BEAVERS BREAK EVEN WITH OAKS

Graney and Garrett Puzzlers in Morning but Groom Loses Game.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 24.—Portland and Oakland broke even on yesterday's games and the two teams left for the north last night with the Oaks one game to the good on the series. The Beavers won in the morning, 5 to 4, and the Oaks in the afternoon, 2 to 1. Hardy proved easy for the northerners in the morning, and when Graney became wild, Manager McCredie chased him and Garrett clinched the game.

Groom held the home guard down to four hits in the afternoon, but couldn't win. Nelson gave six bingles, but he was very effective, issuing no passes. Eagan made both scores for Oakland in the afternoon.

Raftery's double in the second inning, followed by Ryan's single and Cooney's long sacrifice, allowed Raff to register. Mickey La Longe was responsible for the victory, his second of the series. Eagan reached first on Ryan's error at third. Slattery's two-bagger shoved him to third and he scored on Mickey's sacrifice.

In the sixth Eagan walked and promptly pilfered second base. La Longe's long single over second base allowed Truck to tote home with the winning run. Scores:

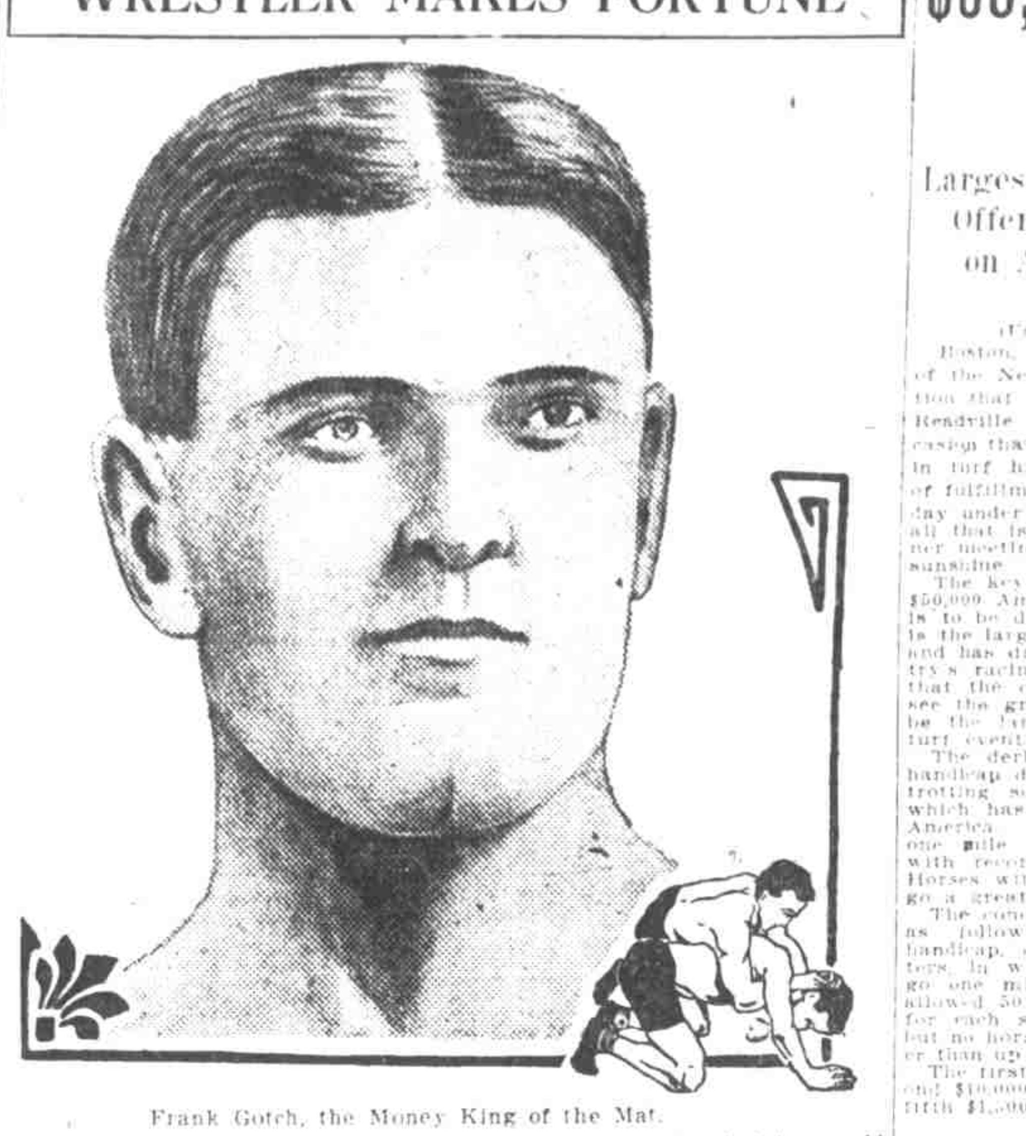
WRESTLER MAKES FORTUNE



Frank Gotch, the Money King of the Mat.

