ATTELL-MORAN BATTLE IS DRAW

Both Men Show Great Cleverness—Little Fighters Are Dissatisfied.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Unhesitatingly Referee Jack Welch declared the 25-round battle between Abe Attell, America's champion featherweight, and Owen Moran, the British title holder, a draw after its termination at Colma arena yesterday. Six thousand spectators saw the mill, which, while not characterized by heavy fighting, had enough of cleverness about it to prove unusually exciting.

Both men were dissatisfied with the decision.

Abe said:

"I consider that I outfought Moran. I came out of the fight unmarked, which is more than the other fellow can say." Abe went about the ring asking newspapermen if they didn't think he won by a mile.

On the other hand Moran was the sorest little fighter that ever entered a ring. He says:

"I was on the aggressive from start to finish and landed more clean blows on Abe than he landed on me. His punches did not even stun me and I could have fought 40 more rounds. If Attell will fight me in a 25-round bout, I will fight him on a "winner" take all basis. I would have put him away before the limit had I not hurt my right hand in the second round."

Round One.

They shake and spar in mid-ring. Both fight for body in clinch. Attell landed hard right on Owen's eye and Owen returned in kind. Attell put right to body, Moran left to face. Abe landed clean left swing to head. They clinched. Moran missed left swing and they fought for the body in clinch. Owen caught Attell left on nose. Moran missed wild left swing. They clinched and fought hard for body with honors even. They were sparring at the bell. Honors even.

Round Two.

Abe missed left jab. Moran landed right on body but missed hard left swing. Abe put two hard lefts to body. In a clinch Moran landed hard left-handed body punch. They fought viciously in a prolonged clinch. Moran cleverly avoided Abe's two right hooks. Attell went to his knees after a clinch and Moran was cheered for not taking advantage of Abe's awkward position. Moran landed two hard rights to jaw and repeated a moment later. Moran landed hard straight left but missed wild left swing. Moran had a shade.

Round Three.

They exchanged light lefts to face and clinched. Moran again missed hard left swing. Abe roughed it with Owen in clinch, jolting him with stiff right uppercuts. Moran poked Abe with two stiff lefts to face. Both landed light lefts to face. In clinch Moran caught Abe hard right hand smash on jaw. Moran landed left and right and ducked Abe's hard right swing. They were fighting like demons at the gong. Again Moran had a shade.

Round Four.

Abe poked Owen with light left. They sparred into a clinch, Attell putting left to body and they clinched again. Moran landed light left back-handed punch. Attell bored in close and landed light rights on face. Abe missed two straight left leads. Abe put straight left to face. They fought with both hands in a clinch. They were sparring in the open at the gong.

Round Five.

They clinched, Moran landing hard right on Abe. Moran stung Abe with straight left. Abe landed stiff left to face. Moran did same. Abe got there with two straight lefts. They clinched. Abe missed vicious left. Attell blocked Moran's two left swings. Moran puts right left to face and light right to body. They were clinched at the gong. Attell's round.

Round Six.

They clinched and then fought in the open and re-clinched. Both landed stiff lefts and they fought like mad in this round. The crowd cheered Moran at end. He had shade.

Round Seven.

Abe hit Owen hard left to eye, opening a gash. Moran caught Abe hard right on body. They clinched. Both missed left swings. In a clinch Abe tried to give Owen the elbow while Owen tried to butt. Moran put light left to face, but missed two wild left swings. Owen put stiff left to nose. They clinched, missing lefts. Moran's eye was rather badly opened. Attell's round.

Round Eight.

They clinched. Abe missed hard right swing. Owen did same. They clinched and exchanged lefts. Each smothered the other's left hook. Moran landed light left swing, Owen crossed Abe with hard right and jolted Abe with right and left coming out of clinch. Abe landed stiff right uppercut. Abe landed stiff right and left to face. Abe blocked Moran's two left swings. Both missed hard left swings. Even round.

Round Nine.

Abe missed right and left. Owen landed stiff straight left. Owen put hard left to body. Abe put hard right to body, taking two lights to face in exchange. They clinched. Moran's eye is again bleeding badly. Abe landed light left coming out of clinch. They clinched and fought for the body. Attell caught Moran jarring right and left. They fought long after the gong. Referee Welch had to separate them. Attell's round.

Round Ten.

Moran landed wicked right swing to jaw.

Round Eleven.

