HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

Domestic Wisdom. To keep the coal-bod clean, line it with several thicknesses of paper. When furniture looks sticky or smeary, too much furniture polish has been used.

Care of Blankets. The laundering of blankets and quilts may be postponed a long time if the soiled parts are protected with cheesecloth.

The Best Polish for a Brass Bed. About twice a year I rub my brass bedstead with kerosene, polishing it afterward with a soft dry cloth.

Crabapple Jelly. Wash but do not pare the apples, cook slowly in water until they are tender, then mash and drain through a muslin.

Magic Polishing Cloths. From the Woman's Home Companion. Mix two pounds of whiting and one half ounce of oleic acid with a gallon of water.

Sneeze Cures Fainting. There is no more sure cure for an attack of faintness than a hearty sneeze, so it is said.

Some New Salads. Tomato Jelly Salad—Tomato jelly is used in making this salad.

How to Clean Windows. To clean windows, use warm water and a soft cloth. Rub the glass with crumpled newspaper.

How to Use a Feather Duster. While not an advocate of the feather duster, I have found it very satisfactory and cleanly when used in this way.

THE REAL DIRECTOIRE

THE Real Directoire. ONE hears so many ridiculous rumors about the new directoire skirt, says Elie, that its advent among New York fashions (scheduled for the fall) will likely prove a disappointment to those who are looking for a sensation and anticipating a shock.

Having had, for the past season or two, various adaptations of the empire styles, we are now to be offered, by way of change and novelty, certain of the directoire styles. In their original shape the skirts were extremely scanty, made of soft, supple materials and adorned at one side to give a greater freedom to the limbs in locomotion.

The skirt is new in so far as it has been untried in the past, and is worn by women. As a matter of fact, the directoire model is nothing more or less than a garment recently cut on circular lines and drawn at the waist by means of a ribbon across the abdomen and hips; rather graceful when the wearer is standing, but less so when she attempts to walk about. This type of skirt was shown last fall among the imported models brought over by dressmakers and adapted to the tastes of the American woman would have none of it then. Time, however, has accustomed the eye to the straight lines and softened the harsh criticisms that then assailed the new model.

THE MOTHERS' CORNER

Foods for Young Babies. THE juice can be pressed from raw milk and a lemon squeezer. In order to get a little for the baby, the steak being first broiled for a minute, but it is a more troublesome process than doing it in a jar, and not as much is obtained.

It should be remembered that young children do not require a great variety in their food. A baby who is nursed by its mother has only her milk until it is at least 18 months old. It is nature's indication that the little body is given to digest and assimilate milk until it is at least 18 months old. The mother gives it, but only one new article of diet at a time, and waits to see how that is disposed of before introducing another.

Refreshments are one of the chief joys at a child's party, and if these can be served in a novel and amusing manner they are sure to be doubly appreciated by the tiny guests. Some people are quite clever at contriving such things as these and with a little milk and a few eggs and a little bright woman ought to be able to put them together. And with a few fruits, vegetables and nuts can manage a number of unique things for a party.

Fads and Fashions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The lingerie blouses of the season are the faintest that have been seen for many a day. The all-over Valenciennes waists are rivals of the net blouses, but they have won the favor because of their cool and dainty appearance for summer. They are trimmed with fine Swiss embroideries and for more elaborate, moire ribbon, embroidered satin bands and gold, silver or pearl applications are used.

It is exceedingly fashionable in Paris to wear artificial flowers in preference to the real bloom. As they do not wilt or crush like the natural ones, they can be worn several times before they need freshening. With the tailor-made costumes they are pinned to the lapel and with evening gowns they are fastened to the corsage. An immense rose or bunch of violets are the most popular flowers.

An unusually pretty frock was seen on a slender blonde a few mornings ago in one of the parks. It was made of white pique and cut on Empire princess lines. The skirt was made with a gumple and ruffled sleeves, which were of plain and embroidered white muslin. These folds of fabric were attached to the skirt and embroidered in large white rings. This was laid in a series of four deep tucks and was trimmed with a row of small white buttons. The sides of the skirt were trimmed with large, soft, white tulle buttons. These buttons also appeared at the top of the skirt and band.

Don't Forget. THAT you label your own work. That work is only the means. That sincerity is the foundation of all honest work. That every one is destined to do something worth while. That it is easier to do good work than poor work if you once learn how. That the only way to keep your credit good is by paying your debts. That no one can hold you down if you are determined to succeed. That a sensible employer is more anxious to push ahead than to hold you down.
