WRANGLING OF LAWYERS MARKS CLOSE BOOTH CASE

To the spectator at the trial of Robert A. Booth, James H. Booth and T. E. Singleton in the United States court this morning it appeared as though Judge T. C. Becker, attorney for the government, and Dan J. Malarkey, attorney for the defense, were not very good friends. Judge Becker compared Senator Malarkey to a scuttle fish, and Mr. Malarkey nominated Judge Becker for admission to the Ananias club. Judge Wolverton, presiding, looked sadly at the two attorneys and asked them not to interrupt the argument. But they did.

Judge Becker has been making the closing argument for the prosecution during all of the morning. He will finish early this afternoon and the case will go to the jury before the adjournment of court. During his argument, which was the most powerful one he has yet delivered since his advent in Portland, Judge Becker took the attorneys for the defense to task quite severely several times. He called Mr. Malarkey to account for having said that the defense could not get a chance to see the documents relating to the case until just before the trial. He said it was an insult to the attorneys for the government and to the court, and was buncombe and claptrap.

Attorneys Wrangle.

Mr. Malarkey got up at this and called Judge Becker down. He contended that before Judge Becker came to Portland the documents were in the possession of Mr. Heney, that they had been withdrawn from Washington and Roseburg, and that the defense was not allowed to see them.

Judge Becker came right back. He said he did not know that Mr. Malarkey had been connected with the case more than a few minutes before the trial began. He said also that the attorney for the defense had come there with a good opinion of himself and a desire to make a show and had slurred and insulted the attorneys for the government and that by so doing he had brought all the criticism on himself and further that if he did not like it he could make the most of it.

Mr. Malarkey said that he had been insulted enough by Judge Becker, that the Judge had stated things that were not true to the jury and that he would not stand it.

Argument Closed.

Judge Becker said he had brought it all on himself. Judge Wolverton cut in and directed that there should be no further interruption.

"I can't sit here silent when he says that which is an untruth," said Mr. Malarkey.

Outside of these little pleasantries there was not much of interest in the close of the Booth case. Judge Becker went over the testimony in a clear and forceful manner, outlining the contention of the government. He closed a short time after the opening of the afternoon session.

It is expected that the jury will be given the case and will return a verdict before morning.

LACKS FIRE PROTECTION, PLANING COMPANY ASKS FOR LARGER MAIN

At a meeting of the water board this morning a communication was received from the Oregon Planing company, Nineteenth and Vaughn streets, asking for a 12-inch main in that district. The communication stated that when the fire occurred in the north end the other evening the company was left without water pressure, and inasmuch as the company is installing an expensive automatic sprinkler system it desires sufficient pressure to work it.

At the present time there is but a six-inch main connecting the planing mill property with the water system and the company installing the sprinkler system says through its representatives that a 12-inch main is necessary. The matter was referred to the superintendent and engineer for an investigation and a report.

The resolution passed by the council instructing the water board to install fire hydrants in the vicinity of the Ockley Green school, received but little attention from the board and was referred to Chief Campbell to make an investigation and report back to the board on the conditions in the district.

Another matter before the board was an ordinance from the council providing for the laying of a seven-inch wooden water main by the Woodstock Water company on Evereid street. This was referred to the superintendent.

ROSA SHE NO LIKA DE MURRAY; MURRAY HAS CAUSE NO LIKA DE ROSA

"I'll get you later, all right." This was the threat of Rosa De Cicco, the Italian woman who struck Patrolman Murray on the head with an iron maul, as she shook her finger at Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald this morning in the municipal court.

Mrs. De Cicco constantly interrupted the proceedings, attempting to explain her side of the case to the judge whether it was her turn to speak or not.

After the court adjourned Mrs. De Cicco saw Fitzgerald again as she was awaiting the elevator to take her back to the women's quarters on the third floor.

Again the wrathful woman shook her finger at the prosecuting attorney.

"Even if I get ten years I come and fix you. You're a bad man." She continued her denunciation until the elevator took her out of hearing.

During court Bailiff Riley had much trouble in keeping her seated. She has twice been cleared of the charge of insanity, the last time only on her promise to go to Seattle and stay there.

