MOB CONTROLS WHILE SOLDIERS ARE PASSIVE

Springfield in Stage of Serious Race War—Aged Negro Latest Victim of Rioters Who Defy Authorities—More Troops Are Coming.

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 15.—Just before 2 o'clock this morning a fresh mob assembled and attacked the home of the Rev. C. H. McDaniel, a negro preacher, in North Seventh street. The house was utterly demolished. McDaniel and his family fled when the mob approached and escaped injury. Occasional shooting can be heard from various sections of the city.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 15.—When darkness covered the city tonight the fury of the mob broke afresh. The fires of wrath had been smoldering all day long. The leaders of the mob were waiting only for the cover of darkness. As if by magic little groups of people began to form on the street corners in various parts of the city.

The mob was not awed by the presence of 2,000 or more soldiers. Sentries patrolled the streets. Soldiers with loaded rifles ready to shoot at the order were in evidence everywhere. But the mob formed just the same.

Little groups began moving toward common points. The soldiers made no effort to prevent these gatherings. Gradually the welding of little groups formed a big group. One big group merged with another big group and almost in an instant the mob was formed. There was no lack of leaders. The mob spirit was abroad.

William Donigan, an aged negro, is in St. John's hospital at the point of death, after the worst treatment yet accorded any of the mob's victims. There is no hopes for his recovery. He was shot twice, his throat was gashed with a dagger, he was trimpled on and finally swung to a tree. He survived this treatment after being cut down by troops from the limb where he had been left dangling by the mob.

Negroes Beaten.

A white man is reported to have been killed by negroes at White City, a resort two miles out. Three other white men are said to have suffered severe beatings at the hands of the same gang of negroes. No details have been received in the city and confirmation of the report is impossible.

The greatest danger that faces the city is that the rioters may resort to the use of dynamite against the 2,000 militiamen now guarding the city as well as to destroy more negro dwellings.

A report was circulated tonight that men had been dispatched this afternoon to look for the explosives and are expected back at 11 o'clock. This report caused the greatest anxiety to the militia officers and led to unusual precautions being taken to prevent the use of explosives.

Attack on Donigan.

The attack on Donigan came after the city had apparently settled down to an evening devoid of unusual excitement. The same men who engineered last night's outrages led the mob that started away from the business section. Instantly Company G, I. N. G. of Peoria, was started after the mob to keep it in check.

The troops caused the mob to split. One section went to a row of small houses at Edwards and Spring streets, known as "Donigan's flats." All the negro occupants but Donigan and his wife had left. Mrs. Donigan took the alarm and escaped.

"Breaking into the house two shots were fired at the negro. Another rioter slashed his throat with a dagger. Then a score jumped on the old man, cutting him badly. They then carried him into the street and strung him to a convenient tree. By this time the troops had overtaken the mob and again put it to flight. Donigan was cut down and hurried to the hospital. There, it is stated, there is no hope for him.

Threaten Women.

The anger of the mob is believed to have partly been directed against Donigan because his wife is a white woman. Several threats were made against the woman but she eluded the rioters.

Once again the mob took up its march, making a wide detour and swinging to the east end. A report that 50 negroes were encamped on a vacant lot on Carpenter street sent the crowd in that direction. With the militia trailing them the mob moved on. Several times the march was interrupted by chases after negroes, but all managed to escape.

All sorts of reports of trouble at points outside the city were received to add terror to the night. A message from Spaulding, 20 miles out, was received asking for troops as a negro baiting mob had been reported to have formed there.

Part of the first infantry was immediately sent out in automobiles to preserve order.

A mob formed at Riverton and blocked traffic on the interurban. Trains were stopped while a hunt was made for negroes believed to be leaving Springfield.

Young Discouraged.

General Young, commanding the troops here, late tonight virtually admitted his helplessness to cope with the situation with the force under him. More soldiers are needed, he says.

"We cannot deal with the rioters in view of the tactics they have adopted," he explained. "Half the troops here could quell any mob that formed, but when the men disperse only to form again and renew their operations, the bodies of soldiers cannot follow them quickly enough. We now propose to patrol the city systematically. Every street will be guarded. To do this more soldiers are needed."

That the real danger feared is the resort to dynamite by the rioters was revealed by other officers. Attempts to blow up the camps are feared, or a resort to the explosive to destroy other negro resorts.

