

BAILEY'S SKIRTS CLEARED OF STANDARD OIL GREASE

F. Charles Hume, Texas' Wittiest Attorney, Tells How Lone Star Senator Wiggled Out of the Corruption Charges Before Legislative Committee.

Hon. F. Charles Hume Jr., famous the country over, as one of the wittiest speakers of the American Bar association stopped in Portland today on his way to his home in Houston, Texas, from which city he was brought by the association to make an address before its annual national convention which has just been held in Seattle. Mr. Hume was entertained while here by a luncheon at the Arlington club given by Frederick V. Holman, Democratic national committeeman from Oregon.

Mr. Hume was the leader of the Bailey forces in the last Texas legislature which exonerated the Lone Star senator from the charges of graft brought by his political enemies.

Pulled Out of Fight.
Mr. Hume is a warm personal friend of Bailey whom he regards as one of the ablest and most honest statesmen of the day. He says that the charges most people outside of Texas have been poisoned against Bailey by the colored reports sent out to the press, but cites to show that the charges are untrue the fact that with 85 per cent of the newspapers in Texas party leaders of the old-time against him and fighting the old-time party leaders of the state the young senator won a decisive victory in the last election and after his exoneration conclusively proved that he is the most popular man in Texas by being elected as a delegate to the Democratic national convention. Senator Bailey is a Mississippian by birth, and for that reason he is opposed by some of the former bosses of the party. When the attempt was made to blacken his character through the medium of a trumped-up investigation insisted that should the investigation be made that it be complete and searching, and that the senator should be either cleanly exonerated or declared guilty.

Wine in Election.
"The men who were instrumental in bringing about the inquiry did not want this. They wanted merely to call Mr. Bailey on the stand and answer some questions that might have put him in a bad light with his constituents. That he is entirely innocent of the charges brought against him must have been accepted by the people of the state or he would not have been sent to the national convention by them. Bailey was dared to run for delegate by his enemies, and while he did not want the honor, he was forced to show that he could get it when the opposition made the fighting an issue."

Mr. Hume was one of the committee which made the Bailey investigation, and it was due to his vigilance that the testimony of a perjured witness was thrown out and the senator's reputation cleared.
The speech made by Mr. Hume at Seattle before the American Bar association was the only one to be printed in a publishing house. It was called "The Attorney and His Client" and is an apt example of the subtle wit of the clever Texan.
Mr. Hume said he had been invited by the national Democratic committee to make a tour of the doubtful states in the interest of Bryan. Asked as to what he thought of the chances for a Democratic president, he said:
Favorable for Bryan.
"No man can predict the result of the coming election, but of one thing you can be sure, and that is that neither candidate will have a walkover, as in some of the past campaigns.
"I think there has been a great change of sentiment in Indiana and Illinois and the chances for a Bryan majority in those states this year are, in my opinion, quite favorable.
"Of course, the south will be sold again for the Nebraskan. This talk of Kentucky and Maryland being in the doubtful column sounds funny to a southerner. The attitude of the south on the negro question must change before a Republican nominee can gain a majority down there—and that will never be."
Wild and Woolly West.
"How do I like the northwest? Well, I must say that I have had to reconstruct my view as to who live in the east and south must do upon visiting this part of the country. It is a peculiar thing, the idea people have of Oregon and the other states of the far northwest. Why, we used to think it was a land full of wild Indians and rough, uneducated white men. Every one in our imagination either wore an Indian blanket or a pair of buckskin breeches. In the far east they still think Texas is full of that sort of thing.
"Portland impresses me with a sense of solidity. In common with Seattle, it has the aspect of progress, but the rough, uneducated white men you see in a place of great momentum and bustle. It appears to be young and to lack stability. I like Portland better than any other city I have visited in the far northwest."

FOUND DEER WADING IN SURF, LEAD IT INTO CAPTIVITY BY ITS EAR

Detective Glenn Howell, who has returned to duty after a vacation spent on his father's ranch south of Astoria, tells a story of hunting deer in the surf of the Pacific coast. He says that when near Seal Rock, below Newport, on his way back to Portland, Sunday, Howell was astonished to see a young fawn on the edge of the breakers. The little animal moved slowly and appeared to be exhausted, so he waded into the water, caught it by the ear and led it ashore. The fawn had been chased by hounds, had dashed into the surf to escape, where the cold water had thoroughly chilled it. It was so stiff it could scarcely walk. As he was unable to bring it to Portland he presented the fawn to the first man he met.