Her divorced husband had a warrant sworn out this week, charging her with threatening to kill him. Patrolman Murray served the warant upon her and while his back was turned she struck him on the head with a ten-pound maul, inflicting a severe wound. When the ex-husband took the stand this morning he kept a safe distance from the woman, who alternated her fierce looks at Fitzgerald with glares of hate at her former husband.

Mrs. De Cicco's case was continued until Monday and she was held under $3,000 bonds.

SECOND FULLER CASE, IN CHICAGO

Veronica Cassidy May Be Victim of San Francisco Child-Killer.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Accumulating evidence today increases the suspicions of the police that the man who kidnaped 12-year-old Veronica Cassidy by advertising for a "companion for his wife," is Charles B. Hadley, alleged murderer of Nora Fuller, a 13-year-old San Francisco girl, who was enticed from home in a similar way and killed February 8, 1902.

The similarity between the cases is marked and the description of the man as well as his handwriting tallies with that of Hadley, whom the police in all parts of the country have sought vainly for six years.

Mrs. Catherine Casper this afternoon revealed to the police the lodging of the kidnaper. She said she suspected that the man who took a room at her house last week and disappeared suddenly Wednesday was the F. J. Blair who stole the child.

When the room was searched the police found three answers to the advertisement for a young girl to act as companion for his wife. They also found a letter addressed to "F. J. Blair, Moyle, B. C," and postmarked at Seattle. There was a letter addressed to Blair from tailors who said they were ready to fill his orders. The police of Seattle and Moyie have been notified.

The police admitted this afternoon that they believe the man with the child boarded a Burlington train for the west Friday afternoon and every precaution is being taken to bring about his capture. A man and girl fitting the description were seen at the station, the man holding the child's hand firmly and keeping a close watch on her.

Mrs. Lillian Cassidy, mother of the little girl, is prostrated with fear that the child will be found murdered like the little Fuller girl in San Francisco.

The man obtained the child through the mother answering the advertisement. He called at the Cassidy residence and after making arrangements with the mother, led the little girl away. He gave fictitious addresses at the Cassidy house and other residences where he called in an effort to get a little girl. Mrs. Casper says the man told her he was a workingman when he engaged the room. He displayed a large roll of money and always seemed to be well supplied.

The excitement over the case has reached such a point that hundreds of citizens have joined the police in the search. The three grown brothers of Veronica are at the head of three parties of searchers who are seeking out very possible place where they think the child might have been taken. This search is being conducted on the theory that the police are mistaken in thinking the child was taken from the city.

FULLER CASE IN BRIEF.

Hadley Theory Accepted as Reasonable by Frisco Police.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—The police here think the man wanted in Chicago is the same who murdered Nora Fuller in 1902 in this city. The Fuller child, who was 13 years old, left her home to answer an advertisement for a girl to care for a baby. Weeks later she was found dead on a bed in a vacant house at 2211 Sutter street. Her clothes were scattered about the room. The child had been dead since the day she disappeared.

Charles B. Hadley was suspected of the crime and was never seen afterward, though a world-wide search was conducted. He left San Francisco January 16, five days after the disappearance of the Fuller child.

The San Francisco police are doing everything in their power to aid in the search for the Chicago kidnaper in the belief that his arrest may clear up the long standing mystery of the San Francisco case.

GOING TO CHURCH JUST LIKE A PICNIC

The First Norwegian-Danish church has adopted a novel way to worship in comfort during the hot weather. The church at Thirteenth and Davis is deserted, but not because the members forget their religion when the heat comes. Services are held Sunday, and all-day services at that, but they are held in an open air grove. There are services in the morning at 10:30, and in the evening at 7 o'clock. Sunday school and the other incidental meetings intervene.

But when the worshipers start to church they look as if they were going on a picnic, for each one carries his lunch basket. And at noon there is a picnic, but it is a picnic conducted with dignity. Grace is said, and hymns are sung to keep the day in mind. And with church before and after the attendants are not likely to get it confused with an ordinary picnic. The services are held at the Montavilla grove.

