Daniel Klenow and Miss Addie Riddle were united in marriage at the home of the bride, 663 East Thirteenth street, Wednesday evening by the Rev. A. A. Winter of the United Evangelical church. "O Promise Me," sung by Miss Emma Klenow, sister of the bridegroom, preceded the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," played by Miss Meta Appel. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor, Miss Stella Angel, carried carnations. James Klenow was the best man. After the congratulations had been received the guests retired to the dining room which had been converted into a Japanese tea garden, where a dainty supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Klenow have gone to Newport on their wedding trip and will be home to their friends after September 1 at 663 East Thirteenth street.

Miss Frances Sorenson of Forest Grove and Arthur J. Prideoaux of Portland, both graduates of Pacific university, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother, August 19. Rev. Mr. Gould of the Methodist church officiated.

Only relatives and friends were present. Mrs. Owen, sister of the bridegroom, played the wedding march. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Sorenson, and the bridegroom by his brother, George Prideoaux. Mr. and Mrs. Prideoaux will live in Portland, where Mr. Prideoaux is principal of the Mount Taber schools.

Miss Eugenie Trombley, daughter of Eugene Trombley of 1415 Kaufman avenue, Vancouver, was married Wednesday morning to A. W. Parks at the Catholic rectory.

Miss Helen P. Rogers and Walter Charles Parrott were married August 4 by Dr. Clarence True Wilson at the home of F. F. Hallin. Mr. and Mrs. Parrott will reside in Portland.

Frederick Campbell Patterson and Miss Hazel Jessie Coleman were married at the residence of Centenary M. E. church August 6 by the pastor, Clarence True Wilson, D. D.

Saturday morning Dr. Clarence True Wilson united in marriage William E. Gleason and Vera Tolonen at the Centenary M. E. parsonage.

John W. Robinson of Portland and Ida May Robinson of Canby were married at the St. Charles hotel Wednesday by Rev. G. C. Love.

COMING EVENTS

One of the events of this week will be a lawn party and entertainment given by the Children of Mary of St. Francis church at Mrs. Kennedy's home at East Eighth and Ash streets, Thursday. These young people are known over the city.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison of No. 379 Oxford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of. Sold under guarantee at all druggists."

PERSONAL

The new choir of Centenary M. E. church will appear for the first time under the direction of the recently elected director, E. E. Patterson. They will sing Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Patterson has had wide experience as musical director in Chicago and at Denver in the great Trinity Methodist church there during the pastorate of Robert McIntyre and is a tenor of great ability.

Portland people who visited in St. Helena last week are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Downing, Mrs. Otto Kulp, the Misses Amy George and Maude Decher and Arthur Moulton.

Miss Mary Otto and Henry C. Otto are the guests of Mrs. Herbert C. Jenkins at Newport for a few days last week.

Mrs. J. C. Welch and her little daughter, Margaret, are spending several weeks at Foley Springs in the Cascade mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clyde Owen have returned from a visit to British Columbia and the several cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertillon and her children are spending their vacation at Lockley hall, Seaside.

John W. McKinnon and Robert McClure have gone to Mount Hood on a two weeks' trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George V. Apel left Friday on an eastern trip of several weeks' duration.

A. L. Peoria spent last Sunday with his family at Long Beach.

Madame McClure will resume business September 1 in the Clifford building, corner Tenth and Morrison streets.

Growing Old.

A little more tired at close of day. A little less anxious to have our way. A little less ready to scold and blame. A little more care for a brother's name. And so we are nearing the journey's end. Where time and eternity meet and blend. A little less care for bonds and gold. A little more zeal in the days of old. A broader view and a surer mind. And a little more love for all mankind. And so we are folding our tents away. That leads to the gates of a better day. A little more love for the friends of youth. A little less zeal for established truth. A little more charity in our veins. A little less thirst for the daily news. And so we are folding our tents away. And passing in silence at close of day. A little more leisure to sit and dream. A little more real the things upon. A little nearer to those ahead. With visions of those long-loved and dead. And so we are going where all must go. To the place the living may never know. A little more laughter, a few more tears. And we shall have told our increasing years. The book is closed, and the prayers are said. And we are a part of the countless dead. "Three happy. If then some soul can say, 'I live because he has passed my way.'"

A noted Belgian bacteriologist, Leon Bertrand, claims that he has discovered a much more powerful serum as a cure for pneumonia than that now in use. It is a bactericidal, not an antitoxin agent.

PANIC OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

In the current number of The Forum is an article by Louis Windmueller of the firm of Louis Windmueller & Roelker, in which he makes an interesting and instructive comparison of the panic of 1857 and the panic that lately disturbed Wall street.

"The 1907 flurry," he says, "was not so bad as that of 1857, although business recovered rapidly from the earlier trouble, and in 1858 most of the houses that had failed were able to resume."

