FITZY FIGHTS A ONE ROUND GO

Knocks Out Manager of Pantages at Spokane in Beer-Bottle Fight.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Spokane, Wash., July 18.—Bob Fitzsimmons had a fight tonight and knocked out the manager of Pantages theater in the first round. A beer bottle which Mr. and Mrs. Fitzsimmons use in their stunt at the theater, played a leading part in the go. Several issues of an evening paper have recently contained uncomplimentary remarks concerning the pugilist. Fitzsimmons accused Manager Walker of being the author of the articles. Words followed. Finally Fitz called Walker a liar, the latter fired the beer bottle against Fitz, cutting a bad gash on his bald snot, with the result that Fitz knocked Walker down.

Walker got up and retired to the alley of the theater. Bob followed. So did the employes, with axes, clubs and other missiles, but none were brave enough to hit Fitz. Trouble has been brewing for some time between Fitz and the men because he advertised himself as the fight promoter for the go between the Cornishman and Ketchel for the middleweight championship of the world.

Both men were arrested. Both gave bond for their appearance in court. Bob declines to say whether he and his wife will continue with the show at Pantage's theater. Bob's head is tied up.

STRANGE STORY OF MASONIC EMBLEM

Judge Van Zante's credulity will be sorely tested Monday if Alfred Balden, a young German, tells him the same story he related to the police last night.

After Balden had been brought in by Detectives Coleman and Price because he did not look just right to them, a magnificent jeweled Masonic emblem, bearing the name "Wm. C. Faber," was found in his pocket.

"I met a man on the street and he asked me if I had a room and what I was doing, and then he gave me this thing to keep for him," said Balden. He admitted the generous person was a stranger. Two skeleton keys in another pocket lead the police to believe they have captured one of the ever-busy room-sneaks.

NEW BUSINESS FIRM

Royer Implement Co. is Already Doing a Splendid Business.

George Royer, who for the past 19 years has been prominently identified with the carriage and implement business, being assistant secretary and treasurer of the Mitchell, Lewis & Staver Co., has engaged in business for himself on an extensive scale, under the firm name of The Royer Implement Co. Large ware and salesrooms at 208 Front street, between Taylor and Salmon, have been leased for a long term, and commodious offices have been fitted up. These quarters are especially well adapted to the purposes, being located on the river front, with splendid wharfage facilities.

The Royer Implement Co. has been particularly fortunate in securing leading lines of goods, for example, the Racine wagons, buggies and carriages; P. & O. company's full line, including Old Hickory wagons, Canton plows, Superior drills, etc.; Oliver plows, harrows, cultivators, etc., also a miscellaneous lot of merchandise used by business men and farmers, such as harness, whips, robes, bale ties, wire, twine, etc. Associated with Mr. Royer in the business is Charles DeWitt, who also was for years with the Mitchell, Lewis & Staver concern. These men have a host of friends in this city and state who will wish them the fullest measure of success in their new business enterprise.

MYSTERY OF STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE SOLVED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Kelso, Wash., July 18.—A floater was found this morning in Mitchell's boom at the mouth of the Cowlitz river. Upon examination the coroner identified the body as that of Julius Roof, an itinerant tailor who had made Kelso his headquarters for the past few months, working for H. O. Myer. He had not been seen since the evening of July 5. Previous to his disappearance he had been drinking and was slightly demented. It is supposed that he committed suicide by jumping into the river. Nothing is known as to his history or his relatives.

Oklahoma Wolf Story.

Guthrie Correspondence Dallas News.

Orlie Hizer of near Lawrie was in the city yesterday to claim bounty on a couple of large wolf scalps. Having occasion to go down into a gulch, he threw his shotgun over his shoulder in hopes of a chance shot at a rabbit. He noticed a stir in a clump of bushes and found that they contained a wolf, part of its body being visible. With only a single barreled shotgun he took chances and fired.

Through the cloud of smoke he saw the animal coming straight at him and jumped to one side as its jaws snapped. Quickly reloading, he fired again, killing it.

On examination of the bushes he found that he had killed the wolf that he had first seen, and that its mate had been there also and had made a spring at him.

The legislature of Massachusetts has just increased the limit of work for women and children in factories from 54 hours a week to 56 hours. After some sharp discussion a proviso was added that the amendment should not go into effect until January 1, 1910. Before that date the clubwomen of the state hope to have the law altered again to the advantage of the women and children.