Both missed left-hand swings and they clinch. Moran hooked Abe a light left on jaw. Moran caught Abe terrific right-hand swing on jaw. Abe came right back, however, and missed a hard right swing and took another left on jaw. They clinched and exchanged lefts. Abe sent left to body and they clinched again. Owen put hard right to head. They mixed it in a furious rally just as the bell sounded, and both were loath to quit. Attell had a bit the best of the mixing.

Round Twelve.

Abe made a vicious face, and Owen clinched with him. Abe put light left to face. Moran puts stiff left to jaw. Abe put light left to jaw and tried right uppercut, but missed. Owen put two lefts to nose, but missed wild left swing. Abe landed stiff right and left to jaw. Owen shoved Abe back with hard left. Owen missed with right and left. Moran's round.

Round Thirteen.

Moran put hard right to kidneys and two hard lefts to body in clinch. Abe put two straight lefts to face. Abe put light left to body. Owen coming back with hard rights and lefts to same place. Owen jolted Abe with hard right to face. Owen three times jolted Abe with hard lefts and jarred him with hard uppercut. Attell stalled as if groggy, and they mixed in hottest rally of the fight. Attell came out of it the stronger. About even.

Round Fourteen.

Owen forced Abe through the ropes and pummelled him with rights and left. Attell came back as though hurt. Owen hooked Abe with light left. Abe came back with same punch. Abe put another light left to face. Owen jolted Abe with two stiff right uppercuts. Abe jarred Owen with straight left. Round even.

Round Fifteen.

They jolted each other with straight left. Owen jarred Abe with light left and hooked in right. Abe poked Owen in his good eye. They exchanged hard rights in a mixup. Owen turned Abe around with a right hook. Owen landed stiff left. They exchanged lefts and clinched. At the gong Moran caught Abe with two hard left swings. Moran's round.

Round Sixteen.

Owen landed right to jaw and Abe stalled as though groggy. Moran did not bite. Abe planted stiff left to jaw and just missed his next try. Owen copped Abe with right on jaw and hard left to body. They exchange straight lefts to face. They clinched again and again, Owen pummeling Abe over kidneys with right. Both exchange wicked rights to jaw. Moran's round.

Round Seventeen.

Owen lands two light lefts on face. As they clime into clinch he puts light left on jaw. Owen put right to body and left to face. Owen roughed Abe in a clinch, landing two telling lefts. Mran landed two light lefts. Abe missed right swing and Owen caught him two hard rights. They exchanged hard crosses. They fought hard in this round, each trying hard for a knock-out. Abe copped Owen with a stiff right and left. Moran had a shade.

Round Eighteen.

Abe copped Owen with hard left on jaw. He caught him another on nose and started blood. Abe nearly fell down avoiding Moran's left lead. Moran landed series right and lefts to jaw. Abe missed left swing but put hard left to stomach. Owen put right to face and they fought hard in a clinch. They exchange straight lefts. Both fought like demons for the body. Even round.

PAPKE MURDERS GREAT CHAMPION

The Illinois Thunderbolt Knocks Ketchel Out in Twelfth Round.

Vernon Arena, Los Angeles, Sept. 8.—In one of the most surprising battles of pugdom, Stanley Ketchel, the hitherto marvel and undefeated champion middleweight, was simply slashed to pieces by Billy Papke in 12 rounds. Both men were in splendid condition when they entered the ring and neither had ever been knocked out. Ketchel had a decision over Papke in a previous 10-round go.

When the men entered the ring Papke walked over to Ketchel's corner and shook hands with the champion, but when Referee Jeffries called time Papke rushed in without the preliminary handshake and a minute and one half after the round started Ketchel was a defeated man. It was only a question of endurance and gameness from that time on, for Papke hammered the champion at will and made him look like raw beefsteak. Ketchel was terribly punished and was badly marked, whereas Papke came out of the fray apparently as fresh as when he entered the ring. The only redeeming thing about the fight was the gameness of Ketchel in hanging on for 12 rounds. It was a case of Papke out-Ketcheling Ketchel. Following is the fight by rounds:

Round One.

Papke led with his left and rushed Ketchel into a corner. Papke landed four blows on the head. Papke then stepped in, but Ketchel caught him on the chin with his left. Papke landed his right on the chin and Ketchel uppercut lightly with his left. Papke knocked Ketchel down with a right and left to the face. Ketchel was groggy. Papke knocked him down again with a right and left to the mouth. Ketchel took his count of nine. Papke again sent him down with a right and left to the face. Ketchel came up again and the gong rang. Ketchel was groggy and bleeding from the mouth.

Round Two.

