STEAM CARS ON FOURTH REPLACED BY GASOLINE

The perfecting of the McKeen gasoline car practically settles the question of placing these cars in service on the Fourth street line of the Southern Pacific in Portland as soon as the steam cars are withdrawn. There is no intimation nor preparation for installing electric equipment.

The Southern Pacific management is said to have entertained from the first no idea of operating any but gasoline cars on this line between Portland and Hillsboro should it be necessary to take off the steam locomotives.

E. H. Harriman now regards gasoline cars as a permanent success, and has taken steps to build them on a large scale. He has organized a corporation to be known as the McKeen Motor Car company, which will build gasoline cars exclusively for railroad use. W. R. McKeen Jr., superintendent of motive power and machinery for years on the Union Pacific system, has resigned to take charge of the construction department of the McKeen Motor Car company.

The Union Pacific has just completed new $1,000,000 shops at Omaha, and the McKeen Motor Car company will lease the old shop plant. The plans for the new motor car company have not yet been completed, and it is not definitely decided whether the plant will be permanently located at Omaha or elsewhere. Inquiries for the cars have come from all parts of the United States and from foreign countries.

The Union Pacific has at the present time 41 of the cars either completed or under construction. They have proved to be practicable and serviceable on branch and suburban lines, for passenger and express service, and have become popular with the people on lines served.

The Southern Pacific company has tried out two of the cars on Portland grades. The first car brought to this city did not prove to be powerful enough, and did not work smoothly on the Fourth street grade. The next car to be tried was much better, and would have served had not further improvements been made by the inventor at the Omaha shops.

The successful model at present in service and from which future cars will be patterned is a 200-horse power car, No. 8, which has for some months been in regular service between Beatrice and Lincoln, Neb. It has a steel frame, side entrance, is dust proof, air proof and waterproof around the windows, has a wedge-shaped front end, affording very low air-resistance, and is a well-ventilated and hygienic car. It is similar to the steel car last tried on Portland lines, the only material improvement being in the mechanism.

FIGHT ON CONRAD LEADS TO MORE SENSATIONS

I would rather believe John Conrad's word than the word of some councilmen—Councilman M. J. Driscoll.

I voted for the transfer of Conrad's license because Driscoll as a member of the Big Ten asked me to—Councilman George L. Baker.

If the council seeks to revoke the licenses of the saloonkeepers who are not worthy of holding a license, why do the members not revoke the licenses of the dive keepers in the north end who are running places ten times worse than Bouthiler could have in the Board of Trade building?—Councilman George B. Cellars.

These and many other sensational statements were made by the councilmen this morning when the transfer of the liquor license of E. H. Spranger, 40 Sixth street, to F. X. Bouthlier in the Board of Trade building came up for consideration. After debating the proposition for more than an hour, the members adjourned without taking action.

The debate arose over the action of Councilman Wills in asking permission to withdraw his name from the committee report recommending the transfer after the report had been adopted. Wills stated that he had received information that John Conrad was connected with the place and that he wished to reconsider action on the transfer.

Trouble Starts.

Immediately the council was in a turmoil. Driscoll arose and asked him where he got his information and when Wills said that he had nothing definite, Driscoll stated that he did not believe in the kind of a game that the majority party was pursuing and further that he did not believe in persecuting a man.

"You have broken John Conrad," said Driscoll. "He is down and out—broke. Now you want to rub it in. I do not believe in such a game. Give every man a fair chance to make a living and that is all that you are expected to do. I stood by Conrad because I believed him to be honest and because I believed that he was being persecuted. I still believe the same, but if you or any other person can show me that Conrad has anything to do with the saloon to be installed in the Board of trade I will vote to revoke the license."

Baker then arose and said that even if Conrad did not own the place and Bouthlier did there was enough in the police records to warrant the council not granting Bouthlier a license.

Other members were on their feet trying to be heard on the question, and the meeting commenced to resemble a suffragists' gathering. Rushlight finally was heard above the rest who were demanding the floor and said that he had been handed the transfer by Councilman Dunning and asked Dunning to explain to the council what he knew in regard to the transfer.