MYSTERIOUS FLITTING OF A PRIMA DONNA

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New York, Aug. 1.—Charles Headley, manager of Miss Grace Van Studdiford, the prima donna, is today looking all over New York city for her.

The singer left her apartments Thursday saying she was going to Europe to practice until next season and has not been seen since.

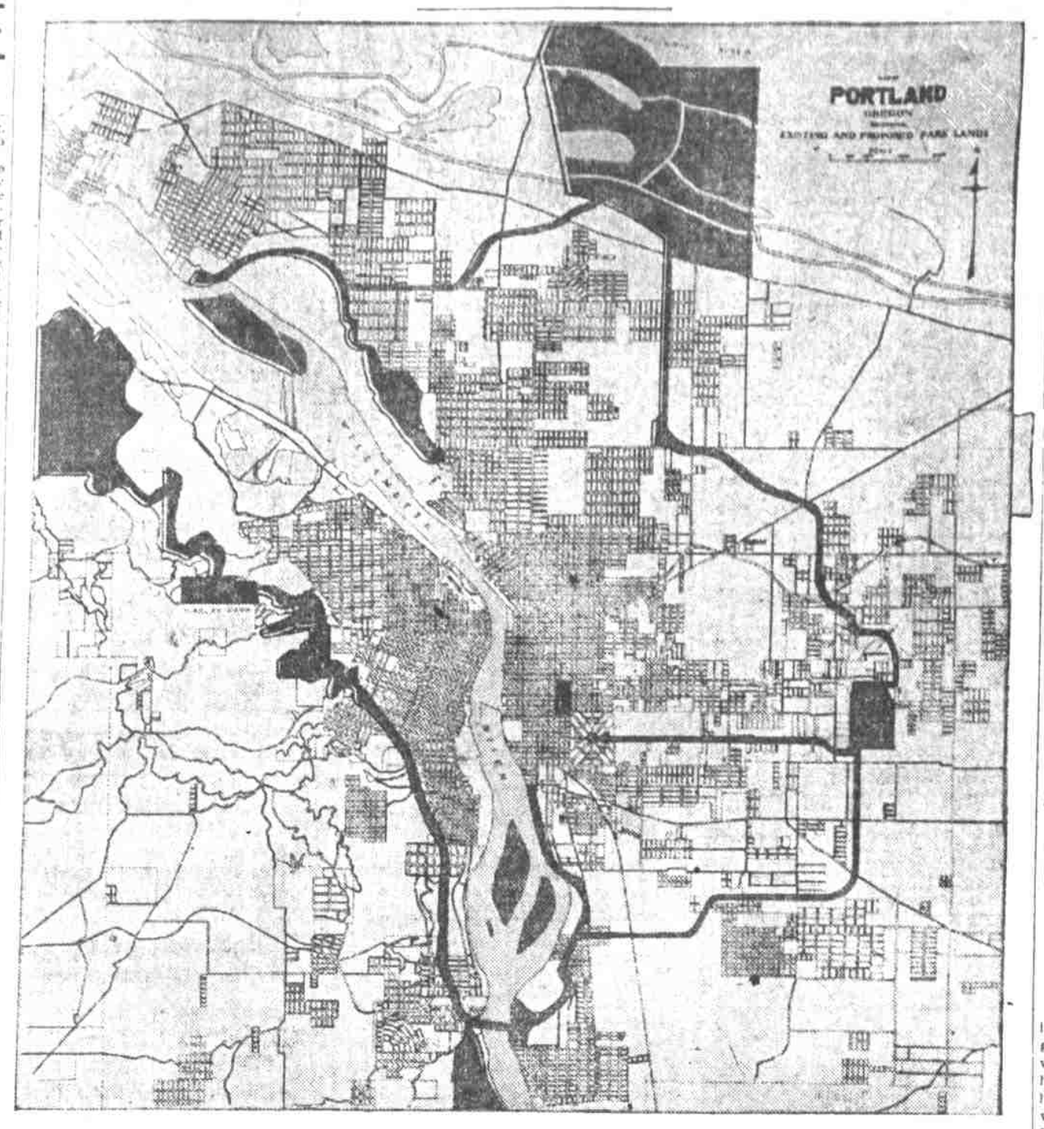
The note stated that Miss Van Studdiford was to sail on the steamer La Touraine on Thursday, but a wireless message from the steamship states that she is not on board.

