DOUGH BOYS GET BADGES

Rich Men's Sons Join Westchester, New York, Constabulary, at $1.47 Per Day When They Work—Elevate Tone of Jail.

With the announcement by Sheriff Charley Lane of Westchester county that he had added Richard Harding Davis, author and playwright, to his cluster of wealthy deputies, the lawless element in that territory realized that further resistance was useless, says the New York World. Black Hand men, barn burners, road agents, real estate sharks and politicians who have been trying to make an honest living by the sweat of their sandbags admitted that it was all up with them.

"It was the smoothest deal I ever pulled off when I got Dickey to join my man hunters," said Sheriff Lane with a satisfied smile. "I don't know how the news got out, but I had scarcely received his wire of acceptance from Marion, Mass., before the bad men of Westchester county began phoning me to reserve quarters for them at the jail. It looks as though we'll have to put cots in the corridors to accommodate the overflow."

"Did you have much trouble in securing Mr. Davis?" asked the reporter.

"Not a great deal. He was eager enough for the position, but we had difficulty arranging terms. At first he demanded 6 cents a word for every word he used while making an arrest. I said $1.47 a day for every day he worked was the best I could offer. All the other swells get the same wages."

To Elevate the Jail.

"How many have enlisted so far?"

"Six, but I have a dozen applications. Here's the list up to date: Commodore Wilson Marshall of the Larchmont Yacht club; A. C. Bostwick, the Standard Oil man; Paul G. Thebaud, the banker; J. Campbell Thompson, formerly counsel for the Metropolitan Street railway; A. Jackson Stone, broker, and Richard Harding Davis. Guess that's a bum lot of hired help? Eh? What? Why, it's no disgrace to be arrested by any one of those fellows. We expect a whole lot of people will be getting in trouble just for the honor of being dragged through the streets by one of them."

"Jealous?" repeated Under Sheriff Hank Scherp of New Rochelle. "Not a bit of it. They can't help it if they're millionaires. I think they deserve a lot of credit. Their presence on the staff will surely elevate the tone of the jail."

Taxpayers of Westchester county are delighted at the prospect of having the wealthy New Yorkers at their service in case of trouble. As to just what prompted the six young men to enlist in the county constabulary opinions vary. Some folks are unkind enough to charge them with wanting the tin star decoration to show their authority over the large forces of men they employ on their summer estates. The majority believe they were moved by pure patriotism and a desire to rid the county of the disorderly element.

Advantages of the Job.

While the task of deputy sheriff is an extremely hazardous one it has more cheerful compensations. For instance, the official tin plate tacked directly over the heart is the open sesame to circuses and social affairs. Deputies are compelled to swing a sapling, but as most of the new members have kept steady company with canes for some time this won't prove much of a burden.

"And they have another advantage over the ordinary constable," said Sheriff Lane. "They will patrol the streets in automobiles, making it virtually impossible for burglars to see them or hear them coming."

"Will they have regular hours?"

"Sure thing. They will have to report every morning for drill in front of the White Plains depot. Tuesdays and Thursdays will be devoted to target practice at the Larchmont Yacht club. Davis is a dead shot with the 10-inch adjectives and self-cocking pronouns. We'll use him for the heavy work. Commodore Marshall will have charge of the water forces in case of a streetcar strike or Black Hand riot."

Richard Harding Davis lost no time getting to White Plains to swear in. He said he wouldn't mind being dragged away from a first night to answer the call of duty, but denied that he was going into the business to secure data for magazine work. Instead, it was to protect his own property.

After the Highwaymen.

"My object in joining the sheriff's staff," said he, "is to police my own property up in North Castle. There have been a number of holdups there. Howard Scribner's men were recently held up by desperadoes in broad daylight, who robbed them of money they were bringing to North Castle to pay off the men on the place. On last Sunday night my kennel master was held up while he was returning from White Plains. They shoved a revolver in his face and demanded his money. He had no money, so the robbers took a basket of dog biscuit he had in the wagon."

"I was never so pleased in all my life," said Paul G. Thebaud, the banker, before he sailed for Europe yesterday. "Yes, I am going abroad to study European methods of catching criminals. I have always had an intense desire to throw back the flap of my coat and show a shield."