Wrestling is not the only thing Frank Gotch can do. He can save money. It is estimated that Gotch has $65,000 stowed away in land, and when he has added to this his summer's earnings on the vaudeville circuit at $1,000 per week he will easily have $100,000 to his credit. In his match with Rowler at Seattle he cleaned up $6,000, and this is one of the biggest hauls he ever made.

Nine years ago Frank Gotch was living with his parents, Fred and Amelia Gotch, on their modest little farm at the forks of the Des Moines river in Humboldt county. At that time he was a poor boy of poor parents and unknown beyond his immediate farmer neighborhood. He had, however, done a little amateur wrestling.

Saw Farmer Burns.

About this time it happened that "Farmer" Burns was advertised to give a wrestling exhibition in Fort Dodge. Frank heard of this and concluded to attend the show. Burns invited anybody in the audience to come forward and be thrown in fifteen minutes. Frank had been hard at work all that day with a threshing machine at the farm, but just to see what show he would have with a professional he went forward in response to the invitation. He was not thrown. Burns, after the exhibition, had a talk with Gotch in which he took occasion to say that he was the best amateur wrestler that he had ever had hold of, and if he would let him give him some training he thought good professional timber would be developed.

From that time dates Frank Gotch's career as a wrestler. Last year his earnings were $17,000 and this year they will be $30,000.

About the first thing he did with the accumulations of his professional work was to pay off the mortgage covering the farm of the old folks. He has since made investments in real estate. Among his present holdings are a section of wheat land in Canada and some city property in Seattle. He carries a balance of some $10,000 in the banks of Humboldt.

Savings Are Large.

His savings at the present time aggregate $60,000 and possibly $75,000. About three fourths of this is invested in real estate which is rapidly enhancing in value. This sum might easily have been larger, but Frank is a very generous, large-hearted fellow and spends money freely, both for himself and his friends. He takes especial delight in showing his old father and mother a good time, furnishing them comforts and smoothing the days of their old age.

Humboldt takes a justifiable pride in Frank Gotch, the more so in that he is a clean man of good principles and free from bad habits.

By making some demonstration in the way of celebrating his victories a great deal of "joshing" has come, including absurd suggestions for a change in the name of the town to Gotchville, all of which it is unnecessary to say, is purely a joke.

MANY TEXAS PLAYERS REENFORCING TEAMS OF PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE

This is from the Fort Worth Star:

Pacific Coast league managers evidently think very favorably of Texas as a recruiting ground.

Last year they picked up a couple of Texas league players, and so far this season have bought four more Lone Star recruits. And the gratifying thing about it to Texas fans is that all of the transplanted players are doing well and upholding the honor of the state in glorious style.

Christian, the former Galveston twirler, is now slipping them over for Van Haltren's Oakland team. He has lost a couple of games, but has pitched good ball all the way, just the same.

Rose and Killifer, the crack Austin battery, have also been purchased, the former by Portland, the latter by San Francisco. Rose was undoubtedly the best left-hander in the league, though a mere boy, and there is hardly any question but that he will make good.

Killifer is the St. Edwards college boy who did such good work behind the bat that Washington thought seriously of signing him. Tannehill, their scout, looked him over and marked him for advancement, his weight at present being the only thing against him. A year or two of seasoning in the Pacific Coast league will fix him up for Washington.

Harry Sutor, a crack southpaw with Austin last year, even considered better than Bill Bailey by most good judges, is pitching winning ball for the San Francisco team. Recently he pitched and won a 20-inning battle.

Claude Berry, formerly receiver for Dallas, who had a try-out with the Athletics, is catching Sutor at San Francisco and hitting well. Everybody remembers Jesse Garrett, the Texas farmer boy, whose "rosin ball" won many a game for Dallas. He is now Portland's mainstay in the box.

Frank Truesdale of Houston has also gone to Oakland, though he has not yet played a game with the team. Truesdale has the respect of Fort Worth patrons of the game on account of his bunting skill and expert base running. He should make good.

It is whispered that there are half a dozen other Texas league boys slated for a trial with the California class A league at the close of the present season.

