Americans surely don't know the rudiments of cooking. Ever since they bring you something in grease and garlic and so doled with pepper as to nearly strangle

THIRD ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW OF MULTNOMAH COUNTY SCHOOL CHILDREN SURPASSES ALL PREVIOUS EXHIBITS

ALFRED HAMMEL, 9 YRS. OLD.

Once more the annual flower show of the Multnomah county school children has come and gone and those who have seen the exhibits of the various years declare that the one held in the city hall yesterday was by far the finest of the three. In discussing the show, Superintendent R. F. Robinson who originated the idea and upon whom has devolved the expense of the shows, said that the sweet peas exhibited yesterday far surpassed those of former years.

"Two years ago," declared Superintendent Robinson, "there was but one exhibit of King Alfred sweet peas. At that time they were the only up-to-date variety shown. This year we had many displays of still newer varieties. This fact shows that the children are entering into the spirit of the show."

Excellent Exhibits.

"There is only one drawback to holding the display at this time of the year. Many school children who have spent several months in growing their flowers were unable to attend the show because of the necessity of their presence in the berry patches. Perhaps next year the parents of the locality rather than a central display.

Quite another view was taken by the children who exhibited. They were in for the competition with great zest and their beautiful displays confirmed Superintendent Robinson's estimate of the show. Two of the prettiest displays were exhibited by Maurine Thurmond of St. Johns. This particular miss took third prize last year, but she took care this year that her display should be better and it was so much better that instead of a third prize she took two first prizes. Her exhibit of Spencer hybrids and creamy whites attracted favorable comment from visitors.

Other Successful Ones.

Faye Robinson, a young daughter of Superintendent Robinson was another successful competitor and had the dis-