SEWALK TIME PIECE TO REMAIN

City Auditor Barbur has written a communication to the council notifying the members of the action of the city executive board in assessing the valuation for the franchise of the G. Heitkemper company to maintain a clock on Morrison street. The executive board arrived at the conclusion that it would be worth just $6 a year to the city to allow the jewelers to keep time for the public.
The Heitkemper franchise is one of the acts of frank legislation which the council has indulged in to overcome the barring of special permits. Councilman Baker introduced an ordinance giving the jewelers a permit to maintain the clock in front of their place of business.
Mayor Lane vetoed the ordinance and Baker then introduced the franchise ordinance. The council passed it and it was referred to the executive board for valuation. The street committee of the board fixed the valuation at $5 a year and the ordinance will now be passed by the council and duly advertised. All the regular proceedings that are required for a franchise for a line of railway will have to be followed in the case of the clock franchise and it will be several months before the measure finally becomes a law.

HUNT FOR REDSKINS FIND BLUE COAT

Two boys started out to hunt Indians or pirates yesterday, but instead of finding a redskin, deked in his war paint it was a policeman in his coat of blue that they ran up against. Their expedition was nipped in the bud.
Patrolman Henson was somewhat surprised to meet Earl Johannessen, 307 Morris, aged 12, and John Schnell, 641 Rodney avenue, aged 13, at East Twentieth and Fremont yesterday afternoon. They were taking turns carrying a rifle of man size, and they were also carrying 100 rounds of ammunition for the weapon.
After reading the boys a lecture regarding the use of the firearms in the city limits the officer started them to their homes, and the Indians and the pirates of the Spanish Main were not disturbed yesterday.

WILL FISH IN FALL

Astoria, Or., Sept. 3.—The fall fishing season will open at noon on September 10 and as near as can be learned the canneries which will operate will be the Meigler at Brookfield, the Columbia River Packers' association at Eureka and the Cooperative plant in this city. The latter it is understood will accept fish for salting and pickling only. There is also some talk of the Altoona Packing company's cannery at Altoona and the Warren plant at Cathlamet packing during the fall, but this is not certain. As the recently enacted fishing laws will be in effect by that time a controversy between the officials of the two states over their enforcement is anticipated.

DATE FOR YOUNG REID'S TRIAL SET

Jury of Six in Juvenile Court Will Settle Question of Delinquency.

Jackson Reid, the 12-year-old slayer of George F. De Mars, will be tried in the juvenile court on September 14 to determine the question of his delinquency. This date was fixed by Judge Gantenbein this morning.

The case will be heard by a jury of six members, being the second case to be tried by the juvenile court. The jury will not pass on the guilt or innocence of the boy slayer in killing De Mars, his duty being confined to the question as to whether he is a delinquent child.

If the jury holds him delinquent, Judge Gantenbein may then send the boy to the reform school or hold him for trial for murder in the circuit court, if found guilty of murder he would be confined in the penitentiary because of his age, and the reform school seems the most likely outcome if he is found culpable.

This afternoon Judge Gantenbein, accompanied by W. F. Freeland, deputy district attorney, and H. M. Ester, one of the attorneys for the defendant, went to the shooting lake to inspect the scene of the shooting and to determine by agreement of the attorneys in order that the court may have first hand knowledge of the distance from the Reid home to the water's edge.

5 MONTHS IN JAIL WITHOUT HEARING

Otto Tanberg was lodged in the county jail on April 10. For nearly five months he has been there without even being called on to plead, although an information was filed against him by District Attorney Manning before that official retired from office. Apparently he was lost in the shuffle incident to the change of administration in the district attorney's office.

Early in the game, it appears, Tanberg employed an attorney, and for this reason the sheriff and the jailer did not give particular attention to him, assuming that his interests were being looked after. Not being acquainted with court procedure, Tanberg did not call for his attorney or prod him until a few days ago, when he began to wonder why he was so long neglected. So he sent out a letter, he was discovered and this morning he was given an opportunity to plead.

Pleading not guilty, his trial was set for September 14. This early date was a matter of luck for him, for another case was dropped and his trial was postponed. He is charged with a battery offense, the complaining witness being Selma Schwartz, 15 years of age.

KEEP CORN WELL HID

Attorney for Louise Powell-Stevens Files New Package of Garnishments to Recover Money From the Wealthy Exporter.

Further effort to locate property owned by T. M. Stevens, who is claimed as husband by Louise Powell-Stevens, is being made by her attorney, A. E. Clark, who has filed a new batch of garnishments under which Stevens himself, W. H. Stevens, his brother, and Lillian Monk Stevens, his wife, are required to make return of property held by them that belongs to the exporter.

Another development in the case today was the payment by Attorney Clark of a jury fee in the suit brought by Louise Powell-Stevens to enforce the payment to her of $500 per month under the contract signed when they separated about one year ago. This makes it certain that the jury of Minnometon citizens will be called on to pass on the validity of this contract and to hear the sensational testimony that promises to be brought when the case is called.

The three garnishments on Stevens, his wife and his brother were served by Deputy Sheriff Bird this morning, and still another remains to be served. No returns have yet been made. Here-tofore the garnishments were issued on the Portland Rice Milling company, the T. M. Stevens company and the First National bank, but only a few hundred dollars were located at that time.