"We have prepared for this emergency, however," declared one of General Young's aides. "The first explosion will call for a volley which will kill some of the rioters."

How serious the situation is regarded is shown by a statement by the same aide that it may be three or four days before the troops can be withdrawn.

At midnight, Donigan, the negro, was still alive, but his death was predicted by daybreak.

BRYAN GETS GOOD NEWS

New York Leaders' Predictions Cheer the Commoner, While Testimony of Strength Comes From Everywhere.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

Lincoln, Neb. Aug. 15.—The poets have broken loose, with William J. Bryan as their victim. Almost every mail received at Fairview for the past 10 days has contained one or more compositions in eulogy of Bryan and the Democratic party. Some of these are set to music and are sent to the presidential candidate for approval of both words and melody. Mr. Bryan has not yet decided to give any of them to a publisher, but admits that he has found time to read them and with a great deal of interest.

The candidate was in rare good humor today. He had just been advised of the predictions of Boss Murphy of Tammany and Chairman Conners of the New York state committee that the Democrats would carry New York. The announcement that the New York state convention had been advanced several weeks, the original plan having provided for a convention late in September, also was satisfactory to Bryan. The candidate wanted to spend several days on a speechmaking tour of New York state the latter part of September, this being the suggestion of National Chairman Mack, but Bryan deemed it inadvisable to visit the state until after the convention. Chairman Mack is now arranging for Mr. Bryan's dates.

Kansas Offers Aid.

Other encouraging information reached Mr. Bryan today. It came from Kansas and it was to the effect that prominent negroes are organizing to throw the colored vote of the middle west against Taft. The Kansas Watchman, a newspaper published by and for the negroes, is taking the lead in the movement and strongly advocates the defeat of Taft. The information that came to Bryan today was to the effect that the work of organizing negro clubs is being prosecuted vigorously.

When asked if he had anything to say concerning the Springfield (Illinois) race riot Mr. Bryan said he had not yet read the accounts of the disturbance and that any long-distance opinions from Fairview or Hot Springs scarcely would aid the authorities or people of Illinois to handle a situation in the latter state.

Fred P. Morris of Illinois, an old friend of Bryan and a prominent lawyer, called at Fairview today and told the candidate that there was much in the situation in that state to cheer the Democracy. He expressed the belief that both Bryan and Stevenson stood a splendid chance to carry the state.

Mr. Bryan's Grain Crop.

Mr. Bryan will depart Thursday for Des Moines and from that place will go to Chicago for another conference with Chairman Mack and members of the various committees in charge of the campaign.

The threshing of the wheat and oats crops harvested in the Bryan fields was finished today, which induced Mr. Bryan to remark facetiously:

"We farmers feel especially relieved to know that the pastures are to be good and that the corn has been saved by last night's rain, and this too, without any interference to threshing."

The Bryan acres have yielded abundantly this season, but the crop of votes in November is his chief concern.

L. M. Hull, of Shelby, N. C., a knitting mill man, called to assure Bryan that he had been in 28 states since the first of June and he had noted that the Democratic outlook was bright. Bryan thanked both of them for their good news.

AWFUL PLAGUE IN ASTRAKHAN

Soldiers Desert Who Were Sent to Aid, and Even Kinsmen Flee.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Odessa, Aug. 15. Evidence of the seriousness of the cholera epidemic in the Astrakhan district was furnished to the war department today. It became known that two regiments, sent to the infected district to aid the authorities ekhnderic whomkic cys o t cmfw cm in fighting the disease, have been so depleted by desertions of terrified soldiers that they will have to be reorganized to make them effective.

The disease, of a most malignant type, has killed out 50 per cent of the population of the country in this vicinity. Towards treating or nursing the victims practically nothing has been done, as even relatives of the afflicted persons flee as soon as the disease manifests itself.

Work of all kinds has been almost wholly suspended and many who have thus far succeeded in escaping the cholera are in danger of starvation. Peasants along the banks of the Volga have thrown their dead into the stream, which carried them into the Caspian sea. Many bodies have been washed up along the coast and the disease is rapidly spreading as a consequence.

Orders have been issued for the court-martialing of a number of officers who are accused of winking at the desertion of their men.

