STAGE GOES OVER AN EMBANKMENT--15 INJURED

PROTECTING RAIL TOO WEAK TO HOLD AUTO

FIVE PASSENGERS SERIOUSLY HURT

Two Ministers of Gospel Among Those Suffering Painful Wounds.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Bellingham, Wash., July 20.—The Linden automobile stage, bound for this city, went over a 15-foot embankment at E. and Dupont streets yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock and 15 out of the 19 passengers were injured, five of them seriously. The cause of the accident was the loosening of a heavy wire on the left front tire, which became tangled in the steering gear and rendered it useless. The machine, running wild across the sidewalk, crashed through the railing and plunged over the bank before it could be stopped.

The seriously injured:

Mrs. Herman Johnson, five scalp wounds and badly lacerated arm; may lose sight of one eye.

Mrs. W. F. Miller, leg broken and badly bruised about chest.

Rev. J. E. Williams of Trinity Methodist church, collar bone broken, shoulder wrenched and chest badly bruised.

J. R. Crites, chest and right side badly bruised and prostrated by the shock.

A. E. McKay, owner of the stage, left hip wrenched and legs bruised; slightly injured.

A. E. Vaughn, wrist sprained.

Mrs. L. E. Vaughn, ankle sprained.

Father J. B. Boulet, back wrenched.

J. B. Davis, slight scalp wound.

Charles Graham, bruised.

Harry Belford, side bruised.

S. J. Williams of Seattle, knee twisted and ankle sprained.

R. C. McKee, leg bruised and lacerated.

Mrs. J. E. Williams, head bruised and face lacerated.

The automobile, according to the statement of R. C. McKee, one of the passengers, was coming down Dupont street at a moderate rate of speed, when without warning it took a sudden swoop to the right. The driver, Harry Belford, tugged furiously at the steering wheel, but the machine failed to respond, and struck the sidewalk on the right of the street. Belford saw it was out of his control and shutting off the power he threw on the brakes. The machine slowed and almost stopped when it hit the railing. But the barrier was too weak, and the heavy car smashed through it and toppled over the 15-foot bank. At the bottom it struck a post standing five feet high from the ground, and turned completely over, finally alighting upside down and end for end from its position on the road.

GLENN OFFENDS GEORGIA WOMEN

Congressman Who Introduced Ensnaring of Husbands Bill Gets Letters.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Atlanta, Ga., July 20.—Threats of dire vengeance and even death were received today by Representative Glenn, among numerous missives from indignant women from whom he has been hearing in unmeasured terms daily since he introduced a bill prohibiting the ensnaring of husbands by false charms. Glenn is in a very delicate position at home, also, his wife expressing her indignation at the number of letters he is receiving from women, and refuses to accept his explanation as to their nature.

Fearing that some fanatical woman will attempt to carry out her threat of death, Glenn has asked the house of representatives to detail a sergeant-at-arms to constantly attend him as a personal bodyguard. He says the real anger of many of the women who have made threats against him is not to be doubted and he fears for his life.

Glenn's bill, which stirred up the tempest, provides that any marriage resulting from false charms of brides shall be declared null and void. It puts pads, false teeth, cosmetics, wigs and rats on the list of tabooed beautifiers.

POWER TRUST AT WORK IN NEVADA

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Reno, Nev., July 20.—It is persistently rumored here that the Nevada-California Electric Power company has secured an option on the power interests of the Fleishackers on the Truckee river, both in California and Nevada.

The officials of the ecompany refuse to affirm or deny the rumor, which says that the new company contemplates closing the deal by the last of this month.

It is said the new company will practically control the electric power interests from Sacramento to Salt Lake City.

Cotton Mills Resume.

Augusta, Me., July 20.—The Edwards cotton mills of this city, which have been running on half time since March 1, will resume full time today in all departments. The mills employ about 1,100 hands.

No Chance for Pessimism Here

During the fiscal year ending June 30 last, Uncle Sam's domain exported breadstuffs to a total value of $265,350,769. The value during the preceding year was $174,247,796, thus showing an increase of about $30,000,000 for the year just closed.

These figures have been compiled by the department of commerce and labor and are given in the regular monthly circular of exports published by that department and forwarded to the various collectors of customs in the country.

The report received here this morning, aside from the above, gives other interesting information, among which is the fact that during the fiscal year the United States exported 100,212,181 bushels of wheat, valued at $99,595,532, and 13,875,357 barrels of wheat flour, valued at $63,930,421. To make up the grand total quoted at the beginning of the article is included other grains and flours figuring as breadstuffs.

