THREE STRAIGHT GIVEN TO OAKS

Kinsella Throws Own Game Away by Weird Heave to Danzig.

Three in a row ain't no go.
Now us fans is all upset.
Two of a kind we don't mind.
But three's too much you bet.
—Fans' Fancies.

Well, we'll take back all the things we said about the gynx in the quick. We didn't hear it at the ball park yesterday although the Greeks put over another win. Maybe, though, the gynx got jerry to the fact that we were on to it and assumed invisible form for the afternoon. It was little less than a throw-away game and Kinsella himself was the worst offender.

Until the fifth inning Kinsella was invincible. Not a visitor had reached first and the fans were recalling the stunts of "Old Cy" Young and his perfect games. Then Kinsy grew unsteady and passed Eagan. Hogan sacrificed Truck to second and the newly made first baseman took third when Miller grounded out to Danzig. Kinsella stopped Altman's comparatively slow grounder and had plenty of time to catch Dutch at first. Instead he threw wide of Danzig and Truck romped home on the misplay.

Kinsella did manage to throw Davis out at first on a punk grounder to finish the inning.

Portland made her first run in the initial chapter. After Ryan was out on a burning fly to Heitmuller, Bassey drew a pass. Raftery's infield out advanced the Marquis to third and he registered on Johnson's timely bingle. Danzig made the third out, Miller to Eagan.

Three on Bases.

In the third inning the Beavers had three men on the bags as the result of two walks and Raftery's intermediate double with two men out but Danzig could do no better than ground to Eagan at first. The ninth inning was full of promises which never materialized. After Marshall, who batted for Kinsy, flied out to Heitmuller, Ryan singled and Hardy grew wild, passing two men. Johnson batted a fly into Eagan's hand and while Johnson was at the bat, a badly managed squeeze play resulted in Buddy being caught off third. Even then he came near getting away from Hogan.

Oakland shoved the winning run across in the seventh. Eagan was safe on Johnson's error and Hogan hit for one base. Miller whiffed the air three times and Altman singled, Eagan scoring. Lewis and Hardy were easy outs.

It was a peculiar game. Portland got seven hits to Oakland's four. Portland had 12 men left on bases to Oakland's 5 and Kinsella fanned eight of the Greeks. But Kinsella fielded like an ancient Malden lady gathering chips or a cat crossing a muddy street.

COACH GARNETT MAY QUIT CALIFORNIA "U"

Famous Trainer Who Firmly Established Rowing in South in Huff.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Berkeley, July 24.—The announcement that Coach E. M. Garnett of the University of California boating crews would not be in Berkeley next year was received with some surprise on the campus today, because it was supposed that Garnett would stay at Berkeley at least another year.

Trouble between the coach and the members of the crew is said to be responsible for the leaving of Garnett, who is said to have threatened to quit in the middle of the season.

Garnett accuses Captain Iean Wilder of having disregarded training rules. Wilder is now east looking for another coach.

Garnett placed intercollegiate rowing on a firm footing in California. He is responsible for the establishment of an intercollegiate race between Stanford and California as a regular part of the athletic program.

NORTHWESTERN LEAGUE.

Butte 7, Spokane 2.

Spokane, Wash., July 24.—Butte again defeated Spokane yesterday, when, by courtesy of the Spokane team, they were allowed to pull the game out of the fire and win 7 to 2. Spokane played miserable ball in the field, while at the bat masterly pitching by Thomas kept their score down.

Aberdeen 3, Seattle 0.

Aberdeen, Wash., July 24.—For the fifth time this season a Northwestern league pitcher yesterday held the opposing team to no hits and no runs. This time it was big Gus Thompson who turned the trick, and the opposing team was the Seattle Siwashes. Thompson was in great form, striking out eight men, and had not Dode Brikner misjudged a fly in left field not a man would have reached first. Thompson also played a great game in the field. RED HOT GOSSIP FOR RABID FANS

Pitcher Nagle Pays Compliment to Beaver Rival —Hesitate Too Long.

Pitcher Nagle of the Los Angeles club pays a high compliment to Jess Garrett, the "silent man" of the Beavers. This is what he says:

"While Groom and Kinsella are first-rate pitchers, let me tell you that Portland has one of the best men in this league in that fellow Garrett. He pitched great ball against us. Where Garrett shines is mixing up his benders. He seldom feeds a batter consecutive balls that are alike. You are getting something different from him all the time, and his control was fine. That is all there is to pitching—control and mixed things. A pitcher that can do this can work in any league."

• •

By the way, Jess was telling one of the bugs how he felt after losing that 4 to 1 game Wednesday against the Oaks. Before the game Jess complained of a tightness across his shoulders which retarded his speed. This is the cause, as Jess explains it: "I went out to the Oaks bathing place with the bunch Monday night and dived in without feeling the water. I struck at least three icebergs and it did me up. This northern water is the coldest I've ever been in." And the little Texan shivered to recall his plunge.

