

BISHOP POTTER DIES AT NEW YORK SUMMER HOME

Bishop Henry Codman Potter, Who Passed Away Last Night at the Age of 74 Years.

(Special Dispatch to the Journal.)
Cooperstown, N. Y., July 22.—Henry Codman Potter, seventh Protestant Episcopal bishop of the diocese of New York, passed away at 8:30 o'clock last night, at Fernleigh, his summer home, after a protracted illness. He was 74 years of age. Early yesterday morning he relapsed into a state of coma from which he never emerged.

At the bedside were: Mrs. Potter, his wife; Mrs. Mason D. Davidge, who came from California, and Miss Sarah Potter, daughter; Alonzo Potter, his son; Edward S. Clark, Stephen C. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. F. Clark, Mrs. Charles Russell and Mrs. William Hyde, his other two daughters, who are abroad, have been notified.

Death was due primarily to embolism in the right leg, following a long attack of liver and stomach trouble. Bishop Potter suffered a severe relapse day before yesterday, and though oxygen was given, his decline was gradual. No arrangements for the funeral have as yet been made, but it is probable that services will be held here and that the body will be removed to New York, where a public funeral will be held at Grace church.

Biographical.
Bishop Potter was first and foremost a churchman in the sense that the Episcopal church uses that word. He came almost naturally by his standing in the church, for both his father and his uncle were bishops. Henry Codman Potter was born in Schenectady, N. Y., May 18, 1835, the son of Bishop Alonzo Potter, of the diocese of Pennsylvania. He was educated in the Episcopal academy, Philadelphia, but like Phillips Brooks he took his divinity course in the famous old Alexandria Theological seminary in Virginia, graduating therefrom in 1857. Strangely enough, he did not have a collegiate education. After his ordination in 1858, his first charge was in Greensburg, Pa., for one year. He then went to St. John's, Troy, where he was rector from 1859 to 1866. He resigned in this position to accept the post of assistant rector of Trinity church, Boston, where he continued until he became rector of Grace church, New York, in 1883. He resigned this post to become conductor bishop of New York, to his uncle, Horatio Potter. The latter died in 1887, and his nephew then became bishop.

Friend of the Down-trodden.
Bishop Potter had not long been in his new office when he began to exhibit the energy and vigor which later made him the leader of his church. He summed up in his mind the social conditions in Europe, he decided to remain down in the city proper and to look after the poor of that section. He came to know this life intimately, and it was about this time that he gave forth his famous utterance that the Episcopal church, in spite of its magnificent traditions, would be a monstrous impertinence in case it did not exert itself toward the solution of social problems and the uplifting of the masses of the people.

Liberal Temperance Views.
The bishop's liberal views on temperance subjected him to considerable criticism. The most striking manifestation of his theory in this regard was the dedication of the famous "subway tavern" in New York, with prayer and an address by the bishop. This subway tavern was a sort of saloon where the workingman, it was planned, could go and get his drink quietly without being subjected to any of the annoyances which became the center of sensational attention for several months in mercantile New York, but at length it was the novelty failed to attract the poorer classes, and within a year or so was abandoned as a reform saloon and became very like any other saloon, a financial experiment which was a failure.

The bishop took many journeys to Europe, where he received of course, with marked attention. That States did not disturb his peace in any way was shown by his utterance in London, and his repetition of the same thing when he returned to New York, that "You may depend upon it there is no love lost between the two countries. I think there is a good deal of gain about the British protestations of love for America."

He was very liberal with his ministers and was especially hearty toward Dr. Rainsford, at whose views and ways many New York churchmen at first looked askance. But one day, when a gathering of ministers was at his house, Dr. Rainsford arrived late, having just come in from a fishing trip and wearing heart-aching boots. This was too much for the bishop and he said abruptly, "Oh, Rainsford, please go and put on something canonical," and Rainsford did.

His Cathedral Monument.
The greatest monument to Bishop Potter's memory will undoubtedly be the famous Cathedral of St. John the Divine, which is being built on University heights, New York. The bishop threw his whole soul into this great work, raised millions of dollars for it, but he did not live to see more than a small part of the magnificent edifice completed. He himself never expected to see the completion of the work and did not even expect the next generation to see it, but with characteristic greatness of mind he planned far ahead and rejoiced in the idea that some future generation would enjoy the magnificent sight of the completed cathedral.

In 1889-1890 the bishop made a journey around the world, visiting the Philippines and highly approving the work which General Otis and the United States army were doing in that region. In the winter of 1894-95, Bishop Potter took another trip around the world, inspecting the various missionary stations and getting from the journey rich material for addresses, lectures and sermons, and bringing before the eyes of the church what he regarded as the real value of missionary work in foreign lands. In 1902, upon his request for a successor, Rev. Dr. J. H. Greer, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, was appointed.