"Properly revived sooner than we had anticipated, by the credit we extended to deserving customers, and by an early foundation for a long continued good business."

"The panic had been caused by premature expenditures for railroads built to develop a new territory. Colonists could not be induced to settle along lines as fast as promoters expected, and western merchants had been more lavish than prudent in granting loans to newcomers."

"When the crops were gathered and gold began to pour in from California and from Europe the confidence returned and the crisis was forgotten."

"Of the panic of 1907 Mr. Windmueller writes: Under the magnetic influence of Charles T. Barney the Knickerbocker Trust company had prospered until its share price rose to $100. Its dividends increased from 8 per cent to 10 per cent per annum. But a considerable part of the deposits of sixty millions was advanced on property that at the time had no ready market value. As soon as the bank of Commerce realized the situation it refused to clear for the Knickerbocker. When this influential institution was compelled to suspend its operations it refused to clear for the Knickerbocker. When this influential institution was compelled to suspend its operations it refused to clear for the Knickerbocker."

"The manifold effects startled the community. It goes without saying that speculators were the first to suffer. Many of the speculators whose property had shrunk some twenty-five millions in March became desperate when in October they were forced to liquidate their cherished estate. He lay hopelessly down to die, and his heirs found that he had left about twenty-five millions instead of the fifty that they expected."

"When ordinary millionaires reached the end of their liquid resources they sold their securities and discharged their servants. So many took the first opportunity to pass out of existence that the panic left about twenty-five millions more compelled to turn down the applications of all speculators."

"In March losses of the operators could be kept secret, ashamed of their holdings, they spoke of them in whispers only. But toward the end of 1907 it became impossible for them to hide their perplexity. During a short trip across the ocean by a member of the triumphant party, the speculators were acquired on instalments, an inquisitive sheriff broke into their strong boxes and found in them all together $100 worth of available assets."

"This captain of industry claimed the control of corporations capitalized at one hundred millions."

"As the writer saw doors of many financial institutions besieged by depositors, he was reminded of similar scenes in bygone days. Impatient men, with the same anxious faces, were again kept in line by the same patient police. Some were so audacious enough to pay promissory notes for advanced positions, and had time to regret the folly when they found that, in spite of scandal mongers, the bank resolutely declined to suspend."

"Keep brokers, who had the boarders who were successful in drawing money, and followed them to their safe deposit vaults; they persuaded them to deposit in consideration of a premium with their currency for checks."

"The paucity of commercial failures in the face of compulsory retrenchment has demonstrated that American merchants who confine themselves to legitimate business are worthy confidence. On the security which the New York clearing house accepted for certificates during the panic more than 50 per cent consisted of commercial paper, which was paid as it matured."

"Speculators and politicians may look upon present conditions according to their respective interests; with bounteous harvests in prospect and the evident return of confidence, prosperity cannot be far distant."

"A courageous man may need have no fear of a panic unless his hunger for gold (and such) forces him to incur debt which he is soon fain to at all times to meet. He may not get rich fast, but he can enjoy a quiet life, and is more likely to command credit than his venturesome neighbor."

"We have drawn more gold from abroad during 1907 than on any previous occasion. About twenty millions were needed to take the place of hoarded money, this amount was obtained without difficulty in consequence of these drafts our panic has been grievously felt in the remotest parts of the globe, but at the same time it has demonstrated the financial strength of the country."

"Gustave Lueders, who has been spending the summer abroad, returned to New York last week and attended the rehearsals of his new musical comedy."

"Victor Herbert's new opera 'Algeria' will be brought out this season with Ida Brooks Hunt, Kathryn Hutchinson, Harry Tigue and Harriet Burt in the principal parts."

"Robert Edson will appear this season in a new play, 'The Call of the North.' The dramatization is by George Broadhurst and bears the title of 'The Call of the North.'"

"Eva Kendall is to return to vaudeville this fall. She is expected to start her first success with her new and doubtless it will be lucrative for the 'team' in a monologue, no trouble about a payroll."

"The pope has received Agnes Wright of Detroit in private audience. Wright, one of the best known American Catholic clergies at France. He played several selections for the pope, who complimented him highly."

"Maxine Elliott's new play for her new theatre will be by Clyde Fitch, who has provided her with the only real success she has had since becoming a star. The piece is to be called 'The South' and, as indicated will deal with social life in New York city, a subject that Fitch has applied himself to with good results. Fitch has been spending the spring and early summer in Europe and is due back soon. He disposed of a number of his former plays while abroad and they will be seen this winter in Germany, France and Italy. This is all the result of the unusual vogue of his play 'The Truth' in those countries. It is a singular fact that Europe has raved over 'The Truth' which has never been a success in America."