• •

There is one things Manager McCredie ought to do, and that is to drill his men to throw the ball on the first impulse instead of holding it for several seconds to size up the situation. Two outs should have been made on fielded balls yesterday and possibly one or two scores eliminated. Cooney and Danzig allowed men to reach first base who should never have touched the bag. Both watched the runner advance on second instead of whipping the ball to first when there was no chance to morgue the most forward man.

• •

Cooney carried off the batting honors for the two teams yesterday, getting a double and a single. The double came near being cut off. Jimmy Smith raced in at full speed and made a grab for the sphere as it neared his shoetops. It slipped through his fingers and rolled back of him, Cooney making second.

• •

Errors figured in both of Oakland's scores and Truck Eagan pulled off the brace. In the fifth Truck scored on Altman's grounder, which Kinsella threw into the bleachers, and in the seventh the big first baseman got to first on Johnson's error.

OREGON ELEVEN HAS A SMALLER NUMBER

University of Oregon, Eugene, July 24.—As only seven of Oregon's first team men of last year's football squad are likely to return, and as one or two of those may not be in college, the chance for new men for the first team is better than at any time for two or three years. As an additional inducement to football material, the coaching here this year should be the best of any institution in the northwest. Besides "Bob" Forbes as head coach, other old Yale players will visit the college and give the team pointers.

Walter McIntire, the guard, who played such brilliant ball last fall, may not put on a uniform this year, as he is in doubt as to whether he will be able to come to college. This cuts the first eleven to six men for a nucleus, though there are substitutes and second team material.

WHITMAN FAVORS A. Y. P. EXPOSITION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Garfield, Wash., July 24.—Several of the largest taxpayers gave the following regarding Whitman county's attitude toward the A. Y. P. exposition:

"Since the county commissioners, in compliance with a petition of citizens, have appointed a special meeting to which are invited the taxpayers of the county to consider the question of an appropriation for making a display of Whitman county products at the A. Y. P. exposition, it seems advisable that every locality of Whitman county, in anticipation of favorable action, should gather samples of all kinds of agricultural products, as it will be too late in most cases after the meeting on August 18. The opening of the fair will be too early for next year's products."

The Easy Chair.

From the Saturday Review.

Only the Englishman knows the science of sitting down. He alone has evolved the chair which recovers for its students all the comfort that has been lost in the day, all the hope that the morning may so inhospitably have barred. Watch, say a Frenchman, in an English easy chair and you will find him no worthy apprentice of the science. He is ill at ease and out of sympathy with the chair. But the Englishman has no such quarrel with comfort. He does not, as the Frenchman sit at attention. There need not, in fact, be any doubt that England's position as the optimist among the nations is due largely to its appreciation of the easy chair. Had Schopenhauer lived in England and been instructed in the art of sitting down he would have written dulcite testimonials to the charm of human nature. Pope had no optimism, and it is not surprising that he complained of the lack of a too easy chair, for only an optimist can be comfortable. Whistler refused to have an easy chair in his house, and quite inevitably wrote a book on the art of making enemies. Carlyle lived among the hard angles of uncomfortable furniture and wrote irritably. A man's literary taste it may as well be said, is not formed so much by his education, or his early life, or his friends as by his chairs. A man without an easy chair would develop an austere taste. He would read Bacon, Hume, Macaulay. A man with an uncomfortable easy chair would read Hazlitt, Carlyle, Schopenhauer, Nietzsche, Ibsen. A man with a chair which he had molded to all the whims of his body would read Dickens, Lamb, Shakespeare, Meredith, Flaubert, Tennyson. No one fortunately has a finer instinct for comfort than the Englishman, and so long as this is so there should be no danger of the decline of good books and poets and optimism. Only the man who has an easy chair can read the right books.

HEAVYWEIGHTS WILL FIGHT FOR COAST TITLE

Al Kaufman and Battling Johnson Are at Even Money Today.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Los Angeles, July 24.—Al Kaufman of San Francisco and Battling Johnson of Los Angeles, two husky heavyweight fighters, have tied up their doll rags and are ready for the biff-bang affair at Tom McCarey's fighthouse that will decide the heavyweight championship of the coast.

Each scrapper today pronounced himself in fine condition and the loser will have no excuse. Local sports pick Johnson to win, because of his great strength and slugging ability. That Kaufman has admirers, however, is indicated by the betting odds, which today stand at even.

Manager Delaney says his protege will trim Johnson in a hurry, and on the "dope" Kaufman looks best.

Whatever the outcome of the fight may be, it is certain to be full of business and gore.

DENIES SHERMAN WILL WITHDRAW

Hitchcock Says Stories Circulated About Nominee Are Erroneous.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Chicago, July 24.—Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee, today positively denied that there is the slightest possibility of James S. Sherman, nominee for vice-president, retiring from the race on account of illness. He said that Sherman's condition is not such as to warrant the consideration of such a move and asserted that stories published to that effect were without any foundation.

The story was that there was strong possibility of the withdrawal of Sherman from the second place on the Republican ticket. It was understood that his health is so poor that he will be forced to drop out of the race.

