Summer Visitors at the Seashore.

SEASIDE, Or., Aug. 28.—The crowd in August is here and indications point to a late season. The resort is in the full tide of the summer season now, and people are still coming in on every train. The Astoria & Columbia River railway will continue to run the excursion trains on into September. The fine weather is keeping many who were going to the beach for a few days only, so it is a longer time. Fishing on the upper Nehalem is especially good just now. During the week the demand for saddle horses has been greater than usual and a number of parties have gone on horseback to the various points of interest along the beach.

In Social Circles.

A pretty boating party was given on the Necanicum Thursday night by Lillian and Pearl Elwell. The boats were fastened together and pulled through the water by a launch. They were illuminated with Japanese lanterns and looked like a small fleet. After an evening on the river a supper was served by a large bonfire.

Friday evening at the Crow's Nest cottage Miss Leah Cohen entertained a number of young friends at a card party. The favors of the evening were in the shape of small horns and pipes. Margaret Polish, Florence Jennings, Violet Jennings, Belle Jennings, Laura Wilson, Lillian Parcel, Vivian Greenwood and Mrs. J. J. Jennings were guests.

Gilbert Hunt of Walla Walla gave a small dinner party during the week at Sargent's Seaside house. Planked shad was the feature of the meal. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Watson, Miss Hunt, Miss Cornwell, Mrs. Toner and Gilbert Hunt.

AT NORTH BEACH AND VICINITY

NORTH BEACH, Wash., Aug. 29.—This was eastern Oregon's week at the beach. Over 1,000 excursionists from the inland empire thronged the resorts of North Beach Saturday, Sunday and Monday were the visitors' days and the climax of the Washington beach season. Baker City, Pendleton and La Grande were represented by large delegations and the names of Elgin, Enterprise and Sumpter appear many times on the hotel registers. Saturday the O. R. & N. steamer T. J. Potter was loaded to her limit and the steamer Harvest Queen made a special trip to Megler to carry the remainder of the party. The excursionists were scattered over the beach from Seaview to Ocean Park and there was not a hotel or rooming house which was not taxed to its limit to accommodate the crowd. The eastern excursionists enjoyed their stay at the seashore and have made friends on the beach wherever they went. For the first time many of them enjoyed a dip in the surf and meals of fresh shellfish. Most of the excursionists returned Monday. While a general exodus of the summer visitors at this resort has begun and many of the hotels consider the season practically over as far as crowds are concerned some of the cottages will remain open till the middle of September and a number of the hotels have guests who will stay late into the fall.
