

COOS, CURRY, DOUGLAS, LANE VIE FOR PRIZES

Southern Second Oregon District Fair Is in Full Swing—Rich and Diversified Exhibits of Resources—Strong Race Program.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)
 Marshfield, Ore., Aug. 27.—This is a gala day for Marshfield, when four rich counties in the southwest show their products to the world, with a race meet that has attracted interest throughout the state, despite the difficulty of access. The fair will continue throughout the week.

It is a little too early for the display of fruit in this section, but the date had to be fixed some time to coincide with other fairs, where many of the fruit exhibitors desire to enter their products. Yet the display is creditable, despite the early season. In the products of the dairy the fair is unusually strong, as might be expected of a section famed for its butter and its cheese. The presence of State Food Commissioner Bailey and his deputy, Mrs. Sarah A. Younkum, is a deserved compliment to the effort that has been made. A display of dairy products worth the while of every one in Oregon.

The state gives $1,000 in premiums for the southern second Oregon district fair, composed of Coos, Curry, Douglas and Lane counties. The incentive of prize winning has brought the choicest products of farm, pasture and hillside. For the speed program each day there has been hung up prizes from $200 to $1,000, and practically all of the events have been filled.

Among the horses entered are King Kohr, runner, owned by W. W. Carter, well of Roseburg; Tuncaron, runner, stables of L. J. Simpson, North Bend; R. P. Dickinson's Counselor, runner, Willamette valley; Tillie, runner, Trotter from Eugene. One of the animals exhibited that is certain to attract much attention is a Belgian draft horse from the state of Ohio, owned by Peniston and Portland. This horse

COUNCIL DODGES BETTER RULES FOR SHIPPERS

Ordinance Providing for Extra Policemen Is Side-tracked.

Members of the city council finally woke up yesterday afternoon in regard to the north end question, and Councilman Kellner introduced an ordinance appropriating $4,000 to pay the salaries of 10 additional policemen. Mayor Lane told the councilmen, when asked point blank by Councilman Kellner, that he would close the houses if they passed the appropriation for 10 additional policemen. The councilmen wanted the mayor to come out and say whether he wanted the policemen or not, and he did. He said that he had his support in the councilmen he would close the houses.

There was much skillful fencing with words yesterday, and the attempt of the council to dodge all responsibility in the question was amusing to the spectators. Every motion the councilmen could think of was used to entrap the mayor in some seemingly knotty mesh, but he always came back with a little mesh of his own to throw over the heads of the councilmen.

Councilman Kellner stood on an elevated position at the north end of the city, and he was entirely sincere in his speech. He said that he wanted to assure Mayor Lane that he would have his support in the pending question, and that if the mayor wanted the policemen to say so, and that he would vote for it. Councilman Kellner was only one of 12 councilmen, but Mayor Lane did not dodge the issue with him and said that if the council passed the ordinance he would close the houses.

Instead of passing the ordinance the council adopted a resolution introduced by Bennett, in which the council assures the mayor that it stands ready at all times to aid him in the enforcement of the law and to furnish him all the assistance he may require.

Mayor Lane assured the councilmen that if they gave him the extra policemen that he would have every house in the city closed within 10 days. However, Mayor Lane as well as the councilmen doubted the wisdom of such a move. He said that the effect of such a move would be to scatter the houses to all parts of the city, which would require the efforts of one squad of policemen. He said that these men would have nothing else to do but to keep on the lookout for houses of this kind, which would eventually be found in every part of the city, including the residential districts.

It is expected that no action will be taken in the matter until the next meeting of the council.

Perishable Goods to Be Given More Attention by Express Companies.

After a conference between the members of the railroad commission, agents of the express companies and representatives of the Portland commission merchants held Monday it was agreed by the express companies to use more discretion in handling shipments of perishable goods which has been requested. The representatives of the express companies will cause at an early date their instructions to agents to be revised and brought sharply to the attention of agents to the effect that in all cases where produce would appear to stand reshipment to notify the shipping office before disposing of the goods.