"William Collier kept his word and delivered the promised manuscript of a new play 'The Patriot' to Charles Frohman yesterday. At least it bore all the marks of the thing of a play. It was bound in an easily handled manuscript cover. On the outside was printed 'The Patriot, A Comedy by William Collier.' But inside these very nice leather covers all else was written in Mr. Collier's private hieroglyphics, inscribed, superscribed and circumscribed with dialogue, stage business, happy thoughts and diagrams of the scenes. I am sorry to say Mr. Frohman, after starting fixedly at the manuscript for some time, 'But English, German and enough French to save me from staying in Paris are the only languages I know. This doesn't look to me like any of these. Oh, yes it is,' replied Mr. Collier, 'and it will be your own stenographer.' And he must have succeeded, because 'The Patriot' is Mr. Collier's play for the coming season."

Price of Stock After September 10, 1908 25 Cents PER SHARE THE GENEROSITY OF NATURE has never been more thoroughly exemplified than in the development of our properties, and it is to our future interest, as well as in accord with our disposition, to give our stock-holders a full measure of this gift of nature

NEW PROFITS DEVELOPED—Our superintendent at the mines keeps us fully informed as to development work, and sends us samples whenever there is a change in the character of ore. Samples sent us a few days ago show good values in copper. This is in addition to our values in gold, silver and lead, and shows us that we are constantly nearing the zone of high-grade values so numerous in this wonderful Coeur d'Alene district, where the prospectors and ordinary miners become millionaires and captains of finance.

PROUD NATURE does not like to be slighted, and when she extends her hands, beckons us on to her treasure vaults and invites us to partake of her generosity she does so with all good intent, and we must show our appreciation of this invitation by following with quickened footsteps. This is what we have done and what we are now doing, and at last reward is within reach, and we are being led to the proof and truthfulness of the predictions made in the report of Captain H. D. Williams, our consulting engineer.

CAPTAIN H. D. WILLIAMS has agreed to take personal charge and supervision of the further development of our properties, and the installation of machinery and equipment. His confidence in our properties is well shown in the fact that three sevenths of his salary is paid him in stock of the company. Hence it is up to Captain Williams to open up our ore bodies as soon as possible and put us upon a dividend basis without delay, in order that this stock reaches its par value of $1.00 per share at the earliest possible time and then continue to advance. The larger the dividends, the more he will receive from his stock, and each of our stockholders will receive a like profit.

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE has very much favored us, for we have received a large patronage from the investors, and, with the exception of a few thousand shares, the entire allotment of stock at 10 cents per share has been taken, and applications for stock are still coming in more numerous than ever. The increase in our stock sales, as well as the great improvement and increased values of our properties, as the result of our constant development work, proves to us that we should not have so long delayed advancing the price of our stock, and had we not already notified our eastern representatives and made publication of a fixed date, we would have changed the date from September 10 to August 25, on account of PRESENT PRICE OF SHARES AND TERMS OF PAYMENT $ 25.00 will buy 250 shares—$ 2.50 cash and $ 2.50 monthly 50.00 will buy 500 shares— 5.00 cash and 5.00 monthly 60.00 will buy 600 shares— 6.00 cash and 6.00 monthly 70.00 will buy 700 shares— 7.00 cash and 7.00 monthly 80.00 will buy 800 shares— 8.00 cash and 8.00 monthly 90.00 will buy 900 shares— 9.00 cash and 9.00 monthly 100.00 will buy 1,000 shares— 10.00 cash and 10.00 monthly The same proportion of payments will buy larger amounts of our stock, but orders must be dated before September 14 or they will be rejected at this price.

the constant improvement of our properties and the present demand and applications for our stock. WE WILL PUBLISH ENGINEER'S REPORT, so that all may know the present as well as the future values of our properties, and so that they may readily learn why our engineer accepts three sevenths of his salary in stock. This report will show you that we have not increased the price of our stock to its true value by one half. Its price could justly be 50 cents per share. You should meet our engineer and converse with him regarding our early dividend stage and our possibility of paying 100 per cent dividends on the par value of our stock. It would not surprise us if our stock sold readily, upon its true and un-exaggerated merits on actual ore values blocked out and on dividends paid, for $2.00 or $6.00 per share inside of 12 months. This is what our neighboring properties have done, and this is what we look for. Our engineer's report will be published in the Telegram of August 28, and in The Journal of August 30. Don't fail to read this report.

ADVANCE IN PRICE is not equal to advance in values, and, while our stock will advance from time to time, we do not expect the advance to equal its real value for some months to come—not, at least, until it has reached above par; then we propose to put a price on our stock fully equal to its true value, as shown by our properties, their ore bodies and their productive ability and dividend payments. At that stage the investor in our stock will have to pay true value but until then the opportunity for exorbitant and unlimited profits will be open to him, and we will continue to invite him to join with us in receiving his portion of nature's generosity in the distribution of her golden wealth.
