

SAN FRANCISCO NOW A CITY OF HOTELS

HOTEL FAIRMOUNT

San Francisco, the city of the Golden Gate, has while arising from the devastation, achieved for herself a new name. It is the "City of Splendid Hotels."

All over the burned district where formerly stood residences or small buildings of one to three stories, there have arisen splendid structures of steel and stone from three to ten stories in height. Many of these new buildings are designed for apartment houses and hotels.

The picture of the Fairmount hotel, which is shown herewith gives a splendid idea of the character and style of the leading hotels of San Francisco.

Situated in a most commanding position, its classic outline greet the eye as soon as the ferry boat leaves the Oakland slip.

The Fairmount was just ready to open for business when the catastrophe occurred. Although everything in the way of furniture and fittings was destroyed, the building itself was structurally uninjured. The work of reconstructing and refitting the interior was commenced almost immediately and exactly one year from the day of the fire, a portion of the Fairmount was opened to the public with a banquet by the Merchants' association. The building is now entirely finished.

The cost of reconstruction was $1,000,000, which added to the original cost of $5,000,000, brings the investment up to $6,000,000.

That the Fairmount has been such a success is in a large measure due to the fact that the management is identical with that which made the old Palace hotel famous for over 40 years.

Headed being the most superbly situated hotel in the world, the Fairmount has several features which are absolutely unique. Among these may be mentioned the fact that there is not an inside room in the house. Every room has its attached bath.

From the tunnel entrance on Powell street guests may step from their automobiles directly to the elevators which lift them to the office, or to any of the upper floors.

With the completion and improvements in the San Francisco streetcar service the Fairmount is most accessible.

The Sacramento street cable cars go direct to the hotel from the Ferry building, making the trip in less than 10 minutes. The other lines, both cable and electric, also afford excellent service. California street and Powell street cable lines bring passengers directly to the hotel.

SHOOTS DEER; KILLS UNCLE

Jerome Renne of Creswell Is Instantly Killed by Ralph Mosberg.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., July 25.—Jerome Renne, a well-known citizen of Creswell, was accidentally shot and killed by his nephew, Ralph Mosberg, five miles west of Creswell this forenoon.

Renne went to the hills to look for a cow that had strayed away. Mosberg was out hunting with his rifle and sighted a deer 100 yards or more away. Taking careful aim he fired, thinking he had hit the deer, but he was horrified upon approaching the spot where the deer stood to find his uncle with a bullet through his heart.

Renne stood directly in the path of the bullet as it sped toward its mark, some brush concealing him from his nephew's view. The boy ran to the nearest residence, from where the authorities were notified. Coroner Gordon left Eugene this afternoon for the scene of the shooting to hold an inquest. Renne was acting in the capacity of deputy county assessor at the time of his death, being engaged in assessing people in the district in which he resided. He was about 40 years of age. He leaves a family.

MANUFACTURERS COMMEND RIGLER

The manufacturers' association has adopted resolutions commending Superintendent of Schools Rigler for his plan for opening a manual training school for boys next fall and pledging the aid of the association in making it the best training school in the country.

The resolutions call attention to the fact that Mr. Rigler and several of his associates have long been working for his school and thank him for the opportunity soon to be given to teach carpentry, cabinet making, pattern making, modeling, electrical instruction, machine shop work, mechanical and architectural drawing and plumbing.

The Atkinson school at the corner of Eleventh and Davis streets is now being equipped with machinery and the principal can be seen at the building at any time from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. He desires to talk with the parents and with boys interested in the work of the school. Any industrious boy who wants to learn a trade will be admitted.

Besides giving the boys the equivalent of a workshop apprenticeship, or better, the graduates will be given instruction in such branches as English, mathematics, applied physics and electricity and industrial chemistry. They must know enough of these subjects to insure intelligent workmanship. The instructors will be successful mechanics in their respective lines, who will make the work thoroughly practical. The course will be three years.