As an individual city Portland holds second place for the year in point of prominence as a wheat shipping port in the United States. New York leads with 21,478,019 bushels, while Portland exported 13,411,581 bushels. The combined Puget sound ports exported 14,699,237 bushels and Philadelphia shipped 12,257,077 bushels. Baltimore followed with 8,763,989 bushels and Galveston holds sixth place with 8,112,828 bushels. While all the other ports showed a substantial increase over the shipments of a year ago, Galveston shows a very material decrease, the exports for the fiscal year ending June, 1907, having been 14,172,021 bushels.

In point of prominence as a flour exporting port Portland honds fourth position in the official circular. Philadelphia shipped more flour during the year than any other port in the states, her shipments being 2,622,919 barrels. The combined Puget sound ports exported 1,911,966 barrels, while Baltimore shipped 1,625,528 barrels and Portland 858,846 barrels.

So far as the ports of the Pacific northwest are concerned, the year just closed was the largest in history from a grain shipping point of view.

ARCHITECTS TO FIGHT DECISION

That the architects, dissatisfied with the action of the school board in ignoring their own rules and regulations in selecting plans for the new Albina High school, have cooled down and will no longer press their demands for the publication of Architect Summervell's decision, is denied by Ernest Kroner, one of the competing arcnitects.

Mr. Kroner says that the alleged favoritism practiced by the school board will be sifted to the bottom, and if it is found that the architects were invited to participate in a competition, under rules prescribed by the board, and were then jobbed, that the matter will be given full publicity and the unfair dealing of the board exposed.

"Mr. Wittenberg's little turn will be called," said Mr. Kroner. "Even though Mr. Summervell did say such uncomplimentary things about our work—as is implied in Mr. Wittenberg's statement to The Journal—as to arouse the sympathy of the board, we are prepared to bear the ignominy of having the full report published.

Views Radically Different.

"Really, I can't see how we are to get at the truth of this controversy, since two prominent members of the board, Mr. Wittenberg and Mr. Beach are reported in the papers as having given two diametrically opposed reasons why Mr. Summervell's report was not made public. Mr. Beach says that Mr. Summervell requested the board to keep his detailed report from the public, and Mr. Wittenberg says that it was because of the manner in which Mr. Summervell discussed the drawings and designs, and to save our feelings, that the report was suppressed.

"As to Mr. Beach's statement, we have requested Mr. Summervell to release the board from its promise not to publish the report and expect to hear from him on the subject tomorrow; while as for Mr. Wittenberg's statement, we ourselves have prepared a request to be presented to the board asking that we be humiliated by having the full report published and our shortcomings as architects laid bare to the world.

Report Is Wanted.

"No member of the school board has yet seen fit to set at rest the controversy, as to whether the competition was on the square, by plainly saying so and furnishing the proof which is in the possession of the board. It is needless to say that the proof is Mr. Summervell's report making the awards just as they were announced by the board.

"If we are wrong about this; if we have not been jobbed, it is simple enough to satisfy both ourselves and the public."

BOISE CASE FORECASTS HARD FIGHT

Most Stubborn Legal Battle in Multnomah's History Expected When Prominent Clubman Faces the Court.

Complaint Declares Boise's Peculations Will Aggregate $190,000 — Present Shortage $140,000 Outside Sum Used for Estate.

Judge Pipes' Statement.

"Concerning the charges against Whitney L. Boise in the criminal court, mentioned in your paper, I beg to say for Mr. Boise that they will be fully met in course of the procedure. The complaint is of course a mere accusation made upon ex parte statements, and fair play demands that the public judgment be suspended until the legal investigation shall disclose the truth of the matter.

"As to the other prejudicial statements made in the press concerning Mr. Boise, drawn doubtless from prejudiced sources, these also ought not to be and will not be credited by a fair public opinion pending the hearing. Mr. Boise asks no more and expects no less from the press and the public.

Charged with the embezzlement of large sums from the Hawthorne estate, Whitney L. Boise faced Judge Van Zante in the municipal court this morning to answer to the five complaints already filed against him, charging embezzlement of over $6,000 of the funds of the estate.

The preliminary hearing was postponed until Tuesday morning, July 28, at which time public investigation into the charges will be made before the court. Wednesday, July 22, the attorneys for the state and the defense will have a conference with Judge Van Zante to determine whether the preliminary hearing will embrace all of the five complaints now standing against Mr. Boise, or whether one complaint will be considered alone. According to M. O. Collins, husband of the complaining witness, Mrs. Catherine Collins, the Hawthorne heirs desire to have the complaints considered separately.

Bitter Contest Expected.

There is little doubt that the Boise prosecution will become, before it is completed and taken through all of the courts, one of the greatest legal battles in the history of the Multnomah county bar. In a statement made this morning by Martin L. Pipes, attorney for Mr. Boise, the defendant asks the public to withhold its opinion as to his guilt, promising to meet all the accusations made against him as they arise in the course of the trial. Those allegations pointing to his guilt, the statement contends, were drawn from prejudiced sources and can be met fairly when the time for trial has come. Other than the statement made by his attorney, Mr. Boise refuses to discuss the charges against him.