At the request of the shippers the representatives of the express companies agreed to take up with the proper officers of their lines the matter of the modification of the present rules of the companies to the end that on shipments valued at $5 or over the shipper should be notified by telegraph before the express company disposed of the goods. This will apply more strictly to include commodities such as oranges, lemons and other fresh fruits.

The commission also requested the shippers to keep it advised as to the results of the conference and if further cause for complaint exists, upon being furnished with specific facts, the commission will cause complaint to be prepared and the matter set down for hearing. Those present at the conference were Mr. Dilley of Page & Son, W. B. Clarke, president of the Produce Merchants' Association, Mr. Mansfield of Bell & Co., H. Beckwith, general agent of Wells, Fargo & Co., and John E. Burch of the Pacific Express company.

FINISH NEAR AT HAND IN SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST

As it has been definitely decided to close the Oregon Journal's third annual scholarship contest Saturday, September 12, at 1 p. m., it behooves the students who are competing for scholarships to take advantage of the short space of time that remains. In future the scores will appear in the Journal on Wednesday and Saturdays until the close of the contest, and the contest manager would like to have all contestants make their reports twice each week in time for record on the days specified.

Owing to the large number of scholarships available it will be impossible to award them all, and the awards will be figured on the same basis as in former contests. In other words scholarships to the number of two thirds of the number of contestants in each district will be distributed. This is not only a fair but a very high percentage, 66.23 per cent of the actual number of students in each district. This means that one third of the contestants now competing will be out of the running when the final score shall have been completed, so that it is essential to get out and work tooth and nail until the last hour of the contest.

If those students who are now leading race on their cars on the presumption that they have a safe lead they will lose their positions easily. For instance, the seventh, eighth and ninth on the list in district No. 1 should surprise their competitors by polling a large enough

Old Man Leaps Into Sea.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
 Santa Cruz, Calif., Aug. 27.—The body of Peter Hall of East Santa Cruz was found on the beach yesterday afternoon near the old wave motor. He had committed suicide by leaping from the high cliff and his body was washed up by the tide. A note was found with his coat and hat. It explained merely that his "burden was too great to bear." He was 60 years old and survived by his widow and two children.

BISHOP SCADDING BACK FROM GREAT LAMBETH CONFERENCE

The Right Rev. Charles Scadding, bishop of Oregon, and Mrs. Scadding, returned to their home in Portland yesterday. The bishop went to England to attend the Pan-Anglican congress in June, and the Lambeth conference in July of bishops of the Anglican communion from all parts of the world. The Lambeth conference met for the 10 years at Lambeth palace, the London residence of the archbishop of Canterbury. This year 143 bishops were present, of whom 60 were American bishops of the Episcopal church. Bishop Scadding said:

"I am very glad to be home again, and have had a very pleasant trip, and the privilege of attending inspiring and instructive conferences which took into consideration various questions affecting the welfare of God's people and the work of the Church of Christ in diverse parts of the world. The debates on all questions were far-reaching, and the bishops realized that the links which bind the Episcopal church to the historic past are not fetters upon the free and enterprising spirit which is essential to progress. The sectarian spirit was distinctly absent, and the predominant thought in the minds of the bishops was of the church as ordained of God for the service of mankind."

The subjects under discussion were: "The Revival of Christianity in the Organization in the Anglican Communion," "The Moral Witness of the Church to the Problems of the Day," "Ministry of Healing," "Religious Education," "Supply and Training of the Clergy," "Foreign Missions," "The Faith and Modern Thought," "Marriage Problems," etc. On all these subjects, after full and lengthy debate, resolutions were passed which will be printed and published in due time, and will be well worth reading by every thoughtful person.

The sessions of the conference were held daily from 10 a. m. till 5 p. m., with an hour of luncheon, provided by the archbishop and served daily in the palace dining-hall.

Bishop Scadding spoke highly of the hospitality and cordiality which all the American delegates by the English people from the king and prince of Wales to the highest nobles in the realm. He met many people who had relatives in Oregon and all were interested in knowing their progress.

The bishop preached many times in England, and on the steamer, and on his return here last night was in turn surprised by the warm and hearty reception which he met in his own home.

Three young ladies, graduates of Harvard University, and the Cambridge Divinity school have offered themselves for service in Oregon and will come early in September.