CHURCH HAS LOST ONE OF ITS MOST CONSPICUOUS MEN
Rev. George B. Van Waters, D. D., of St. David's Episcopal church, pays the following tribute to the late Bishop Potter:
"In the death of Bishop Potter our church in America has lost its greatest and most conspicuous figure. He was a man of striking individuality with sufficient courage to express his innermost conviction. Despite environment he was thoroughgoingly democratic, sympathizing with the masses and helping to ameliorate their condition. Often he made himself unpopular with many men of wealth and influence, and yet it is human to court. I presume few ecclesiastics possess the moral courage of Bishop Potter. He was eminently successful and useful in his ministry because he was vitally interested in the welfare of mankind."
Rev. A. Morrison, D. D., of Trinity Episcopal church said:
"The Episcopal church in America has lost its most distinguished champion. His name will always be associated with the building of the great cathedral in New York, one of the largest in the world. An appreciation of Bishop Potter will be written by those who knew him best, and there is nothing that I can say that would add to his fame."

GRAND GATHERING OF BRYAN HOSTS

California Democracy Will Ratify at San Francisco Friday Night.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, July 22.—It was announced today that the first general ratification of the nomination of Bryan and Kern for president and vice-president will be held at Dreamland pavilion here Friday night by the Democrats of California.
The program, which was prepared today, includes 10-minute speeches by Theodore A. Bell, who won distinction by his address as temporary chairman of the national Democratic convention at Denver; James G. Maguire, James I. Phelan, Walter MacArthur, Frank I. Gould, Joseph F. Valentine, president of the International Shipbuilders and Iron Workers; W. A. Cole, president of the district council of carpenters; John W. Sweeney, president of the Labor Council and Supervisor Glavin.

COMMERCIAL FEUD; LAUMEISTER OUT

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, July 22.—Members of the Merchants exchange are today going about the floor of the exchange with their eyes to the front, as the result of the annual election of officers, which closed last night. When the ballot was all counted, C. S. Laumeister, president of the exchange, was found to have been defeated for that office of director and hence he will retire as president.
Laumeister charges his defeat to the shipping and lumber members of the exchange, who, his friends declare, are

FOR THE BUSY WOMAN

Complexion Treatment That Requires Only a Few Minutes.
Writers of articles on the care of the complexion seldom take into consideration that the average woman has something to occupy her time in addition to exercising, massaging and going to beauty specialists. Some suggestions are perfectly ridiculous as, for instance, one in an eastern magazine which recently advised every woman to spend two or three hours daily on horseback. On the other hand, here is a simple recipe that can be prepared at home and whose application requires only two or three minutes daily. Obtain at your drug store 2 ounces of Rose Water, 1 ounce of Cologne Spirits and 4 ounces of Epsomite (skin food). Take these home and put the Epsomite in a pint of hot water (not boiling) and after dissolved strain and let cool, then add the Rose Water and Cologne Spirits. The daily use of this simple and harmless face wash tones up the skin and restores the bright, rosy complexion of youth. The Epsomite prevents or removes freckles, tan and sunburn. This fine toilet preparation is to be preferred to powders, rouges and cosmetics.

TWO AUTOS; STREET CAR; AMBULANCE

(United Press Leased Wire.)
San Francisco, July 22.—L. L. Johnson, a wealthy fruit dealer, is at the hospital today suffering from severe bruises as a result of a collision between two automobiles and a streetcar late yesterday.

Johnson's chauffeur, Parker Fox, was driving at a high rate of speed when a machine driven by Bert Oakes was delayed directly in his path by the stopping of a streetcar. Fox was running his machine so fast he was unable to stop and he threw it into the curb.

Striking Oakes' machine a glancing blow as it passed, the Fox machine caromed into the streetcar and was wrecked.

Johnson was seated in the trolley and was thrown over the back of his seat to the pavement and rendered unconscious.

Eastern Sale Methods of Lewis Bros. & Co. Prove Popular

This morning at 9 o'clock the doors of THE BOSTON STORE were thrown open to the public, and all day the place was thronged with bargain-seekers. Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Goods, Shoes, Furnishings, etc., were carried away in wholesale quantities. Enough Men's Clothing, Shoes and Hats were sold, you would think, to clothe a regiment, while the way the crowds pushed and clamored for bargains was almost enough to turn the heads of the salespeople.

Although Mr. Lewis had made such prices as were never before thought of in Portland, he was not prepared for the grand rush that followed the opening of the doors. He wishes to apologize to those who were unable to get waited on and has added several clerks to his already large selling force. THE BOSTON STORE is now fully prepared to handle the mammoth business expected for the coming few days.

New and even greater bargains will be displayed tomorrow. Lewis Bros. & Co. have been appointed to raise $30,000 on the stock, and mean to let cost or loss cut no figure. Here is an opportunity to make your money work overtime—to make one dollar do the work of two.