Transfer a Bit Shady.

In the temporary quiet that followed Dunning stated that he had known Bouthiler for many years and that he was all right. Before he could go much further Belding got an opportunity to talk, and said that he had visited the saloon in the Board of Trade building and that he talked to a man who was there at the time. From the conversation with the man, Belding said that he was satisfied there was something shady with the transfer.

"This man told me," said Belding, "that the fixtures were those that belonged to Conrad when he operated the Pullman cafe. I also learned that when the person who owns the saloon endeavored to have the fixtures repaired that a large company engaged in such business refused to take the work because they could not learn who would pay for it. Such transactions seemed shady to the business house, and they refused to take the work. It seems to me that I am justified in refusing to transfer the license until after an investigation."

Then the personalities flew in Belding's direction. He was accused of unfair play in that he came to the liquor license committee and asked that a transfer be not made to his ward, and his request was granted.

"Now why do you come and ask that this license be held up when Councilman Dunning, in whose ward the saloon is situated, comes and vouches for it?" asked several of the members.

Cellars Springs Surprise.

Belding was nonplused, but before the other members knew it Wills asked City Attorney Kavanaugh if he had the right to scratch off his name from the report. Kavanaugh said that he had not, and that the only way to do was to reconsider the action on the report.

Councilman Cellars made perhaps the most sensational speech of the debate when he called attention to the fact that for the past seven months he had heard "nothing but Conrad, Conrad, Conrad, while there was never anything before the council in regard to the dives in the north end which, from my source of information, must be vastly more wicked than Conrad's place."

"I know," he continued, "that they are ten times worse than any saloon that can be run in the board of trade building."

Cellars closed by saying that he hoped the police department would furnish evidence to the council in regard to all of these places and that general action would follow which will be fair to all concerned.

Baker Anxious to Get Right.

Baker arose in reply to Cellars and after he had talked awhile, in which he renounced his former position in voting for Conrad's transfer, he was interrupted by Kellaher, who asked whether Baker did not know that Conrad ran a dive when he signed the transfer. Baker replied that he did.

"Then why did you vote for it?" asked Kellaher.

"Because Driscoll, as a member of the Big Ten, asked me to," he replied.

Continuing, Baker said:

"But now that I see the folly of my way there is no reason why I should continue in such a course. I got my fingers badly soiled and I want to get out. I want to renounce such action and get right, and you may be sure that I will in the future."

Thus the debate continued until Annand moved to adjourn. The matter will come up the first thing this afternoon and action is liable to occur. The only vote this morning which would show how the lines are drawn was in reference to reconsider. The vote stood 8 to 6, showing that the majority party was still in control, although a different vote may be cast when it comes time to finally deciding whether the transfer shall be allowed.

PROCTER & GAMBLE (P&G) NAPHTHA SOAP

How Much is Your Time Worth?

A dollar a day? Two dollars? Three dollars?

How long does it take you to do the week's washing?

A whole day?

Now, if you could find a soap that would enable you to get through by noon, instead of five in the afternoon, you would use that soap, wouldn't you?

There is such a soap.

Its name is P. & G. Naphtha Soap.

It sells for 5 cents a cake. It would pay you to use it, if it cost you 25 cents—because of the time, labor and fuel it saves.

It would pay you to use it, if it cost you 25 cents—because of the time, labor and fuel it saves.

But it doesn't cost 25 cents a cake—the price is about the same as that of ordinary laundry soap. 17

STOLE RINGS, LEFT CITY, THEN ENLISTED

Enlisting under the banner of Uncle Sam will not help Charles Riggs materially when Detective Tom Coleman arrives at Monterey, Cal., for Riggs is credited with having stolen a number of articles from a Portland rooming house last month.

Riggs roomed in the Wapato, Fifteenth and Alder, while in Portland. The day he left the place Mrs. J. H. Barton missed two diamond rings, a gold watch worth $75 and $10 in cash. Riggs was suspected, and the detectives were put upon his trail. He managed to keep out of sight until he left the city a few days later.