ELECTRIC BRASS BAND ATTRACTS WIDESPREAD ATTENTION

ELECTRIC BRASS BAND AS IT APPEARED ON THE CAR ON WASHINGTON STREET

By far the most attractive as well as unique advertisement which has been seen in Portland for some time was the Electric Brass Band, which was used to announce the Carmen's Picnic, held at The Oaks, July 23.

The use of this splendid instrument was donated for the occasion by Eilers Piano House, the sole Pacific coast dealers in such instruments.

It was placed on one of the flatcars of the streetcar system, and toured Portland Wednesday and Thursday. During this time thousands of people were completely deceived—thinking there was a real band touring the city, so much like a large band did it sound, and on several occasions the police had to disperse the crowds which gathered when the car stopped in the street.

This unique and interesting instrument is manufactured by the Wurlitzer Co. of Cincinnati and Chicago, and sold exclusively on the coast by Eilers Piano House. They are manufactured in many different sizes and styles, and are probably the most popular music producers for skating rinks, moving picture shows and like entertainments on the market, and are rapidly coming into general use for such purposes. Instruments can be installed to suit the size of any hall, from the largest to the smallest.

The Hobbs of Eilers is also the sole coast representative for a number of other Electric Instruments of different makes—such as Orchestrons, Electric Pianos, etc.—a large and complete stock of which is constantly kept in their warerooms to supply the ever-increasing demand for such music.

OLD COLLEGE SPRINTER RUNS DOWN PSEUDO ELK

The capture of a San Francisco issuer of bad checks after a hot foot race of four blocks by Esquire K. K. Kubil of the local Elks' lodge, furnished an unusual spectacle in the retail business section in the busiest part of this afternoon when the streets were crowded with people. The chase began at Fifth and Morrison streets and led down to Third and then over to Morrison, where the young criminal was overhauled by the former Harvard sprinter.

Heller, as the check passer gave his name at the police station, came in from San Francisco this morning. He went to the Elks club before noon and introduced himself to Acting Secretary Aaron Harris as a member of the Los Angeles lodge of Elks. He said he had been robbed on the train and asked to have a check for $50 cashed. Mr. Harris told Heller he would wire to Los Angeles and if the lodge there would guarantee the check he would pay it.

Heller then told Mr. Harris not to bother as he knew Phil Metschan at the Imperial hotel and would get the check cashed there. He then visited the Imperial and asked Mr. Metschan to cash a check for $50, saying Mr. Harris of the Elks club had sent him to the Imperial. Mr. Metschan refused to cash the check until Heller had obtained the indorsement of Secretary Harris. Heller then left the hotel and Mr. Metschan telephoned to the Elks club where he found that Heller was unknown. Meanwhile Mr. Harris had telegraphed to Los Angeles.

Again Tries to Cash Check.

Heller appeared at the store of Olds, Wortman & King and told Manager Bell that he was stopping at the Imperial and asked him to cash a check for $50. Bell telephoned over to Mr. Metschan and Mr. Metschan telephoned to Mr. Harris at the Elks club after telling Manager Bell to hold Heller until they should arrive to identify the confid-dence man. On the way down Harris and Metschan met K. K. Kubil, who as Esquire of the Elks lodge considered it his duty to take off the Elks button which the forger was wearing. As they came in sight of Heller he recognized the two men whom he had tried to bunko and started to run.

It was then that Kubil made his record sprint. Heller is a 19-year-old athlete and must have represented his college in the sprints, but "Cap" Kubil used to be a quarter miler at Harvard and can "run some" yet. Although the flying Heller had a good start he was overhauled after he had maintained his lead for four blocks and was brought back to Olds, Wortman & King by Mr. Kubil. In trying to escape Heller forgot to get his check back from Mr. Bell and this is now held as evidence against him. It is drawn on the Merchants' National bank. The two checks he tried to pass at the Imperial and the Elks' club were drawn upon San Francisco banks.

Heller was turned over to Patrolman Nelson by his captors and taken to the police station where he is now occupying a cell.

Tells of Bay City Forgery.