The latest man to be signed by a Coast league team—Oakland—is Shortstop Smith, the crack Galveston player. He is just out of college and helped Galveston in the box last year. As an accommodation he consented to play shortstop this season and made such a record that he was kept there. Scout O'Brien of Cleveland liked him immensely. He will report during the second week in September, probably. If Truesdale shows up at the same time as Smith, there is a probability that Van Haltren will use him on the pitching staff. He is batting .285.

FOREST GROVE COLTS COME FROM THE REAR

After holding a 1 to 0 lead for eight and one-half innings, the Union Meat company's team lost their hold on things at Forest Grove yesterday and allowed the Colts to tie the score after which a questionable decision in the tenth inning allowed the Forest Grove lads to win the game. The game was as pretty a pitcher's battle as one could wish to see and the large crowd which turned out was well paid for its trouble.

A hit by Fitchner, an overthrow and a hit by Alex McDonald in the third inning gave the Union Meat company team a lead and up to the last of the ninth it looked as though they would win with that score. In the ninth [illegible] weakened and Moore, the Colts' center fielder, hit for two bases. A sacrifice and a fielder's choice scored him.

The local boys think they were robbed of the game in the tenth when, after H. Schultz had been hit by a pitched ball, Umpire Cook not only made a bum decision but after making it, they say, coached the base runner.

Fleming was at bat and struck at one of Fitchner's fast ones and as the meat company players say, fouled it off. Cook, however, ruled differently and called it a passed ball. Schultz had stopped midway between first and second and was returning to first, thinking it was a foul, when Cook ran over to him and urged him to run, telling him it was a passed ball. Schultz took third on the play and Fleming scored him a moment later with a single. The score:

U. M. Co.	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—1

$50,000 DERBY AT READVILLE

Largest Trotting Purse Ever Offered Goes Tomorrow on Australian System.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Boston, Mass., Aug. 24.—The promise of the New England Breeders' association that the Grand circuit meeting at Readville this year should be an occasion that would make a brilliant page in turf history seems already certain of fulfillment. The meeting opened today under most favorable auspices and all that is needed to make it this banner meeting of the year is six days of sunshine.

The keystone of the meeting is the $50,000 American trotting derby, which is to be decided tomorrow. The purse is the largest ever offered for trotters and has drawn the cream of the country's racing material. It is predicted that the crowd that will turn out to see the great prize won and lost will be the largest that ever witnessed a turf event in New England.

The derby is to be decided on the handicap dash system which has made trotting so popular in Australia, but which has never had a fair trial in America. The event will be a dash of one mile and one-quarter for horses with records not faster than 2:15. Horses with lower marks will have to go a greater distance.

The conditions covering the race are as follows: Fifty thousand dollar handicap, dash race, open to all trotters, in which the slowest horse will go one mile and one-quarter and be allowed 50 feet start by faster horses for each second's difference in speed, but no horse will be handicapped slower than up to a mile in 2:15.

The first horse will get $30,000, second $10,000, third $5,000, fourth $2,500, fifth $1,500, sixth $1,000.

TOMMY BURNS WHIPS SQUIRES IN AUSTRALIA

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 24.—Tommy Burns, the American champion, tonight defeated Bill Squires, champion of Australia, in the thirteenth round. Squires made a good showing against the man who conquered him twice before, once in the United States and the second time in Europe. Burns gets $10,000 as his share for the fight and $2,500 for his expenses.

OAKLAND OPENS THIS WEEK WITH BEAVERS

Oakland and Portland are on their way to Portland to open the last series of games in the north, the teams arriving tomorrow morning for the game at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Oaks quit the south one game to the good of the Beavers but the home guard expects to take the series in the north. With the Vaughn street grounds crowd behind them the white-suited chaps ought to get in all to the good. It will be necessary to capture a large majority of the games in the north this series if the Beavers expect to get within hailing distance of Los Angeles by the time the game on the coast ends.

Now is the season for drafting from the minors. It opened last week and the fans will be in suspense just to see what youngsters are going up. Of course this does not apply to the Coast League, the drafting season of which opens next month owing to the length of the schedule. The Northwestern league expects to see the class A organizations make an inroad.

CALENDAR OF SPORT FOR THE WEEK

Monday—Tommy Burns vs. Bill Squires, at Sydney, Australia, for the heavyweight championship; opening of grand circuit trotting meeting at Readville, Mass.; opening of great western trotting circuiting meeting at Dubuque, Iowa; opening of northwest trotting circuit meeting at Bellingham, Wash.; opening of Missouri valley tennis championship tournament at Kansas City, Mo.; opening of Colorado state tennis championship tournament at Denver; Philadelphia cricketers vs. Durham county, at Durham, England.