Van Studdiford, her husband, is between here and Chicago in his automobile and has not yet learned of her strange disappearance.

BEGIN SUIT TO RECOVER PREMIUM

Lloyd & Robertson, who represent the New Amsterdam Casualty company, have begun suit in the circuit court to collect $880 alleged to be due as premium on a policy issued to the Standard Box & Lumber company. The premium on the policy, which ran for one year from December 5, 1906, was based on the total sum paid by the defendant to its employes in salaries and wages during the year. It is stated that $171,127 was the sum expended, the premium amounting to $1,09o, and that only $115 has been paid.

SYSTEM OF PARKS AND BOULEVARDS



Plan Prepared by the Famous Landscape Architects, Messrs. Olmsted.

With the completion of the parking system proposed by the city park board, Portland will take front rank with all of the leading cities in the country and with the development of the natural beautiful park resources the Rose City will become one of the most beautiful municipalities in the world, according to park experts who have labored over the plans. The above map shows the system arranged by Olmstead Brothers of Boston, and will be built with the $1,000,000 to be raised by the bonding act just declared valid by the supreme court.

A glance at the map shows the comprehensive outlay provided for by the park board and, while the general scheme will be carried out, the board will have to eliminate part, because of the immense cost.

Even with the elimination of a large amount of the system there will still be left a complete boulevard system which will encircle the city and provide a park of 1,600 acres on the Columbia river, besides parks on Ross and Swan islands. Other parks will be included as shown on the map, in addition to playgrounds that were not included in the original scheme.

At the outset the board contemplated taking in the Oaks, but this was afterward abandoned and a parking site is contemplated just south of the amusement resort. From this park a boulevard will be constructed to be known as Waverly boulevard. This boulevard will be extended in an easterly direction to a point just south of Mount Tabor, where it will turn to the north of Mount Tabor. Here a park will be established, taking in all of Mount Tabor.

Leaving the park the boulevard will extend along the Alameda, skirting the Country club to Columbia park, which will embrace 1,600 acres. Then down Portland boulevard to the tract just north of the Albina car shops. Crossing the river at this park, the scheme includes the parking of Swan Island. From Swan Island a driveway or connection of some kind will be made to the mainland on the west side, where the boulevard will extend through Forestry park.

Coming south the boulevard will cut through the old Lewis and Clark exposition grounds, embracing the site now occupied by the government building. From this point the system will cross Melinda heights along the Barnes road. Macleay park and Kings heights will be taken in in regular order as will the City park.

Circling back of the city reservoirs and crossing the Ford street bridge, the boulevard will skirt the hills just south of the park blocks and then follow a general southward direction two blocks west of Macadam road to a point opposite the Oaks.

It is at this point that a high bridge across the Willamette is contemplated which will make the circle complete with the exception of the gap between the mainland on the east side at the park north of the Albina car shops and Swan Island. The board expects this gap to be filled in time with a bridge from the island to the mainland, thus completing the circle entirely.

Several of the boulevard extensions such as the one to the Ladd tract and the Willamette boulevard will not be constructed by the board at the present time with the money raised by the bond issue because of the expense.

HAZERS MAY NOT BE DISMISSED

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 1.—Following a conference with President Roosevelt today, Secretary of War Wright decided to cancel the steps that have been taken toward the dismissal of the eight West Point cadets who are charged with hazing.

Secretary Wright stated that he thought the punishment too severe for the offense. He said it was likely the boys would be court martialed.

Secretary Wright sent for the eight students some time ago and had a frank talk with them in his office at Washington. He asked them why they had disobeyed the law and discussed the whole topic of hazing.

GOVERNOR'S MANSION CORNERSTONE LAID

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Olympia, Wash., Aug. 1.—With impressive ritualistic ceremonies by the grand lodge of Masons and addresses by Governor Albert E. Mead, J. H. Schively, G. Stegler and State Auditor C. W. Clausen, the cornerstone of the governor's mansion was laid this afternoon.

