QUIET TONE IN POTATO MARKET

Trade Is Slow, With Alaska Demand About Over—No Business With South.

Wholesale market features:
Potato market very quiet.
Sweet potatoes are lower.
Eggs holding steadier.
Poultry down another notch.
Salmon coming from the sound.
Canned salmon holding firm.
Tomato market is lower.
Local grapes drug market.
Heavy veal depresses price.
Dressed hogs quoted firmer.

Potato Market Very Quiet.

Practically all Alaska business in the local potato market is over for the 1908 season. After the first of the month, when the steamer sails for the north there will scarcely be any call at all for it is not likely that any later steamer will be able to get into the northern waters before the freeze-up. This means that dealers have practically quit their purchases for Alaska account—although a few small sales for that direction may still be made.

With the absence of the northern call there is practically nothing doing in the potato market at the moment. Local requirements have already been filled, the heavy arrivals of half-matured stock choking the channels of trade. There is no southern demand at the moment but despite this there is no pressure of note in the market and outside of the withdrawals of the premium for Alaska stock the market is unchanged.

Sweet potatoes are in very heavy receipt at the moment and some dealers have cut the price to $2.50@2.75.

Thus far receipts of local onions have generally been of very small size and in consequence demand has not been very heavy.

Salmon Market Is Firmer.

There is an increasing demand for Columbia river canned salmon of every quality and prices are being fully maintained with more orders now coming than can be confirmed.

The extent of the demand for Alaska salmon shows to some extent the improvement in the better grade of fish. The New York Commercial says of the situation:

"A continued good interest locally is noted in Alaska red salmon on the basis of opening quotations of $1.15 per dozen f. o. b. coast, while outside packers accepting business at 2½c per dozen less on good brands and $1.10 per dozen on little known brands. These concessions are said to be more or less general, and in some cases are in the shape of brokers' commissions. The large buyers are said to have booked orders quite freely at the $1.15 per dozen basis on Alaska red tails, though many reports are current that the preferred buyers secured material concessions from the opening figures. A good deal of business has been put through in medium red and cohoes on the basis of $1.00 f. o. b. coast."

Big Demand for Reds.

New York Journal of Commerce says: "Attention is still monopolized by the salmon proposition. Orders for the 1908 pack of Alaska reds are coming in freely from all parts of the country, and it is freely predicted that at the present rate of sales the entire pack will be sold within the next day or two. In spite of the comparatively low prices made for this season's output and the heavy demand, there is a good deal of talk of concessions made to the large jobbers. In some selling quarters it is admitted that special discounts have been made to the heavy buyers, but it is asserted that in all cases these concessions were of a confidential character, and that the cut has been by no means general. Agents of other packing interests deny that they have made or that there has been occasion for them to make any departure from the opening price of $1.15 f. o. b. coast on the Alaska reds grade. However, it seems to be well established that one of the packers, who is a prominent though not one of the largest factors in the business, has made, through a widely distributed circular, a flat price of $1.12½ f. o. b. coast on his brands."

Heavy Veal Depresses Market.

Of late the arrivals of heavy sizes of dressed veal have been very liberal and the result is that the trade is overstocked. Select sizes, however, are still finding a good demand at printed prices.

Market for dressed hogs is firm along the street with fancy stock weighing from 140 to 150 pounds selling at 8@8½c a pound.

Chicken market is weak and lower with sales of hens around 13c during the past 24 hours. Springs sold at 15c generally.

Egg market is steadier with most sales of select at 26c. Some withdrawals from local storage are reported with offerings around 24@25c.

Brief Notes of the Trade.

Fresh salmon is now being received from Aberdeen. Same price.

Celery arrivals are slightly better but the market is holding good around 65@75c a dozen.

Local grapes are in an oversupply and varieties are not finding much call over 75c. Best outside stock ranging from $1.00 to $1.50 a crate although the market is slightly easier.

Tomato market is lower because of heavier arrivals and fancy stock is reported sold from 30c to 40c a box. Cheaper stock at any old figure.

With the heaviest arrivals of wheat in the history of local shipping, the wheat market is again very active and prices are already showing the effects of an improved demand.

Most of the sales for foreign account are for bluestem and this is having a very stimulating effect upon values in that line. The lead in price is therefore increased another cent a bushel, making the differential between club and bluestem 5c instead of 4c yesterday and compared with the usual differential of 2c a bushel.

Many more inquiries are being received for wheat from the Mediterranean, most of them being for bluestem but the trade believes that the orders will soon call for club if bluestem is not obtainable.

The cash oats market continues very stiff with producers unwilling to let go even at present prices. At country points the trade has been paying on a basis of $28 Portland for the past week for No. 1 white.

On the board of trade today there was an advance of ½c in December wheat, but September was unchanged at 89c.

Oats market was quiet with a fractional advance in December and the same prices for September.

No change appeared in barley futures on the board today and the following official prices of the transactions are shown:

SMASH RECORDS EVERY SESSION

Southern Pacific Again to the Front—Prices Are Being Boosted Fast.

New York, Aug. 30.—Southern Pacific broke another record today, advancing to 106 and closing at the highest point yet reached by that issue. Union Pacific was also bullish. There was a rumor regarding the merging of the Rock Island and the Southern Pacific systems.

Strength was the predominent feature in the market today, but considerable profit taking caused recessions from high level and the close was firm. Buying of the character conspicuous during the last few sessions was again in evidence, but public participation has not shown a material increase. It seems apparent that the interests behind the present movement are working for higher prices, but in this connection they are doing so against the fundamental principles of a healthy upward movement. Public interest is always essential to a broad market, but the fact that stocks are being marked up on limited buying hardly speaks well for the stability of prices, particularly in view of existing conditions. As the election approaches political news is likely to cause an acute situation and business interests generally will hardly be disposed to increase their commitments until the outlook is more assuring. The steel trade is considered the barometer of general trade conditions, displaying a steady tendency, but signs of further improvement are not pronounced, which should tend to make further bullish activity in the stock market look rather inconsistent.

BLOODY MURDER BY BLACK HAND

Assassin Opens Door of Chicago Shop, Shoots Proprietor, Flees.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The Black Hand claimed another victim in Chicago today when Michael Dispinunto, a wealthy Italian, was shot and killed in his barber shop.

Dispinunto was standing in his shop when a stranger opened the door, and without a word shot him. The assassination was so swift and unexpected that the murderer had no trouble in making his escape.

There is much uneasiness among well-to-do Italians, as it is reported several recently have received communications from the Black Hand.

WEATHER REPORT

The western trough of low pressure now extends from Manitoba south through the Dakotas, and thence southward to Arizona. There is a small secondary low pressure area over Utah, which as yet has caused no rain. A high pressure area has moved from the north California coast northward, and its crest this morning is evidently at sea off the mouth of the Columbia river. The Atlantic high pressure area has remained nearly stationary and decreased slightly in intensity. Good rains have fallen in Oregon, Washington, northern Idaho, British Columbia and Alberta, and light rains have fallen at scattered places in Montana and the Dakotas. With the exception of local rains in Iowa, northern Illinois and northern Indiana, fair weather prevails nearly everywhere in the eastern states. It is cooler in southwestern Montana and southeastern Idaho, and the temperatures on the Pacific slope are generally below normal. It is also cooler than usual in the Atlantic states.

The indications are for fair and warmer weather in this district Sunday.