BUXTON DENIES THAT GRANGE WANTS CHANGE

Austin T. Buxton, master of the Oregon State Grange, denies that the organization is working for or lending its support to any proposed legislative measure having as its object the grouping of all the state educational institutions under the management of one board of regents of five members. In speaking of the matter this morning Mr. Buxton said:

"I have just read an item in yesterday's Journal dated from Salem stating that a committee of the State Grange had prepared a draft of a bill to be presented to the legislature placing all institutions of higher education in Oregon under one board of five members.

"I wish to say most emphatically that your correspondent is mistaken. The State Grange has no such committee in existence. It had a committee last year making certain investigations regarding such institutions but this committee never made to the State Grange any recommendations of any kind regarding this and it is altogether improbable that such recommendations would receive the approval of that body if they ever were presented to it.

"If there is such a move afoot that suggested on foot anywhere in the state with any Grange influence behind it it must be by some local branch of the organization. I want to say in the most positive way, that the legislative committee of the State Grange of which I am chairman, and which has charge of the legislative work of the order, is not favor such a proposition at the present time and will give it no support."

2 LITTLE INJUN BOYS BURGLARS

Steal Postal Blanks and Order Guns and Things From Chicago.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Aug. 12. The discovery of two little Indian boys armed to the teeth and preparing to go upon a mimic warpath solved the mystery of a postoffice robbery in Nevada that has perplexed the federal officers for several weeks, according to a report received at the postoffice here today.

Nearly two months ago the postoffice of the Indian reservation at Owyhee, Nevada, was entered and 200 postal money order blanks were taken. Inspector Johnson was at once sent to the Nev., was entered and 200 postal tion failed to find a clew.

A few days ago two little Indian lads of the reservation appeared with a small arsenal of firearms and sporting scene but after a prolonged investigation admitted having taken the postal order blanks from the postoffice. Filling them out for various sums they had sent them to a Chicago sporting goods house with orders for guns and fishing rods without number.

Because of their extreme youth the little fellows will not be prosecuted.

GRANGERS HOLD TWO MEETINGS

Two important committees of the state grange, that on providing for an amendment on single legislative districts and the executive committee are meeting today at the Lenox hotel. The former committee is formulating plans for applying the new Statement No. 1 law to the practical workings of the state government, and the latter to securing an attorney to represent the grange in the legal battle between the state and the Pacific States Telephone company over the initiative and referendum.

It is probable that the committee on single legislative districts will abandon its efforts to have an amendment providing for single legislative districts passed, in view of the adoption of Statement No. 1, which supplants the proposed legislation of the grange.

President Buxton of the state grange is conferring with the committees, but will return to his home tonight. The members of the executive committee in conference are R. W. Gill of Clean, J. Voorhees of Woodburn, C. E. Spence of Caby, C. D. Hoffman of La Grande, J. W. Black of Portland and Timothy Brownhill of McMinnville.

FRONT WHEEL DOWN; AUTOIST MAY DIE

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Providence, R. I., Aug. 12.—In a serious automobile smashup about five miles from here today Montgomery Sears, a son of one of the most prominent families of Boston, was probably fatally injured, and Chester Saunders, his chauffeur, was badly hurt.

The accident was due to the breaking of one of the front wheels while the machine was being driven at breakneck speed around a sharp curve. The injured men were found by another automobile party that passed along the road a few minutes later. The wrecked automobile was in flames and the injured riders were in danger of being consumed. Sears is suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. Saunders received a double fracture of the leg.

ADDITIONAL MARKET NEWS

EGG TRADE IS ON NEW BASIS

Board's New Method of Grading Brings Satisfaction to Eating Public.

Merchants are just readjusting themselves to the change inaugurated by the board of trade this week in grading eggs. This change has long been needed as under the old system consumers did not get what they paid for and farmers who had had eggs for sale received as much as those with fresh ones.

Under the innovation eggs are graded as extra, firsts and seconds and prices are made accordingly. Every case of eggs received on the local market is recandled and graded in this way. Extras are the perfect eggs and bring the highest price. Firsts are good but not quite as fresh and under the name of seconds come all weakening eggs, dirty or small ones. While it is not generally known, it is a fact that eggs deteriorate and this deterioration can be noted at the start. Any egg that shows signs of becoming stale by chemical decomposition is graded as "first" or "seconds."

It is believed that the new system is fair to both consumer and farmer. The former gets what he pays for and the latter gets paid for just what he produces.

HUCKLEBERRIES PLENTIFUL.

Crop This Year Is Best Ever Known in Wenaha Mountains.