Promptly at 2 o'clock officers and members of the grand lodge and the local lodge arrived at the grounds on Capitol hill and while hundreds of citizens and visitors from various parts of the state witnessed the ceremonies the cornerstone was swung into place. Business was suspended here this afternoon. A general holiday had been proclaimed by Mayor Hegenmeyer.

Companies Incorporated.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Aug. 1.—Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the secretary of state as follows: Wolfer Mineral Spring company, principal office, Hubbard, capital stock $50,000; incorporators, George J. Wolfer, Ottilia Wolfer, R. B. Conover, S. W. Weaver, C. M. Crittenden, A. D. Wolfer, George W. Knight and Edward Diedrich Sr.

FELL INTO PAWNSHOP THEN INTO HOSPITAL

Told that a skylight was strong enough to bear his weight Charles James stepped upon it this morning. Down went the skylight and James fell 20 feet with the breaking glass, sustaining a number of cuts and a broken ankle. He fell into a pawnshop at 50 Third street, whose proprietor called the police as soon as the unexpected visitor arrived.

James was trying to get on the roof of the building adjoining the Hotel Van Noy to clean the roof of moss. After being examined at the police station he was removed to St. Vincent's hospital in an ambulance.

JULY DEPARTS TO TUNE OF "HOT TIME"

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Baker City, Or., Aug. 1.—Citizens are recovering today after 24 hours of the hottest weather in 19 years. The record was broken yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock when the temperature reached 102 in the shade.

La Grande, Or., Aug. 1.—Heat records were broken at this place yesterday. A temperature of 106 in the shade was registered the greater part of the day. The record in the government weather bureau station here shows nothing like it for the past 22 years.

Pendleton, Or., Aug. 1.—This place sweltered yesterday, the thermometer registering 105 in the shade. The weather today is decidedly cooler.

North Yakima, Wash., Aug. 1.—The government thermometer registered 106 at 3 p. m. yesterday. Other private thermometers ran from 103 to 110.

SMUT STARTS THIRD FIRE IN UMATILLA

Pendleton, Or., Aug. 1.—Another fire broke out this morning, caused by a smut explosion in the wheat, on Fred Emby's place a few miles northeast of here, causing a loss of a threshing outfit valued at $1,000 and the loss of 100 sacks of grain. The machine was not insured. The grain was. This is the third fire from smut this year in Umatilla county.

MURDERS WIFE LEST SHE BETRAY HIM

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 1.—Clay Harris today shot and killed his wife and one year old baby and fatally wounded Walter Vann, an expressman who tried to capture him. Harris then stole a horse and buggy and made his escape. A posse was quickly formed and is in pursuit. Harris is wanted at Fairfield, Ill., on the charge of having committed a murder on July 4. The Illinois officers were trailing him and it is believed he feared his wife might betray him.

Teachers' Examination.

The Dalles, Or., Aug. 1.—The regular examination of applicants for state and county papers for teachers will be held in the High School building commencing at 9 a. m., Wednesday, August 12, and continuing until August 15. It is expected that there will be quite a number of teachers taking the examinations. Last year there were more positions than teachers, but it is thought that the supply of teachers this year will more nearly equal the demand.

COMMITTEES OUT COLLECTING COIN

Efforts to raise an adequate entertainment fund for the three Portland men who won honors in the Olympic games are meeting with satisfactory success and the financial committee is hard at it today in the hopes of largely increasing the amount. The total subscriptions turned in up to noon today are as follows:

Ladd & Tilton, $100.
First National bank, $100.
The Journal, $50.
The Oregonian, $50.
Evening Telegram, $50.
Merchants National bank, $25.
Hibernia Savings bank, $10.
John McCraken, $10.
Jack Coffman, $5.
H. E. Judge, $5.
D. J. Daly, $5.
J. F. King, $5.

ASKS APPOINTMENT AS EXECUTRIX

Mrs. Henrietta M. French has applied to the county court for appointment as executrix of the estate of her late husband, Charles W. French, who died July 17. The estimated value of the property is $5,000, lot 6 in block 264 of Holladay's addition being reckoned at $4,000. The will bequeathes $100 to each of two children, Fred W. French and Mabel A. French, the remainder being given to the widow.