Letters were received here several days ago which conveyed the information that Riggs was in Monterey. Apparently forgetting that the Portland police wanted to see him, he was thoughtless enough to write to acquaintances in the city. Inquiry revealed the fact that he had enlisted in the army soon after reaching Monterey.

Coleman leaves tonight to get Riggs, who also went by the name of Dagy. A certain amount of red tape must be unwound before Uncle Sam turns over his employe to the Portland detectives, but Coleman is expected to return within a week.

Luck seems to be with the Portland police so far as having men wanted here apprehended elsewhere is concerned. O'Meara and Harwitz, who had kept two tailors have just been returned from San Francisco, and this morning Chief Grittmacher was informed by the Tacoma police that Ralph Mercer, wanted in Portland for passing a worthless check on De Voe's grocery, Sandy road, was being held there on a charge of grand larceny. It is believed that Mercer passed a number of bad checks on various stores in this city, but he was positively identified by this grocer.

Detective Hellyer left this afternoon for Tacoma to bring back Merrer, as the Tacoma police are willing that he be tired for the offense committed here.

PHILIP GEVURTZ TO HEAD OREGON A. O. U. W.

Delegates to Oregon Degree of Honor.

Philip Gevurtz will in all probability head the Oregon jurisdiction of the Ancient Order of United Workmen for the coming year. The election of officers will be held this afternoon and it is expected that the usual rule will be followed and the present officers advanced all down the line.

Mr. Gevurtz, as grand foreman, is next to the grand master and will probably succeed him. If the same rule is followed in the Degree of Honor, Mrs. Harriet C. Looney of Jefferson, the present grand lady of honor, will be elected grand chief of honor of the Degree of Honor.

There were some few changes in the constitution discussed this morning and it was voted to consolidate the offices of recorder and financier of the local lodges wherever the local lodges desired. All of the work is being directed toward economizing on expenditure except in the line of extending the field work.

It was decided to appropriate $5,000 for field work in Oregon the coming year, the money to be raised by a special tax levy of 20 cents, payable semi-annually. About $1,000 a year will be saved to the A. O. U. W. by the discontinuance of the publication of the Oregon Reporter, the official organ of the order.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon will come the election of officers. The principal fight will be over the position of grand recorder, which is the stepping stone to the position of grand master according to the rule of succession usually followed.

Philip Gevurtz.

Following the election will come reports of committees including that on jurisprudence, which has been arranging the various changes in the constitution made necessary by the substitution of a board of directors for the old board of trustees.

It is believed that the Degree of Honor will follow the lead of the A. O. U. W. and will also amend its constitution so as to have a board of directors in place of the old board of trustees.

This afternoon, the D. of H. will hold its annual memorial services for the two members of the Oregon grand lodge who have died during the past year. These are Mrs. Mary A. Hare of Hillsboro and Mrs. Jennie B. Quinton of Portland, formerly chairman of the board of trustees. Mrs. Mamie W. Briggs will deliver the eulogies.

KLAMATH FALLS SWELTERS IN HEAT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Klamath Falls, Or., July 22.—Unusual hot weather is prevailing here, and one heat prostration has been reported. The maximum temperature during the past few days has been 99 degrees. Prostrations here from heat are rare, few having been reported in a long series of years.

WATTS REBUKED IN JUSTICE COURT

Outcome of Hagan Places Quietus on Future "Own Recognizance" Cases.

"This 'public-be-damned' policy has been in force long enough. You had no right whatever to swear out a warrant for this man and then get a lawyer for him and help him to obtain bail without letting me know what you were doing."

This was a part of the rebuke given to John F. Watts, an attorney against whom disbarment proceedings are pending, by Judge Olson in the justice court this morning.

At the same time Deputy District Attorney Vreeland announced that hereafter when a man is arrested he will not be taken to the district attorney's office for an informal preliminary hearing, but that all such harings must be before the court from which the warrant is issued. Such are the instructions of District Attorney Cameron.

It has frequently happened that a lawyer will persuade the district attorney's office to let his client go upon his own recognizance. Often the police or the constables have trouble finding him again. There will be little more "own recognizance" business hereafter.

Watts was severely criticized in court by Justice Olson. He was the complainant against J. H. Hogan, who had shot a pet deer of Watts', thus violating the game laws.