Pendlton, Or., Aug. 12.—Never before in the history of the Blue mountains have huckleberries been so plentiful in the Wenaha and Blue mountain forest reserves where the country has been protected from forest fires by the careful attention of forest rangers during the past two seasons. Umatilla Indian squaws have reaped a rich harvest from berries this year, for this fruit sells readily at $1 per gallon in the market and a squaw can pick from four to five gallons per day. In the vicinity of Meacham and on upper McKay creek especially fine berries have been found this year and it is believed that the protection afforded this wild fruit by the forestry department in preventing forest fires will make it more abundant than ever on the Blue mountains.

TREE LOADED WITH EIGHT GALLONS HONEY

Pendleton, Or., Aug. 12.—One of the first bee trees ever found in this section of the Blue Mountains was found this week on the Joe Parkes homestead, a mile from Meacham. Three swarms of bees were in the immense tamarack tree and eight gallons of fine honey was extracted.

The bees had entered the hollow tree through a hole 20 feet above the ground and the entire inside of the tree, which was hollow, was filled with the clear, rich wild honey, the first ever found in this section. The tree was located by an old woodsman engaged in cutting cordwood on the Parkes place who watched the swarms come to water at a mountain spring near his cabin.

Manufacture of Antique Rugs.

By Consul-General Michael of Calcutta.

The United States buys each year many thousand dollars' worth of what are known to the profession as "washed rugs." Brightly colored oriental rugs are sometimes washed with a solution of chloride of lime, which treatment partially bleaches the colors and imparts a soft appearance to the rug. This chemical treatment is a process of "washing" which produces the effect of age and a peculiar sheen to the surface, which is pointed out by the unscrupulous seller as a proof of superior quality. The fact is the process of washing as described invariably weakens, and in some cases destroys, the materials of the rug.

The progressive effect of the chemicals on the materials in the rug is as follows: The chlorine gas contained in the chloride of lime attracts oxygen and moisture from the air, by which carbolic acid is formed, which eats away the vitals of the rug. Soon it dissolves the wool and cotton in the rug become brittle and thus weaken the warp and deteriorate the woof. When this deterioration is complete the pile of the rug may be swept away by the ordinary process of sweeping, and the warp, which is the foundation of the rug, becomes so weak that holes appear here and there and very soon the rug is worthless.

The question arises as to how this disastrous treatment of rugs can be avoided and still give to the lover of antique effect what he desires. The only answer must be that the antique effect should be obtained by scientifically correct dyeing and correct technical blending of the colors in the rug. By this method the perfect antique effect can be produced and at the same time a thoroughly desirable rug be had—one that will equal the old Persian rug in appearance and possess all the strength and vitality that a rug can have.

It not infrequently happens that a Persian rug is too staring—for instance in red—and is not salable. The unscrupulous dealer will subject the rug to a series of washings in chemicals prepared water, and in this way turn out a rug possessing a soft and antique sheen that is truly captivating and finds a ready purchaser at an advanced price.

The existence of the oriental rug manufacture depends on the American market. At one time London was the rug market of the world. At the present time comparatively few rugs find an actual market in London. More fine rugs are taken by Germans, who, like Austrians, by the way, manufacture the tufted rug, which, when well made, is a beautiful and serviceable floor covering.

The United States has become the largest rug market of the world. This fact should make Americans earnest students of rugs in order that they may be prepared to detect frauds and to get the worth of the money invested in beautifying and making comfortable their homes, so far as rugs contribute to that result.

Germans Resorting to Fish.

Consul Herman L. Spahr of Breslau makes the following report of the increasing use of fish in Germany. The price of hogs in Breslau at the end of April was $10.95 to $12.85 per 110.23 pounds, against $9.52 to $11.90 at the same time last year. The high prices of meat during recent years have brought about a large advance in the consumption of fish in Germany. For the good management of the German sea fishery transportation methods had been improved and special markets established throughout the interior, but the demand for sea fish was slow of growth until meat prices soared. Now an increase is visible everywhere particularly, it is said, in Bavaria and Wurtemberg. A Breslau newspaper estimates that Germany's consumption of fish is now 18 per cent of the meat consumption. The consumption is based on the 1907 catch, which, after deducting imports and exports, amounted to 405,772 tons. The inland fishery is not included in this figure as there are no available statistics concerning it. The 1907 supply per capita was 6.62 kilos (14.62 pounds). While the meat supply (exclusive of home killings, game and poultry) was 2,450,000 tons or 39.8 kilos (87.74 pounds) per capita. The ratio was one to six, but the first quarter of 1908 shows an increase in the sea-fish supply of 14,607 tons (12½ per cent) over the same quarter of last year.