Auto Ride Twisted His Neck Till He Talked Like a Corkscrew

Paul H. Sroat, who is well known to many people in private life as an insurance man and good citizen and who is remembered in public life as having been the Democratic candidate for secretary of state a couple of years ago, came into the Imperial this morning with his gaze set resolutely over his left shoulder like a sentimental girl peeping at the new moon. Pausing in the doorway he turned half way round so he could see the desk and then sidestepped over to where his friend was bending over the register.

"Good morning," he said in his usual cordial manner, holding his hand out in front of him and talking toward the door.

"Good morning," responded the friend, knowing his hand clasp and the back of his head.

"How are you?" continued Mr. Sroat, turning so the watch pocket in his vest faced the street and his eyes looked into those of his friend.

"What are you acting like a rooster for?" queried the friend. "Why don't you look a man in the face without turning you back on him? What is the matter with you, anyway?"

"I am twisted," said Sroat, plaintively. "I am badly bent. Don't make me laugh, it hurts my neck." Then he told his woeful tale.

Mr. Sroat, it seems, has a friend from Los Angeles, Douglas Keane, who was desirous of seeing the country with the possible view of future investment. Mr. Sroat being of a kindly disposition engaged R. G. Foote and his automobile to pilot Mr. Keane over the surrounding country. Accompanied by Mrs. Sroat and Miss M. C. Billings, Mr. Sroat and Mr. Keane mounted the automobile yesterday and started up the valley.

The roads were so bad on the west side that the party crossed to the east side up the river a ways and in climbing the long hill at Champoeg the machine sprang a joint, grinding off the corners of one of the pinions, so that whenever an up grade was encountered the only way Foote could drive his machine was backward. Bowed down by the responsibility of his position as host, Mr. Sroat kept a sharp lookout every time the machine started to back up hill. As most of the road was hill he looked back most of the time, thus accounting for his habitual attitude this morning.

"I don't see anything funny about it," he said, pessimistically, as he painfully turned his back toward the street and began to sidestep toward the door. "I know I look like a roosting chicken, but Keane enjoyed the ride. He said he did not know they always backed up hill in Oregon. He is an Englishman, you know."

ATTRACTIONS OF JAIL TOO STRONG FOR OLD TIMERS TO OVERCOME

Why does a jailbird who flutters when he is in the cage and vows that once he is out he will never go within three blocks of a jail, invariably return time and again on one pretext or another after he is released?

H. P. Hunter, who presides within the county bastile, says his experience proves that men of a certain class have almost a mania for coming back after they are released. They have all manner of excuses, but there seems to be some unaccountable attraction that draws them back to the place where they were confined.

The class of man that hunts the jail and has to be ordered away before he becomes a nuisance is one of the driftwood type. Usually he is a housebreaker or a petty offender. The men of higher strata, who really suffer by a jail sentence, rarely return. This is true of the men who are made "trusties." They are usually of the best class of prisoners, and Jailer Hunter says that not one of them has betrayed his trust since he has been jailer, nor do such men come back to hang around and "visit" after they are free.

When a man goes out after being confined for some time he is usually asked to do many things for his fellow-prisoners. He is asked to buy small articles for them and perform little errands. Then he goes back to tell his "friends" about the outside world and to take them trinkets and tobacco. Sometimes he only wants to visit.

The moth loves the flame, even after his wings have been singed.

HOT WORDS AT A. F. M. SESSION

Charges of Blackmail and Thievery Are Hurled Around Recklessly.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Denver, July 18.—Charges of blackmail, accusations of thievery and the direct assertion that union miners seeking employment were forced to pay as high as $40 for a job, were referred back and forth in today's session of the American Federation of Miners.

Of the business transacted the most important was a report favoring closer relations with the United Mine Workers of America. Reports on strikes and lockouts, industrial unionism and organization were adopted in accordance with President Myers' suggestions.

ALBANY EVIDENCES WONDERFUL GROWTH

Assessor's Values Show Increase of $150,000 in City Realty.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Albany, Or., July 18.—D. B. McKnight, assessor of Linn county, has completed the listing of the realty within the city of Albany. He estimates that an aggregate increase in assessable values reaching $150,000 will be added to the roll, from the building of new residences and business property alone. Albany is experiencing an unparalleled building boom. Shortage of labor prohibits many proposed building projects.

An excellent class of improvements is being made. Streets are being graded, cement curbs are built, and cement sidewalks are going down alongside the residence properties.