It came to the ears of Justice Olson that Watts had so thoroughly scared Hogan, a stranger in the city, that he had paid a goodly sum to avoid standing trial. It is said Watts agreed to drop the case against him. Hogan appeared at court yesterday morning, and as he was reluctant to tell of his dealings with Watts he went to the county jail under $200 bail, which last evening was procured. As there was no positive evidence of an attempt to defeat justice, Hogan was merely assessed $10 costs.

When Watts asked that the case be dropped, his grilling by the justice took place. The supreme court will decide July 28, next week, on the disbarment proceedings already filed.

Just around the corner in the municipal court, Hogan was up for discharging a weapon in the city limits. Watts appeared here also, and as this court was not cognizant of the peculiar circumstances, he was able to get Hogan off with a payment of $2.50 costs, nominally charged to Watts but paid by Hogan.

MRS. FENTON DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. J. D. Fenton, wife of Dr. J. D. Fenton, died at her home on Overton street last night at 7 o'clock. Death was due primarily to goitre of long standing, which about one month ago confined her to her bed. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 from Trinity church, of which Mrs. Fenton had been an active member and a worker in the Ladies Guild. Rev. A. A. Morrison will officiate.

About eight years ago Mrs. Fenton consulted Dr. Kocher of Berne, Switzerland, and other noted specialists in Vienna. Following the advice of the latter, she took the rest cure and seemed to regain her former health. About six months ago she had an attack of grip which brought back the symptoms from which she had suffered. Dr. Crile, a specialist of Cleveland, Ohio, in consultation with Dr. K. A. J. Mackenzie, advised the Beebe serum treatment, and this seemed to be successful until a sudden change developed which baffled medical skill.

Mrs. Fenton was the eldest daughter of Mrs. Kate Brasel, an old-time resident of this city. She leaves besides husband and a son, who is 2½ years of age, five sisters—Mrs. Lewis Allerhoff, Mrs. A. J. Sinclair, Mrs. Herman Jones, Miss Florence and Miss Kate Brasel—and a brother, Herbert W. Brasel.

Friends are invited to attend the church service. Interment will be at Lone Fir.

Teacher—What is it, Tom? Tom—Jimmy's swearing. Teacher—What did he say? Tom—Well, marm, if you say over all the cuss words you know, I'll tell you when you come to it.—Kansas City Star.

FOUNTAINS TO KILL ALL GERMS

New High School to Be Equipped With Purest Water Supply.

Among the most interesting of the modern up-to-date features in the plans of the new Albina high school is the bubbling drinking fountain, provision having been made by Architects Whitehouse and Honeyman for the installation of these fountains, thus doing away with the ordinary water faucet and disease-breeding tin cup.

Bubbling Fountain for New Albina High School.

The investigations of medical men throughout the country have proved that disease-producing bacilli frequently lurk in the mouth and are communicated to others by means of the drinking cup.

The bubbling fountain is sanitary for the reason that the lips of the drinker do not touch the receptacle and the continuous flow of water mechanically washes away any germs that might otherwise find lodgment.

The water spurts up through the center of an acorn-shaped bowl and bubbles over the outer surface, falling into a circular basin and is carried away in a waste pipe. The water may bubble continuously or made to flow by pressing a valve. The continuous flow is regarded by the health authorities as superior to the type controlled by a stop valve.

It is probable that the school board will have these sanitary drinking fountains installed in all the public school buildings.

CONCERT TONIGHT AT HOLLADAY PARK

Signor De Caprio's band will play at Holladay Park this evening, the concert to begin at 8 o'clock. A popular program will be rendered. Last night's concert in City Park drew the largest crowds that have so far attended an evening concert by the band, and nearly every number was encored.

This luscious, paste-pleasing confection is ideal for every sort of social function, whether as a dessert or to be nibbled with the punch or the ices. FLEET OFF FOR AUCKLAND TODAY

Honolulu Has Been a Gracious Host and Jackies Model Guests.

By H. Lee Clotworthy, United Press staff correspondent aboard the United States ship Georgia.