NEW PUBLICATION AT GRANTS PASS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Grants Pass, Or., July 24.—A first-class horticultural journal, to be profusely illustrated, and containing articles by practical fruitmen, will soon be issued and published in Grants Pass. The founders of the new journal are C. G. Coutant and son, Walter Coutant, experienced newspaper men, and writers of considerable note. These men own a large printing plant and will ship it here from Colorado. The new enterprise is receiving the indorsement and support of the orchardists of southern Oregon, and bids fair to be a success. The first number will be issued in the near future.

WARM AIR ABOVE COLD

A Curious Fact Recently Observed by Meteorologists.

Students of the upper air were astonished when the little balloons they sent up, with self-recording thermometers, told them one day that in the high atmosphere there is a stratum which is warmer than the air immediately below it. No one has yet explained this strange inversion of temperature, but it has now been observed so many times in different parts of the world that there can be no doubt about it.

It was discovered in 1891, almost simultaneously, by Mr. Teisserene de Bort near Paris and by Professor Assmann in Germany. Since then nearly all the balloons that have risen 40,000 feet in central Europe have penetrated this stratum of warmer air. No one knows yet its upper limits.

In England it has been found that the average height of this layer of warmer air is about 35,000 feet.

In the last three years Dr. A. Lawrence Rotch has set afloat 77 balloonsondes at St. Louis. Most of those which rose higher than 43,000 feet entered the stratum of warmer temperature.

On October 8, for instance, the temperature at 47,600 feet was 90 degrees Fahrenheit, while at the greater altitude of 54,100 feet the temperature had risen to 72 degrees. Two days later the coldest temperature, 80 degrees, was found at 39,700 feet, while only 2,500 feet higher the temperature rose to 69 degrees.

This warmer stratum of air has not yet been discovered over the tropical Atlantic, but the noteworthy fact has been established that above the equator in summer it is colder at a height of eight miles than it is in winter at the same height in north temperate regions.

Meteorologists now think they have reason to believe that this warmer air exists throughout the tropical regions at heights exceeding 50,000 feet, and that it is probably a universal phenomenon existing at some height all around the globe.

Barrels and Their Manifold Uses.

Upward of 150,000,000 barrels and circular packages are manufactured in the United States annually. Few people except those whose business it is to know realize the extensiveness of the cooperage industry of this country. The heaviest demand comes from the cement business. The flour business ranks next, closely followed by sugar. Containers for fence staples, bolts, nuts, nails and packages for roasted coffee, spices, crockery, fruit and vegetables follow in the order named, while glass manufacturers, bakingpowder companies, liquor distillers and candy, tobacco and cheese packers are big users of barrels. The demand for barrels for molasses, oil, lard and pork is also enormous, while dry paint, glue, snuff, oatmeal, screws, castings and general hardwood articles annually increase the demand on the cooperage supply.

While the amount of expenditure for barrels can be quite closely estimated for a given year, it is not possible to say how many barrels are in actual use. The life of a barrel is put down at one year by the trade, but this is far from true. A majority of barrels are used many times. They begin as sugar or flour barrels and are then sold to the farmer for shipping his produce to the market. It may be that they are returned to him several times, carrying potatoes to the market on the first trip, and tobacco or lettuce on the next, each cargo being lighter in weight than the previous one, owing to the weakened condition of the barrel. Finally the barrel may serve out its life work as a refuse receptacle, and in the end can be used for fuel. Thus, it may be said that a barrel fills as useful a career as almost any other manufactured article and its life is much longer than a season.

Once Quite Enough.

The drug clerk said he didn't mind it that one time; still he did hope it wouldn't become a fad.

"I don't know how the rest of the customers would feel about it," he said. "Personally, I don't think I should mind. I like to be accommodating. That is why I said 'Yes' when the woman with red hair asked if she might stand before the long mirror to the right of the soda fountain and turn up the hem of her new skirt.

"'I have no long mirror at home,' she said, 'and it is so hard to get a skirt to hang even around the bottom when you have nothing to look into except one of those dinky little glasses found in most boarding-houses.'

"Well, when she got my permission to turn the drug store into a fitting room, she hustled away and presently she returned with the new skirt and a paper of pins. She slipped that skirt over the one she wore, as cool as anything, and then for half an hour she teetered and tilted around in front of that mirror, turning up the hem. I felt a little embarrassed myself, but she didn't mind. But maybe that was because the skirt looked so nice. Still, as I said before, I hope turning up hems in front of this glass won't become popular."

Teal Titman's Luck.

From the Hon. Josiah F. Terwilliger's Pike County Dispatch, Milford, Pa.

Teal Titman, who resides on the John C. Beck farm on the Sawkill, three miles from Milford, exhibited here last Thursday evening a monster trout, probably the largest ever taken in Pike county, whose trout streams are noted the country over. The fish measured 25 inches in length and weighed 5¼ pounds. It was of the German brown variety. The trout was taken from Sawkill, near the farmhouse. Sheriff Gregory secured the prize and presented it to his old friend, Jack Hesdorfer.