With the new paving, the converting of the streetcar line into an electric system, the completion of the new depot, Elks' temple, and the many residences for which excavations are being made, the city will scarcely know itself when all is completed.

The newly acquired $70,000 federal building will be a valuable addition to the city. Actual work on this structure is expected to be undertaken as soon as the site is selected.

WARRANT FOR AN ACCOMPLICE

Claudianes' Partner in Dynamiting Sought by Detectives.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, July 18.—The first arrest in connection with the confession of John Claudianes that he blew up the Gallagher houses in Oakland is looked for some time today. A warrant was sworn out in Oakland early this morning for the arrest of Felix Paduverus on the charge of complicity in the crime and Detective Burns is expected to locate the man today.

While Claudianes is held in jail, no warrant has ever been issued for him and the arrest of Paduverus may lead to the unfolding of the case.

The warrant was sworn out after an all-night conference in Oakland between Detective Burns, John Claudianes and several Oakland police officers. None of the officers will talk.

Paduverus occupied a room in Sausalito with Peter Claudianes some weeks ago and is thought to know of the whereabouts of the brother of the confessor. He is thought to be the same man that was brought to police headquarters secretly two days ago and taken into Claudianes' cell by Burns and then released by a secret door. He is the husband of Peter Claudianes' sister, and a fireman by occupation.

An Inconsiderate Mad Dog.

A dispatch from Lynn, Mass., to the New York Tribune says: "A mad dog frightened the congregation of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday, at the morning services. Rev. F. H. Clark was leading in prayer when a big collie, yelping and frothing at the mouth, jumped into the church through an open window. Half a dozen women fainted and several were injured in the mad rush for doors and windows.

"The minister, we are informed, chased the dog into the study, after a beautiful member of the choir had sprained her ankle by jumping 20 feet. Having the dog alone the good man caught it by the neck and held it until a policeman arrived and ended the trouble by shooting the animal without hitting an innocent bystander.

"The minister showed rare bravery and excellent judgment and the policeman is to be highly commended for the skill he exhibited in using his revolver, but we fear their efforts will prove unavailing. People will hereafter be exceedingly cautious in the matter of attending church. Citizens who are in the habit of spending their Sunday mornings on the golf links and in their automobiles are able to point with pride to the fact that nobody has ever while driving off a bridge or been attacked by a mad dog. And there is no record of a mad dog ever having leaped into a swiftly moving automobile and causing the occupants to break their legs or sprain their ankles by jumping out.

"One or two more mad dog scares in church would, we fear, put all the ministers out of business in spite of any bravery they might exhibit."

MRS. PALMER GETS NOTHING; NONSUIT

Court Finds Plaintiff in Salem Damage Suit Was Negligent.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)

Salem, Or., July 18.—The Portland Railway, Light & Power company was granted a nonsuit in the circuit court by Judge Burnett today in the Palmer damage case. Mrs. Laura Palmer, who was struck by a streetcar at a street intersection in Salem and injured, had asked $10,000 damages. Judge Burnett granted the nonsuit on the ground that Mrs. Palmer, through negligence, contributed to the accident.

METZGER —ACRE— TRACTS

ON
Salem Electric Line

Only 30 Minutes Ride from Jefferson St. Station

In the great Oregon country there is no land that can compare with Metzger acre tracts, considering the prolific nature of the soil, the location, the lay of the land, the transportation facilities and the price.

When you consider that 50x100-foot lots in many of the suburbs where it takes just as long or longer to reach, are selling for as high as $800, do you think it sound judgment to allow such an opportunity as Metzger acre tracts afford, to slip away without securing from one to half a dozen or more of these beautiful tracts? At Metzger you can buy whole

ACRE TRACTS FROM $200 UP

With only 10 per cent down and 3 per cent monthly.
REMEMBER—You cannot always buy these tracts at such low prices. This excellent opportunity will not always be available. When the prices advance you will begin to realize that you made a mistake by not securing some of this land.

COME OUT TO-DAY

And look it over. See for yourself the great value we are offering. The Oregon Electric line gives good service and the trip is a delightful one, probably the most enjoyable trolley ride on the whole coast. When you arrive at Metzger you will be further delighted on entering the grand natural park adjoining the station and which will be kept in fine condition to delight the Metzger people.

This land is specially adapted for fruit of all kinds, also vegetables. An acre will keep a family independent and, think of the price. Several wells have been dug and at a depth of 15 feet there is 6 feet of pure water. Now is the time to invest in Metzger acre tracts.