"Judge Pipes is preparing a statement for me," said Mr. Boise this morning when asked if he had any answer to make to the charges of the Hawthorne heirs. "I do not wish to make any statement at this time other than the one prepared by my attorney. I do not want the papers to hammer me all to pieces, however, before the case comes to trial."

$190,000 Alleged Stolen.

Mr. Boise is now charged in the complaints on file in the municipal court with the embezzlement of $6,377.89 of the funds of the Hawthorne estate, which funds he is said to have appropriated to his own use while acting as the employe and practically the manager of the estate. It was stated this morning however, by M. O. Collins, husband of the complaining witness who swore to the complaints filed against Mr. Boise, that the sum total of the amount alleged to have been controverted by the defendant would aggregate $190,000 during his 10 years stewardship of the estate.

THINKS TAFT IS COAST FAVORITE

Former Mayor Harry White of Seattle Claims Western States.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Los Angeles, July 20.—"The Pacific coast will be right at the front in this year's presidential campaign and a strong protective tariff on fruits raised here will be the keynote of the local activity," declared Harry White, former mayor of Seattle, now Candidate Taft's personal representative on the coast, who is just back from an extended trip. White attended the Chicago convention and later conferred with Republican national leaders.

"Some of the strongest speakers in the east will come to the Pacific coast," he said, "and an energetic canvass will be made through California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho and Montana. From start to finish, we may expect to be in the thick of the fray."

It is generally understood that White will be the personal representative of the party in the west, but he stated today that his line of work would not be clearly set forth until he is able to return to the east to confer with the campaign managers.

"There are," said White, "many issues, but one that appeals to every fruitraiser on the coast is the evident disposition of the Republican party to recognize the vast fruit industry of California. The east may clamor for cheap fruit but Taft and the members of the California congressional delegation know that a tariff on imported fruits is essential to the prosperity of this state.

"Another point should be emphasized on this coast, and that is that the Democratic plank in regard to the exclusion of Asiatics cuts no figure. Even if Bryan were elected, no promises to exclude Mongolians or Japanese could be carried out, for the senate will be Republican for the next four years and the Democrats by no stretch of imagination could redeem their promise."

CORNEILLI KILLS TWO AND HIMSELF

Mrs. Dolly Sharp Dies Almost Instantly—Peterkin Lives 5 Hours.

Just a little love, some hatred, a vast amount of jealousy and a hot day combined to make a tragedy in which Dave Cornellli, an Italian, aged about 27, shot and killed Mrs. Dolly Sharp and her fiance, Delmar Peterkin, at the Awahnee apartment house, 207½ Third street, at 8 o'clock last night. Mrs. Sharp was a widow of nine months, and Peterkin was a hard-working young man of 26 years, who loved her and was killed because he did. Mrs. Sharp was 24 years of age and left a little baby girl about two years of age living with a family by the name of Mack in Woodstock.

With a crowd of a thousand men and boys chasing him through the streets while his victims were suffering their death agonies, Cornellli ran to his room in the residence of Clifford Leonard, 328 Salmon street, and finished the tragedy by killing himself. Two revolvers, one an automatic Colt and the other of cheap make, were used by Cornellli, who fired twelve shots to kill three people. Both revolvers were of 32 calibre.

Others Left Broken-Hearted.

Aside from the three lives taken, there are those left behind whom Cornellli forgot to kill in order to obliterate all the suffering that his tragedy would occasion. One was the little two-year-old baby girl who is left fatherless and motherless, and the other is Maud Wilson, for 18 years a companion and chum of the murdered woman. Then there are the parents of Peterkin, living in Quebec, and Mrs. Sharp's relatives—a brother, Edward Butler, of Ridgeville, Wash., who will arrive tonight; an aunt, Mrs. Emma Cook, of Fort Canby, Wash., and an uncle by the name of McMillen living at Olney, Oregon.

Miss Wilson said this morning, as she stood sobbing in the waiting room

ARREST SUSPECT AFTER LONG TRIP

Man Believed to Be Peter Claudianes Taken Into Custody in Nevada.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Reno, Nev., July 20.—A San Francisco detective and three local officers returned here today after a 150-mile automobile chase for a man supposed to have been Peter Claudianes, wanted in San Francisco for the dynamiting of the Gallagher property.

The officers chased the man into the Western Pacific tunnel at Chilcott and took him prisoner. He answered the description of Claudianes in every detail, but his fellow-workmen deny that he is Claudianes.

They say he has been at work on the Western Pacific steadily for the past four months.