Honolulu, July 22.—Everything is in readiness aboard the American battleship fleet today for its departure at 6 o'clock this evening for Auckland, New Zealand, on the second longest leg of its around-the-world cruise from San Francisco to New York. The distance to be covered on this leg of the voyage is 3,810 miles.

The entertainment at Honolulu has been one of the most successful tendered the fleet since its departure from Hampton roads. The blue jackets were royally received here and not a sailor has been arrested since the battleships arrived.

Only 15 of the battleships will sail tonight, the Minnesota having received orders to remain in port and get the mail expected on the next steamer from San Francisco. After taking the mail aboard, the Minnesota will follow the fleet, overtoking it before Auckland is sighted.

The five men injured by the explosion of the steam pipe in the boiler room of the Kearsarge are doing well and all are expected to recover.

After remaining a week at Auckland the fleet will sail, about August 15, for its 1,200-mile cruise to Sydney, Australia.

Melbourne will be the next port visited, after which the fleet will touch at Albany, sailing from there for Manila, which will probably be reached by October 1.

Twelve days will be spent in the Philippines, after which the battleships will sail for Yokohama. At the Japanese port the fleet will be divided, one squadron going to Amoy, China, while the rest of the vessels will return direct to Manila.

Auckland, New Zealand, July 22.—News of the sailing of the American fleet from Honolulu was received here today with enthusiasm that indicates a royal entertainment for the bluejackets and officers of the big fighting machines when they arrive in this port, August 9. Preparations for the entertainment of the fleet are practically completed and no trouble has been spared to assure the success of the plans. American flags will be seen in all quarters of the city and there will be countless banquets, sporting events and receptions.

COURT ROOM SCENE OF WARM FRACAS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Olympia, Wash., July 22.—While the bride's mother and the groom's sister engaged in a personal encounter with fists and parasol, Grover Holopeter and Imogene Glenn, aged 19 and 14, respectively, attempted to pull off a second elopement from the justice courtroom in this city last evening.

Young Holopeter and the girl eloped and were married July 7. They were arrested in Tacoma, July 11, and the groom and his sister, Mrs. Edith Gilbert, now face a charge of forgery in connection with signing a document purporting to give the consent of the girl's parents to the wedding. Imogene has been with her parents since the arrest, and Holopeter is out on bail.

Yesterday Holopeter's preliminary examination began. During the trial several encounters between Mrs. N. G. Glenn, mother of the girl bride, and Mrs. Gilbert were averted, but just after court adjourned Mrs. Glenn struck Mrs. Gilbert on the head with her parasol. Mrs. Gilbert returned with a right to the jaw, and in the mix-up the youthful bridal couple ran for a cab that was awaiting them in the street. The bride's mother grabbed the groom by the coat-tails and was dragged down the stairway, where she succeeded in delaying the flight until Mr. Glenn arrived on the scene. A street fight between Glenn and Holopeter was averted by the arrival of officers.

Imogene insisted on remaining with her husband, even if she had to go to jail with him, but after the whole party had driven around the city for three hours in the cab the girl consented to go again with her parents.

COUNCIL AT WAR OVER PAVEMENT

Vaughn and Concannon Hurl Large Chunks of It at Each Other.

Another paving war has broken out in the city council which promises to equal the fight between the Warren Construction company and the Barber Asphalt company of several years ago. This time the fight is over the introduction of Hassam pavement and started over the minority and majority reports of the street committee in regard to the petition of the property owners on Williams avenue asking for the pavement between Killingsworth and Ainsworth avenues.

A long debate followed the introduction of the reports in which several of the councilmen engaged in personal tilts before it was finally decided to have City Engineer D. W. Taylor cut out a piece of the pavement and exhibit it to the council at their next meeting.

Councilman Vaughn led the fight for the pavement and stated that he had seen specimens of it in Seattle and believed it to be equally as good as bitulithic. Councilman Concannon questioned the judgment of Vaughn and asked whether the pavement he had seen was not on the side of a hill where there was little traffic.