He does not deny his guilt but told the detectives that he is wanted at San Francisco for forging several checks, one of which was cashed by the Haguo saloon Captain Batey telegraphed to the police at San Francisco and is expecting word from them.

Heller gave the name of L. W. Hill when he tried to cash the check at Olds, Wortman & King's. To the other checks he signed the name H. Heller.

He is a nice looking, well dressed young fellow only 19 years old. His looks "smooth" but has none of the earmarks of the professional crook. He said his father and mother are both dead and that he was led to try a forger's luck by playing the "ponies."

His success in San Francisco made him too careless. He no doubt thought that he could get a few checks cashed

RICH PRINCE BECOMES MONK

Kinsman to King of Siam Renounces World for Buddhism.

(United Press Leased Wire.) London, July 25.—Out of the "voluptuous east" has just come the most remarkable example of self-sacrifice and religious devotion of recent years. The history of Prince Pristang Choomong of the royal house of Siam is one that will make the wealthy and fashionable of all the capitals of the world begin to think.

This prince, whose ancestry runs back to the dim ages, has renounced all earthly luxuries and become a Buddhist priest. Sent some years ago by the king of Siam his near kinsman, to England to study engineering, architecture and coast defense, the prince was received with so great honor by King Edward and his most distinguished subjects that he was made an envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the court of St. James. Thanks to the brilliance of his princely mind and his oriental astuteness, he shone as a diplomat and represented his sovereign at international congresses of Europe in turn. Returning home the prince visited Tokyo, where the mikado conferred on him the most distinguished Order of the Rising Sun.

This was the climax of the prince's career. He who had an inexhaustible purse to draw jewels and diamonds and dazzled empresses, who had been a welcome guest at palaces and at the villas of sovereigns, who had been of royal parties at race courses and open houses, wrote to his king humbly begging for permission to retire from the world.

Like every other noble young Siamese the prince has passed a certain period in a Buddhist monastery before retiring on his career. He never forgets the lessons conveyed to him during that most irremissible time of his life. Prince was added to them by his deep, purposeless existence that surrounded him in the capitals of Europe. Already weary of the world, his Buddhist religion always sounded in his ears, "work out your salvation with diligence."

Reluctantly, but admirably, the king granted the prince's request. Pristang Choomong went to Ceylon and was admitted to the Buddhist Brotherhood. Then he went on a pilgrim's pilgrimage to India and after being admitted to some of the mysteries in which the elect groups towards the end of the century prince became an incumbent of the Kuthena temple near Colombo, a position of the highest religious importance.

He repaired the temple without marring its ancient beauty, and now he receives visitors. With his knowledge of affairs his keen black eyes instantly recognize the nationality and social status of each visitor, but he treats them all with equal dignity.

TOOK A FIRST PRIZE AT CARMEN'S PICNIC

EMBEZZLER WALKER BEGINS HIS TERM

(United Press Leased Wire.) Hartford, Conn., July 25.—William T. Walker tonight began his sentence of from 15 to 25 years in prison for the embezzlement of funds of the Savings Bank of New Britain, Conn.

Pleading guilty to four counts in the indictment charging the embezzlement of about $470,000 of gilt edged railroad bonds, he was sentenced by Judge Shumaker to from one to five years on the first count and to not more than five years on each of the other three.

It was the general opinion about the state attorney general's office that Walker probably would not get off with less than 15 years.

BOTTLED BEER

GAMBRINUS BREWING CO.

Phone Early in the Week

Our drivers and wagons are working tooth and nail trying to make prompt deliveries of Portland's favorite beverage.

Brewers are working overtime, and the whole plant is rushed to its utmost capacity.

This is simply an evidence of the well-deserved popularity of the best and purest beer brewed.

GAMBRINUS won't and can't make you bilious. It is mild, thoroughly aged, and perfectly pure.

Drink a pint bottle of GAMBRINUS.
Drink a bottle of any other beer.
Note the difference.

Other beers are sharp and bitter, and full of gas.
GAMBRINUS is mild, smooth and delightful.

It is in all cases a drink for the temperate, for those who seek health and food values. Call us up.