CHICKENS TO HAVE MORE ROOM AND AIR

At a meeting of the health board this morning the members instructed City Market Inspector Mrs. Sarah A. Evans to appear before the council and ask for the passage of an ordinance regulating the size of crates in which chickens are shipped into the city. This action was taken after Mrs. Evans reported the deplorable conditions found in the commission district.

The market inspector told the board that she had observed a crate so small that the chickens were unable to stand erect; that it did not provide sufficient ventilation and was so packed with chickens they could not move. She said these chickens had undoubtedly been in the crate for more than 24 hours, and that she did not consider them pure food.

Inasmuch as there is no way to condemn such shipments at the present time the ordinance to be drafted will provide that no merchant in the city shall receive shipments save in crates of certain dimensions and containing only a certain number of chickens.

DEPUTIES FIGHT TO REGAIN AUTO

Sheriff's Force Sent to Garage to Forcibly Possess Disputed Bubble.

Hostilities between a force of deputy sheriffs and the employes of J. B. Kelly, defeated candidate for state senate, were threatened for a time this morning, resulting from an attachment on an automobile of Ira T. Beeman that was in the Kelly shop for repairs.

Deputy Sheriff Harry Gulger, armed with a writ of attachment, accompanied Beeman to Kelly's place of business to take possession of the machine. Beeman took with him an express wagon to haul the machine, which is a big White Steamer, as it is out of repair. But when Bulger served the writ and started to deliver the machine Kelly intimated that he thought Bulger a bogus sheriff and called out his men to prevent the capture of the auto.

Bulger's star was not sufficiently convincing, and the officer telephoned to the sheriff's office for assistance. He warned the Kelly employes not to interfere, and exhibited his commission to do away with all doubts as to his being an officer. Meantime Deputy Sheriffs Jones and Wagner hurried to the scene of the threatened conflict, but by the time they appeared Kelly was in a more pacific mood. In the end Beeman carted his machine away in triumph, and the Kelly employes, who had been none too anxious to mix in the affair, went back to their jobs.

The attachment was issued as the result of a suit begun in the circuit court this morning by Beeman, in which he charges Kelly with unlawfully holding possession of his White Steamer, valued at $1,500. He demands $250 damages for the retention of the machine, he and Kelly having disagreed as to the keep and repair of the choo-choo wagon.

$255 LIFTED BY PICKPOCKETS

W. R. Rutherford, 603 Corbett building, was sorry when Portland lost the game yesterday. He felt more sorry when, as he was leaving the grandstand, he missed $100 in paper money, which he knew had been lying safely in his wallet when he boarded a car for the Vaughn street grounds. Wallet and all were gone when the game was over. He remembered that the car was crowded, but could not tell the police, to whom the theft was at once reported, whether the robbery occurred on the car or in the grandstand.

This is the most important pickpocket case reported for some weeks. The police today are also working on the report made by F. E. Dupre, 381 East Davis, who missed a pocketbook containing $55 in gold and a draft for $100 on the Washington Trust company of Seattle.

When F. C. Schubert returned to his home at 593 Davis street after an absence of three weeks he found that a window had been forced and several articles of jewelry stolen.

John Silfen, who was picked up at Third and Ankeny last evening rather the worse for wear, declares he was robbed of a silver watch.

H. W. Maxie, Fairview, has reported the loss of two sets of harness and several tools. Jeff Garman, 50 East Twelfth north, mourns the loss of a bicycle.

BAD PICTURES ON CARDS CAUSES ARREST

W. W. Reading, a Morrison street postcard dealer, had a hearing before Justice Bell yesterday afternoon on a charge of selling objectionable cards. Constable Wagner had looked at the cards displayed in front of the shop, and after some parley with the proprietor returned the next day and made the arrest.

After several other dealers had declared they would not keep the cards for sale, Reading was bound over to await the action of the grand jury under $500 bonds. It was shown that Reading had no intention of selling objectionable cards, but the fact that he had obtained them in the ordinary course of trade made no difference, as according to the law Justice Bell could take no other action.

