

CHICAGO ALARMED OVER CAR ACCIDENTS

May Require Traction Companies to Report All Accidents to Authorities—Nearly Forty Cases of Injury Per Day Is the Average.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The deaths and injuries caused by the streetcars of Chicago have become so frequent, although reports of many have been suppressed, that a law similar to New York, which requires the traction companies to report all accidents, may be sought at the next meeting of the Illinois legislature. The record of known casualties last year was about 3,100, for 1906 it was 2,141 and for 1905, 2,491. The streetcars easily lead all other causes of violent deaths and injuries for last year the steam railways caused less than 1,000 and teams and vehicles including automobiles—1,495. The figures obtained by the police are exceedingly incomplete, for no one can tell how many more than 3,100 casualties were chargeable to the streetcars last year. According to the city's traction expert the reports received cover less than a quarter of the real total and that in the words of a chauffeur, "is going some."

"The number of accidents reported is ridiculously small," he said. "My experience in the operating departments has taught me that 40 is an unusual number of accidents in a day for a single company, and I have received only nine reports from the entire city." The mortality record of Chicago, 14,138 deaths per annum for 1906, is so much lower than that of other large cities that it heats the list. If the records are right, one great reason for this case of robust health is the drainage canal which to a great extent takes care of the sewage problem. The mortality record of New York is 18,532 per 1,000 of Cincinnati 20.84 and New Orleans 21.71, although the new sewer system of New Orleans will soon change the record.

The harvest trust has cost the United States heavily in loss of exports of farm implements to foreign countries, at least to Argentina in South America, according to reports from the United States consular general at Buenos Ayres. Notwithstanding that the big Argentine crops of 1907 have put that country into a pleasant, buying mood, and increased the requirements for investing machinery, the records show that of shipments from the United States of agricultural implements, there has been this year a decrease. There seems to be a loss of selling energy in a corporation so big as the International Harvester Co. as is well illustrated in this case. In almost all other lines of trade there has been an increase of the exports from the United States to Argentina. However, the business interests of the United States are comparatively letting Europe run away with the Argentine trade. The total imports of Argentina from various countries tells the tale. For the first quarter of 1908 the imports reached a total of $70,249,220, as against $54,660,885, the exports being in like proportion. The shares of various countries in this business were as follows:

Country	Imports	Exports
United States	$16,221,212	$18,699,091
United Kingdom	25,370,091	5,873,621
Germany	11,698,787	3,293,224
Belgium	14,854,884	1,013,413
France	6,517,812	1,147,242
Italy	6,452,543	2,747,934

A few days now and the "red special," equipped and manned from the national headquarters of the Socialist party here, will set forth on the grand $25,000 circuit of the west, distributing red ink literature for Debs and flouting red hunting. And yet those who are quarters for the red special Liverpool, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines, St. Paul, St. Louis, St. Petersburg, San Francisco, Sacramento, Glendale, Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Tacoma, Vancouver, Minneapolis, Duluth, Hancock, Manitowish and Racine. Later, if more money and literature are needed, they are ready, the procession will move south on South Bend, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Baltimore, Syracuse, New York City, Boston, Concord, N. H., Providence, Hartford, Bridgeport, Philadelphia, Newark, Jersey City, Brooklyn, Reading, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Columbus, Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville, and St. Louis. The kernel of the grand circuit will be a book by Joseph Medill Patterson, the millionaire Socialist upholder of this town. On the first trip Debs is scheduled to raise his voice 65 times in 60 nights and 200 times during days. "Comrade" Simon, however, is to be on hand with the Debs megaphone. He will tell what Mr. Debs is hoarse and tired. Anyway, he is in a picturesque and interesting literature, a day coach for Debs and state friends and sympathizers, and a combination lifeboat, alarm and observation car for the capitalists.

There is a familiar ring in announcements from London that officials of the Franco-British exposition, which has created quite a European stir, are negotiating to get the buildings and equipment when the gates finally close to a Chicago man, Abraham Harris, for he bought the $20,000,000 world's fair at Chicago, the $10,000,000 exposition at Omaha, the $12,000,000 exposition at Buffalo and the $20,000,000 world's fair at St. Louis. While the bands played and the crowds thronged the buildings at Shepherd's Bush, Mr. Harris' keen Yankee eyes have been surveying the buildings and paraphernalia of the show with cold calculation to determine how much they would be worth in lumber. From the St. Louis exposition he shipped 500 carloads of machinery, merchandise and other goods worth $1,000,000 and 45,000,000 feet of lumber to his yards in Chicago, where he has the largest building yards in the world. His concern, the Chicago House Wrecking Company, has accumulated in deals like this nearly every item of commerce known to man from locomotives and from oriental rugs to dynamite. In recent years, Mr. Harris has sold to others the enormous deal of disposing again of the things bought, and has completed a tour around the world, his specialty being the sale of stupendous size, such as the buying of an exposition entire—a line which few men have attempted to follow. Along toward the close of the exposition anywhere on the globe Mr. Harris is sure to turn up and startle the officials by offering to take all that remains of the show for a lump sum.

Academy comes Halley's comet, last seen in these parts 75 years ago by the pioneers of Chicago, and all is expectancy up at the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., for the astronomers are now foregathered to take the comet's picture for the first time in its career, which dates from 12 B. C. Since its discovery then this old comet has scored human beings more than any other heavenly body, comparing each 75 years. It was flaring in the skies when William the Conqueror invaded England in 1066, and some historians say that it did as much to tame the Anglo-Saxons as did the arms of the Normans. For it had been quivering with superstitious fear. Again in 1456 the Catholic church bells were not ringing at midday to help folks keep their courage up, because Halley's comet was being flung westward, and they were rung at noon over seas. Thanks to old Neptune, which is said to have swayed the comet through space and set it swinging in an orbit of a billion miles around the sun, it was in no hurry at all to the earth, for it has caught step with the sweep of the planets and is quite settled in its habits. It is a ball of metal, 120 miles in diameter, now is heading to come out of its sunken chell, for as the comet approaches, the sun's heat drives out metallic vapors of iron and magnesium, the heat increases and the

SEVEN ROSES IN ONE BUNCH CHEER EDITOR

A city editor of a newspaper gets so many lemons and "pinks" and complains and that sort of thing that naturally he is surprised when any one brings him anything else.

A young woman appeared in the Journal office yesterday with a bouquet—a whole armful of roses. She said she was looking for the city editor.

There were seven great big pink La France roses in the bunch—seven on one stem.

The roses were grown in the yard of H. L. Powell, at Forty-seventh and Taylor streets, Mount Tabor. This is the third crop of the season. The seven roses, each of which is fully developed and perfect in every way, were at the end of one of this year's stems.

Lincoln on Mob Rule. Abraham Lincoln, in a speech in his home town of Springfield before the civil war, gave warning against mob rule in these words: "I do not hope I am not overwary but if I am not there is even now something of ill omen amongst us. I mean the increasing disregard for law which prevails in the country—the growing disposition to substitute the wild and furious passions in lieu of the sober judgments of courts, and the worse than savage mobs for the executive ministers of justice. This disposition is awfully fearful in any community, and that it now exists in ours, though grating to our feelings to admit it would be a violation of truth and an insult to our intelligence to deny."

Accounts of outrages committed by mobs form the chief news of the times. They have pervaded the country from New England to Louisiana; they are not creatures of climate, neither are they confined to the slaveholding or the non-slaveholding states. Alike they spring up among the pleasure-seeking masters of southern slaves and the suffering citizens of the land of steady habits.