The Hungarian crown is eight centuries old and during that time it has undergone many strange vicissitudes. Once it was stolen by a queen, sewn up in a cushion and, with other baggage, carried across the frozen Danube to be pawned for 2,500 ducats. Redeemed and recovered, it was lodged in a fortress and guarded day and night by two noblemen. Once it was lost in a ditch. Another time it was the prize of bloody forays. For 50 years it was hidden in a forest to prevent it from falling into the hands of the Austrians.

IRON WASHERS GOOD AS GOLD

When Used as a Decoy to Catch Two Juvenile Postal Robbers.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Chico, Ca., Aug. 12.—James Mullay and Alton Downey, two 14-year-old boys, are under arrest here today charged with robbing the postoffice at Red Bluff Sunday and taking $1,700 in checks. One of the checks was sent back to Red Bluff from here with a request that it be cashed in $5 gold pieces. It was for $368. The bank turned it over to Sheriff Boyd of Tehama county, who sent a package of iron washers to the Chico address as a decoy.

The boys were arrested here on the charge of robbing a moving picture show and the officers found a wallet containing $1,500 in checks outside the jail under the window of their cell. Sheriff Boyd today identified the checks and the officers say the boys confessed robbing the postoffice.

WOMEN OF 60 YEARS CLIMB 6,000 FEET

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

La Grande, Aug. 12.—Repeating a feat which both had performed many times during their girlhood, Mrs. G. M. Taal of this city and her sister, Mrs. Ellen Eaton of Portland, both past 60 years of age, today climbed to the summit of Mount Emily, the highest peak surrounding Grand Ronde valley. The peak is 6,000 feet high, and is very rugged. Though it is a feat performed by but few mountain climbers of this city, both women made it easily.

LOGGER KILLED AT RANIER, OR.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Rainier, Or., Aug. 12.—James Wilson, 30 years old, was killed this morning about 10 o'clock at the Case logging camp. Several men were pulling a log up a stump when one end went down. Wilson was on the opposite end. The jar knocked him off. He fell a distance of about 20 feet and landed head first, his neck being broken. He was a single man and had lived in Rainier for two years. He had worked at the camp for six months. His home was Detroit, Mich. Quite a sum of money is at his credit in the First National bank.

Biting the nails is a habit that should be immediately corrected in children, because it permanently deforms them. Dipping the finger ends in some bitter tincture will generally prevent children from putting them in their mouth. If this fails, each finger should be encased in a stall until the propensity is eradicated.

T. M. STEVENS FUNDS ARE GARNISHEED

This morning two garnishments were levied on the funds of T. M. Stevens by Mrs. Stevens through her attorney, E. A. Clark. The funds belonging to Stevens in the United States National bank were tied up by the suit, while a similar action was directed against the interests of the defendant in the case held by him in the Portland Rice Milling company. The papers in the suits were served by Deputy Sheriff N. H. Bird a short time before noon.

ANUBIS UNDER TOW COMING TO DRYDOCK

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Aug. 1.—Wireless advices received here today report that the steamer Anubis of the German Kosmos line, which went on the rock off San Miguel Island, off Santa Barbara, two weeks ago, has been floated and is now being towed by the tug Goliath to Cuyler's landing.

The wireless dispatch was from the revenue cutter Manning, which passed and spoke the Goliath last night.

Although the Anubis is battered badly, it is believed a short period of repair in the drydock will restore the vessel to a seaworthy condition. She will be brought here for that purpose.

TROUSERS STOLEN WHILE HE SWAM

Y. M. C. A. Member the Victim of a Sneak Thief This Afternoon.

While Harold Johnson, a member of the Y. M. C. A., was dressing this afternoon after taking a plunge in the tank there, a sneak thief entered the locker room, stole Johnson's trousers and necktie, and made his escape without so much as being seen. Johnson left his locker open while he walked to the other end of the room and while he was gone the robbery took place.

The thief, after making his escape from the locker room, went into the lavatories on the upper floor and after emptying the pockets of the trousers and taking a scarf pin from the necktie, left them lying on the floor.

Johnson never suspected that a robbery had been committed but thought that some of the other members present had played a joke on him. As time passed and the garments and jokers failed to be found he realized that he had been robbed. The thief, however, had been gone fully 15 minutes.

The scarf pin was of very little value while in the trouser's was a purse containing about $6. The thief left no clue.