Tuesday—Fifty thousand dollar trotting derby at Readville, Mass.; International dory race for Amsterdam Yacht club cup on the Zuyder Zee; Jim Flynn vs. Al Kaufman, 10 rounds, at Los Angeles, Cal.

Wednesday—Opening of international and Canadian tennis championships at Niagara-on-the-Lake; opening of annual horse show at Upperville, Vt.; opening of four-day race meeting of the Maryland Jockey club.

Thursday—Opening of 14th annual regatta at Astoria, Or.; open golf championship of the United States begins at the Myopia Hunt club, Hamilton, Mass.; Philadelphia cricketers vs. Kent, at Canterbury, England.

STRANGLER SMITH WRESTLES FOUR MEN

Strangler Smith, the champion middleweight wrestler of the coast, has signed a contract with the Oaks Amusement company for four wrestling matches this week, starting Thursday night. The bouts will be held in an arena built expressly for the purpose. Smith will wrestle any four wrestlers the management can produce. There will be three best falls out of five in each match. There is a $400 purse put up. If Smith wins all four matches he will get the entire purse, but if he loses one or more of them he will forfeit half of it.

PENDER STRIKES OUT 21 OF SHERIDAN TEAM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Sheridan, Or., Aug. 24.—Tillamook and Sheridan met for the fourth time this season yesterday on the Sheridan ball grounds and played the speediest game of the season. The score was 4 to 3 in favor of Sheridan, the game lasting 11 innings. The features of the game were the work of Pender and King of Tillamook, Pender striking out 21 men, passing but one man and allowing only three hits; and the work of Jones and Boydston, the battery for Sheridan; also a most phenomenal catch by Faulconer of Sheridan of Talbot's long drive to deep center in the eighth. The same teams will line up again tomorrow for honors on the ball ground.

PORTLAND RAILWAY, LIGHT & POWER COMPANY

BULLETIN NO. 11

INCANDESCENT LAMPS—THEIR USE AND ABUSE

"The value of electrical energy, as furnished to a consumer, is not proportional alone to the amount of energy as measured by an electric meter, but is dependent upon various other factors, including the efficiency with which the electrical energy can be transformed or translated into other useful forms. The consumer uses electrical energy for securing light, heat and mechanical power, and for the transformation into these more directly useful forms various translating devices are employed. The adequacy of the service is dependent in large measure upon the efficiency of these translating devices.

"For the production of illumination, translating devices include various forms of lamps, such as the carbon filiment incandescent lamps, the tantalum and tungsten incandescent lamps, Nernst lamps, mercury vapor lamps and the numerous types of arc lamps. For the production of mechanical power, motors of various kinds are employed, and for electrical heating, the translating devices comprise various forms of resistances.

"The amount of illumination which can be secured from a given amount of electrical energy consumed in the ordinary type of incandescent lamp depends upon the design of the lamp and the materials and processes used in its manufacture, upon the voltage at which it is designed to operate, the voltage at which current is supplied to it, its period of service, the cleanliness of the outer surface of the glass bulb, as well as upon various other factors.

"The ultimate life of an incandescent lamp may be expressed as the number of hours during which it will continue to give illumination, this period being unusually terminated by a burning away or rupture of the filament. It is recognized as exceedingly bad practice to allow lamps to remain on circuit until this point has been reached, since the deterioration in efficiency will have become such as to make it uneconomical of operation. It is better practice, and one more commonly prevailing, to express the life of a lamp as the number of hours at which it will operate at normal voltage before its efficiency falls to a value below 80 per cent of the efficiency of the lamp when new. This length of life, as commonly attained in the better grades of carbon filament lamps now manufactured, is in the neighborhood of 600 hours, and to allow a lamp to burn longer than that period usually results in what might be termed inadequate or uneconomical service due to excessive deterioration.

"One of the most common causes of poor service is due to the operation of incandescent lamps after they have depreciated below 80 per cent of their original efficiency.

"It is a fact not sufficiently recognized that the accumulation of dust, oil and dirt on the outer surface of an incandescent lamp will materially reduce its efficiency, and many instances exist where the illumination may be increased from 5 to 10 per cent by cleaning the globes.

"One of the most serious causes of inadequate service is insufficient size of the wires installed in buildings, causing a reduction of the voltage. This may result from poor design or false economy in the original installation, but in many instances is due to the growing demand for more current than the original installation of wiring was intended to provide for. Poor electric service may result from such inadequate wiring, even though the company may supply a satisfactory voltage to the inlet of the building. It appears to be universally true that the electric company is not directly responsible for such interior wiring."