"There has been only one statement issued by myself regarding my action for absolute divorce from my husband and that was given to one New York paper. ARMY OFFICER'S PRETTY WIFE CAUSE OF TRAGIC MURDER AT LONG ISLAND

Captain Peter Cooper Hains Mortally Wounds William E. Annis, Editor of Magazines and Writer of Fiction—Noted Writer of Sea Fiction on Guard While Brother Kills.

Motive—Jealousy.

Principals—Captain Peter Cooper Hains and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, writer of sea stories, and William E. Annis, magazine writer and editor of well-known publications.

Cause—A pretty woman.

(Hearst News by Longest Leased Wire.)

New York, Aug. 15.—Captain Peter Cooper Hains, son of General Peter Carnover Hains, and one of the best known younger officers in the United States army, today shot and mortally wounded William E. Annis, a magazine publisher and editor of this city, at the pier of the Bayside Yacht club at Bayside, L. I.

Annis died a few hours later in the Flushing hospital, the victim of a husband's revenge for a wife gone astray.

For years he had been numbered among Captain Hains' most intimate friends. But he took advantage of the officer's absence in the Philippines on duty to win away the young and beautiful Mrs. Haines.

She confessed to her husband when he made a hurried trip home.

First, a divorce suit, instituted in June, with Annis as the corespondent, and then today's shooting, were the results of the confession.

Wife Witnesses Shooting.

Annis' wife, accompanied by her two children, witnessed the shooting from the club house piazza. Just a moment before the first shot was fired, she caught sight of Captain Hains' uniform. Sensing danger she called to her husband and tried to warn him, but he did not hear her. She collapsed in a state of hysteria as she saw Annis fall.

He was in a small cutboat at the end of the pier when Hains opened fire and his body fell into the water when he was wounded. A yacht's crew fished him from quicker death by drowning.

T. Jenkins Hains, elder brother of the captain and a famous writer of sea tales, stood by during the shooting with another revolver and prevented anyone from interfering while the younger man poured five shots into Annis' body. Then wheeling toward a crowd that surged out upon the yacht club pier, he held its members at bay until he saw that his brother was not going to be harmed.

With the utmost calmness both brothers then presented their weapons, the butts forward, to the men in the crowd. They sat down on a string of piles afterwards and smoked until the police came and arrested them.

In the Flushing station the elder brother, when did what little talking was done, said:

"Peter shot him because he stole his wife and wrecked his home. There is a child. It isn't Peter's. He made sure his wife confessed to him and me. That was the reason for the shooting."

The brothers calmly wrote out telegrams, Jenkins to a lawyer, Peter to his father, the distinguished old general, who was at Fort Hancock. The

GROWERS CONFORM CLOSELY TO LAW

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Aug. 15.—Fruit Inspector Armstrong is watching the Marion county markets closely for infected fruit, but so far has been called upon to destroy very little of it. Growers are learning fast that wormy apples cannot be disposed of in the markets in this county.

In most instances it is only necessary to notify the retailer that the apples must not be sold and must be returned to the grower. In only a few cases this summer has fruit been confiscated.

G. O. P. SENDS BACK COIN OF CORPORATIONS

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Campaign contributions to the amount of several thousand dollars received from corporations had to be returned to the donors because of their ignorance of the fact that there is a federal law prohibiting such contributions, according to National Treasurer Sheldon of the Republican national committee, who arrived from New York today.

In a statement this afternoon Mr. Sheldon said it was his purpose to publish the names of all individual contributors to the national campaign fund, no matter what amount they might contribute. All the money collected in the west by Fred W. Upham will be sent to New York subject to the same rule.

"We shall not rely on state committees to collect our funds for us," said Mr. Sheldon. "We shall do our own collecting and we need a large sum to handle the campaign. The traveling expenses for speakers alone will amount to between $100,000 and $500,000, one piece of literature in the hands of each voter will cost over $200,000. Other expenses are in proportion and will foot a large total.

During the day Mr. Sheldon entered into conference with National Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock, Assistant Treasurer Upham, Secretary T. Dupont, chairman of the speakers' bureau, and Richard S. Child, chief of the literary bureau, on plans of campaign to collect campaign funds. The conferences were held behind closed doors.

Chairman Hitchcock himself put in a busy day. He stated tonight that the conferences with the leaders at this time will result in complete organization of the western headquarters and the arrangement of the preliminary campaign. General Dupont has arranged to use every available party orator on the stump. These speakers will be checked up as to their effectiveness under given conditions and those of the highest standard will have all they possibly can do.