Vaughn replied that such might be the case, but whether it was or not he had talked to City Engineer Thomson of Seattle, who said that the pavement was all right. Concannon replied that if the pavement were of the kind that it had to be placed where there is little traffic that it was the kind of pavement that should be placed in a glass cage.

Vaughn was on his feet in a minute and asked Concannon whether he had seen any of the pavement, and if not where he had secured his opinion that the pavement was not good. Concannon's reply to the effect that he had not seen the pavement but had formed his opinion from the remarks of persons who had, led Vaughn to say that Concannon was the kind of a councilman who should be put in a glass cage.

This pulled Concannon out of his chair with a hot retort on his lips, but it was drowned in the noise of Mayor Lane's gavel which put a stop to the personalities.

The debate then proceeded in regard to the construction of the pavement and in order to acquaint the councilman as to whether the method of mixing the crushed rock and cement was a good one the city engineer was instructed to have an exhibit of the pavement at the council meeting three weeks from today. The reports of the committee were continued over until the same date.

NEW BIDS ASKED ON GOVERNMENT DOCKS

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, July 22.—It was announced today that the war department had released P. J. Carlin, the lowest bidder on the big government docks here, from his offer to do the work. Carlin failed to qualify to the satisfaction of the war department. This action will delay the work for several months. New bids have been called for. The contractors have until August 25 to put in their bids. A million and a half dollars is available at present for the work at Fort Mason docks.

COURT TIRES OF DELAY

Judge Wolverton, Incensed at Slow Methods of Attorneys in Booth Trial, Takes Prosecution and Defense to Task.

Judge Wolverton's displeasure at the extreme tedium and slow movement of the trial of the Booth conspiracy case has been up to this time about the only item of interest to be brought out by the procedure. According to the court too much time is being taken with the presentation of the evidence, and both District Attorney McCourt and Dan J. Malarkey, especially the latter, have been taken mildly to task for not making haste.

Yesterday afternoon the court asked Mr. McCourt to hurry with his examination of witnesses and presentation of documentary evidence. Just before the adjournment of court for the evening he took Mr. Malarkey to task, telling him that the trial was being unnecessarily retarded by the slow moving methods of conducting the case and closed by insisting that the proceedings be hurried.

This morning again Judge Wolverton interrupted Mr. Malarkey as he was reading a document, telling him he had read the same statement before and that he was wasting time by reading it again. Mr. Malarkey answered by saying that he desired to be sure that the entire subject was included in the record.

Bridges Testifies.

James T. Bridges, ex-register of the Roseburg land office, was on the witness stand during all of the forenoon and was not allowed to go until some time after the noon intermission. Mr. Bridges spent all of the morning testifying on cross examination to a mass of government documents introduced by the defense relating to the procedure of Thomas Agee before the land office. By these documents all of Agee's transactions are set out and from them it will be argued by the defense that there is no evidence to show that any of the defendants entered into a conspiracy with Agee.

Agee, the chief witness for the government, is expected to be placed on the stand some time during the afternoon. Owing to the arguments over the admissibility of documentary evidence by the government it is probable however that Agee will not have much time left to him during the late afternoon in which to tell his main story for the government.

Judging from the slowness of the trial it is very probable that the case will not be finished this week but will go over into next week, perhaps well toward the middle, before the jury is given an opportunity to express its views concerning the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

MAN LEAVES BABY THEN DISAPPEARS

What to do with the babies is the question that is troubling the officers of the Babies' Home and the juvenile court. They are coming in faster than the attendants know what to do with them and they are almost driven to the expedient of inaugurating a day to give babies away as was sung about in the song of our grandmothers. Three have been placed in charge of the juvenile court during the past 10 days.

Yesterday Mrs. Martha Wasson, who lives on Grant street and has a family of four children of her own, came into the court bringing a six months old boy in her arms. The baby had very black hair and merry black eyes and was bright and attractive.

She said that two weeks ago a man called at her house and said he was from San Francisco. He wanted to leave the baby with her if she would care for it and would pay her $1 a day, providing he might come every day and see it. She was glad to get the money and took the baby. The man has not shown up since. Judge Bronaugh entered an order admitting the baby to the home, as Mrs. Wasson could not afford to care for it and for her own children also.