Postcard manufacturers have been crying for a government bureau of censorship for many months, as such cases are coming up all over the country. Cards not deemed objectionable by some officials are held up as suggestive by another postmaster or constable.

COLLEGE STUDENT DIES OF CYANIDE

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—Autopsy Surgeon Clark of the coroner's office announced this afternoon that the death of Bernal Revalk, a college student, 18 years old, who died in a cab early today, was caused by cyanide of potassium either taken with suicidal intent or administered in a glass of liquor. The contents of the stomach are still in the custody of the city chemist.

Young Revalk attended a farewell party given in his honor last night at the home of Mrs. Eugene Folsom, Sacramento and Devisadero streets. He was to have sailed for Manila next week.

He bought a bottle of mineral water at the Tuxedo saloon at 4:30 o'clock and, half emptied, the bottle was found in the cab in which he rode from Fillmore street to the Ferry building, where the driver found him in a collapse.

The police are mystified and are investigating the murder theory.

NEEDLECRAFT IS POINTED WORD

Attorneys Stuck by Sharpness of Question—Interesting to Women.

Because there was no judge in the circuit court today to hear the application of Mrs. M. C. White of "The Needlecraft Shop" for an injunction to prevent Mrs. J. A. Van Horn of "Van's Needlecraft Shop" from opening a place of business under the latter name, Mrs. Van Horn this morning began business according to program and no one could say nay.

Yesterday the attorney for Mrs. White secured an order requiring Mrs. Van Horn to appear this morning to show cause why an injunction should not issue. She has registered the name "Needlecraft Shop," and claims the exclusive right to the word in Oregon. Judge O'Day granted the order, but yesterday was his last day on the bench.

It was thought that Judge Bronaugh would be back today from a brief vacation in the mountains, but he did not come. Judge Gantenbein is resting these days at his home, Judge Cleland is at the beach, and Judge-elect Morrow is still attending to private business and has not qualified.

Mrs. Van Horn was on hand in court this morning with her lawyer, and so was the attorney for Mrs. White, each ready for the fray. But as there was no judge, nothing could be done, and the matter went over by common consent until Monday.

An interesting question is presented in the case, which hinges on the word "needlecraft." Is this a distinctive, new name, which one person may use to the exclusion of another? W. T. Masters, attorney for Mrs. White, thinks it is. Or is it a generic word, the name of a craft, such as woodcraft, which anyone may use? That is the contention of John F. Logan, representing Mrs. Van Horn.

Masters points to the fact that the word cannot be found in the most recent standard dictionaries. Logan responds that this is so much the worse for the dictionaries, and appeared with an armload of women's magazines to prove his point. He exhibited a publication called "Needlecraft," and another named "Stitchings," that carries under it the explanation that it is "a magazine of needlecraft."

The date of the latter publication is 1903, and Mrs. White's shop name was not registered until October of last year. It is therefore claimed that she has no monopoly on a name in use for years, although the dictionary makers have not been enterprising enough to get it down. The dictionary was made for man, and not man for the dictionary, says Logan, and he objects to dictionary rule.

The needlecraft question, with its exhibits of Ladies' Home Journal and other publications dear to the feminine heart, will come on Monday before Judge Cleland, who will act for two weeks as presiding judge, beginning at that time.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY BY LIGHT OF DAY

James Ross is a gentleman who uses dope. When he uses it he believes that he is a bad one. He used it this morning and now he is in jail. This is the way it happened:

Mr. Ross was walking along the street and met F. D. Rodgers at First and Madison. He informed Mr. Rodgers that he wanted a dollar in good coin and wanted it "pronto." He threw in the information gratis that unless the money was forthcoming without trouble Ross would go after it.

"You will have to go some," remarked Rodgers, whereupon Mr. Ross reached for his right hip pocket. Then he did go some. Rodgers assisted. Officer Henson came along and took Mr. Ross to jail, being accompanied by a large crowd. Mr. Ross is now waiting for an opportunity to answer to a charge of attempted robbery in broad daylight.
