TRIED TO FORCE IT

Thought System Would Soon Tolerate Coffee.

A Boston lady tried to convince herself that she could get used to coffee, she finally found it was the stronger. She writes:
"When a child, being delicate and nervous, was not allowed coffee. But since reaching womanhood I began its use, and as the habit grew on me, I frequently endeavored to break myself of it because of its evident bad effects."

"With me the most noticeable effect of drinking coffee was palpitation of the heart. This was at times truly alarming, and my face would flush uncomfortably and maintain its vivid hue for some time."
"I argued that my system would soon accustom itself to coffee, and continued to use it, although I had a suspicion that it was affecting my eye-sight, also. The kidneys early showed effects of coffee, as I found by leaving it off for a few days, when the trouble disappeared. Finally a friend called my attention to Postum. At first I did not like it, but when made right—boiled 15 minutes until dark and rich—I soon found Postum was just what I wanted. No flushing of the face, no palpitation, no discomfort or inconvenience after drinking it."

"Of course all this was not felt in a week or two weeks, but within that time I can truthfully say a marked difference had taken place and a great deal of my nervousness had vanished. At the present time my health is excellent, due to a continued use of Postum, with a general observance of proper hygiene. Of nothing else I more conscientiously than that I had continued drinking coffee, I should be today little less than a nervous wreck, and possibly blind."
"There's a Reason."

COUNCIL BARS PIPES OF NEWSPAPER MEN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 1.—Walla Walla newspaper reporters are up in arms as the result of an edict of the council forbidding them to smoke during council meetings. At the meeting Tuesday night two of the boys who were finding solace in their pipes during the tedium of a long routine council meeting, were told not to smoke—that that rule had been made by the council. On the opposite side of the table at which they sat, four of the five councilmen who were present smoked during the evening, and three were smoking when the order to stop smoking was given. It has always been the custom for everyone to smoke and the edict discriminates against the pencil pushers who are against them to action. They will ask that everyone stop or that they be given permission to resume the puffing of the fragrant weed.