San Francisco, July 20.—A few minutes before the habeas corpus proceedings for the release of John Claudianes, alleged confessed dynamiter, were called in Judge Carrol Cook's court this morning, District Attorney Langdon and ex-Supervisor "Big Jim" Gallagher appeared in Judge Shortall's court, together with Tom Gallagher, and swore to a complaint charging the Greek with conspiracy to commit a felony. James Gallagher signed the warrant.

Judge Shortall issued the warrant, fixing the bail at $10,000, and the Greek was then locked up in a common cell in the city prison. Shortly afterward he was taken to Judge Cook's courtroom to appear in habeas corpus proceedings.

Gallagher also swore to complaints charging Peter Claudianes, John Doe and Richard Roe with the same offense. Bail in each case was set at $10,000 bonds, or $5,000 cash. The specific charge against the men is that "they conspired to destroy property by chemical compounds or explosives," and the Gallagher home, in East Oakland, is mentioned, the explosion of April 23 being made the basis for the action.

Although the offense as charged is but a misdemeanor, the large bail is rendered possible because the offense is indictable.

ANKENY TO HELP OPEN COLUMBIA

Washington Senator Determined With Aid of Oregon Delegation to Make Great Stream Navigable From Dalles to Canada.

Continued United Effort by Both States Cannot Fail in Securing Early Accomplishment of Work Started, He Declares.

"I regard the opening of the Columbia as of the greatest interest, not only to the people of the Inland Empire, but to Portland as well. The future of this city depends upon the country tributary to the Columbia. I believe that a continued united effort by the Oregon and Washington delegations to the national congress can not fail in securing the early accomplishment of this great object."

Senator Ankeny of Washington has been in Portland and Vancouver for the past few days attending to his banking interests. The senator, although invited to attend the banquet and other meetings of the Washington State Press association, did not have time to do so. When asked what was being done by the northwest delegation to open up the Columbia river he said:

"The people of the state of Washington, especially those of the inland empire, are directly and vitally interested in the improvement of the Columbia river. It affords me no little gratification to refer to the preliminary surveys of the river on the portions between Kettle Falls and Bridgeport and between Wenatchee and Priest Rapids. Those surveys, which I may say were secured through the efforts of our united delegation, are the beginning of a great and monumental work. It is scarcely too much to predict that some day in the future we shall see our great highway, the Columbia, and its tributaries open to the commerce that naturally must follow it from its upper waters to the sea.

"The work is directly in line with the comprehensive plan for the improvement of inland waterways and the conservation of natural resources, indorsed by the administration. The beginning has been made, and the work, I am confident, will go steadily on, not only in our own state, but throughout the country. You will recall the slogan of the national rivers and harbors convention—'River regulation is rate regulation.' It is a truism directly applicable to our own state. We will keep fighting all along the line until the mighty Columbia is fully open to navigation.

"The opening of the Columbia to unobstructed navigation is not such a herculean task as is generally supposed. There are now only comparatively few places where it will be found necessary to ask the government to help.

Four Hundred Navigable Miles.

"After the completion of the locks at Celilo, the river is navigable to Priest Rapids, a point well toward the center of the state of Washington. When the obstructions at the Little Dalles and a few other minor ones are removed, the river will be navigable for nearly 400 holes above Priest Rapids.

"With all these small obstacles out of the way the river will be opened to navigation for a distance of approximately 1,000 miles. This means that a cargo of wheat can be transported quickly and economically from the northern boundary of Washington to Portland or any other lower river wheat port.

CITIZENS OF LINN IN GUN FIGHT WITH PAIR OF ITALIAN THIEVES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Albany, Or., July 20.—A pitched battle in which eight or ten shots were fired on each side took place early this morning between two robber Italians and a posse of Sweet Home citizens.

Several days ago two itinerant Italians visited a camp of their countrymen in that vicinity who are engaged in cutting wood for William Pound, a contractor. Not being able to obtain employment or any consideration at the hands of their fellows they began to terrorize the community by acts of thievery and outlawry, finally stealing about $400 from the camp of the Italian woodcutters. An organized effort was made to apprehend them and resulted in the battle of this morning.

A strong posse has been organized, and the latest report is that the robbers are surrounded and will soon be taken.

BERESFORD MAY DO POLITICS TO DOWN SIR JOHN FISHER

(United Press Leased Wire.)

London, July 20.—It was announced here today that Admiral Lord Charles Beresford is about to lay down his naval command and seek re-entrance into the house of commons, to fight the policies of his old political foe, the first lord of the admiralty, Sir John Fisher, and his supporters on the naval board.

The fight is to be made against retrenchment in British naval expenditures. Admiral Beresfords' resignation is to follow immediately the maneuvers now in progress in the North sea. When he is in parliament Admiral Beresford proposes to attack Fisher as the evil genius of England's maritime greatness, representing that a few more years of his management will reduce England to second rate on the seas.

Sir John has strengthened fleets which Beresford declares strong enough and reduced others that Beresford declares already too weak.