Ketchel came up groggy and Papke went at him like a tiger. Ketchel was unable to land and Papke landed right and left, sending Ketchel around the ring. Papke landed repeatedly on Ketchel's head, but was unable to put him out. Ketchel's face was one mass of gore. His eyes were blinded with blood and he could do little but cling to Papke. Papke exhausted himself by his effort and was unable to put his man out. Ketchel tried vainly to uppercut and shoved Papke to the ropes when the gong sounded.

Round Three.

Ketchel led for the stomach and missed. Papke landed a straight right to Ketchel's neck. Ketchel missed two rights. Papke uppercut Ketchel, again bringing the blood. Ketchel constantly spat blood. Papke then landed straight in his mouth. Ketchel landed his left on Papke's ear and the crowd cheered. He followed a moment later in the same place. Ketchel appeared a little stronger.

Round Four.

Papke landed right on mouth and started blood again. Papke was covered with blood from his opponent. Ketchel landed a straight right to the body, but Papke only smiled. Ketchel landed two rights to the body, but missed a vicious right to the head. Papke closed Ketchel's left eye. Papke's mouth was bleeding slightly. Ketchel's face was in a terrible condition.

Round Five.

Ketchel missed a right for the face and they wrestled about the ring. Ketchel forced the fighting. Both men very weak. Papke landed viciously with his right on Ketchel's face, bringing blood afresh. Ketchel uppercut his man twice with his left and they exchanged lefts to the face. Papke uppercut Ketchel and was countered with a like blow. As the gong sounded Papke swung on Ketchel again with left and right jabs to the face.

Round Six.

Ketchel's face was in bad condition. Papke landed a terrific right in the face again, but Ketchel saved himself with a clinch. Papke landed his right and left repeatedly to the face and was smiling all the time. Ketchel was in distress, but continued to advance on his antagonist. Ketchel landed a terrific left on the solar plexus and Papke almost dropped in his corner, but the gong saved him.

Round Seven.

Papke uppercut Ketchel twice and Ketchel also landed on Papke's face. Papke was weak and Ketchel landed a straight left to the wind. Ketchel rushed his man and swung with terrific force, but ineffectually. Ketchel landed a left to the stomach and had Papke worried. Ketchell tried to smile through his bloody countenance. This was Ketchel's round.

Round Eight.

They sparred carefully and then fought at long range. Papke bored in on Ketchel's face three times in succession. Ketchel was hurt again and clinched frequently. Papke landed his left on the face and swung with both hands, but missed. He landed on Ketchel's nose and mouth and started the blood again. Papke landed a straight left and right uppercut on the mouth. Ketchel landed light on Papke's head, and Papke landed five or six uppercuts on the face and had Ketchel badly dazed. Papke was after him every minute. Ketchel shoved Papke through the ropes as the gong sounded.

Round Nine.

Papke uppercut Ketchel twice and rushed him furiously. Papke swung his left and right to Ketchel's jaw. He beat Ketchel considerably, but could not put him out. Ketchel's eyes were shut. He staggered about the ring, while Papke landed and staggered him with a left uppercut.

Round Ten.

Papke seemed stronger and rushed Ketchel and landed right and left on the face. Ketchel held on constantly. Ketchel missed an uppercut and Papke battered his man's face again. Ketchel's face looked hardly like a human one, but he fought back.

Round Eleven.

They rushed at each other and Papke went by Ketchel and turned and landed both hands to the face. Papke worried Ketchel with right and left jabs to the face. Papke finally landed a straight left to the face that staggered Ketchel and a moment later knocked him through the ropes with blows in the same place.

Round Twelve.

Ketchel almost helpless. Papke landed a straight right to the jaw. Ketchel went down for the count. He came up and Papke landed a straight right to the jaw as he came in and knocked him down again. At the count of nine Ketchel struggled to his feet, but Jeffries had already called to his seconds to cate for their man.

HAPPY HEINE FIRST ACROSS FINISH LINE

Counter attractions and a cold southwest wind accompanied with rain resulted in a smaller attendance than usual at the motor-boat races which were held yesterday afternoon. On account of a wrangle over an alleged violation of rules of the course and numerous protests being filed, the class "C" event, a handicap race, was declared off by the judges. Seven boats, the Rochester, May, Sterling, Van, Mercury, Ethel and Greenhorn, the two last from Astoria, entered this race.

Class "B," a scratch race for 15-mile boats over a 4¾-mile course, was run by the boats Comet, Kittie and Ethel. The Comet and Kittie were disqualified for not following the course and the first prize given to the Ethel.

The class "A" event, a scratch race for 22½-mile boats, over a 9½-mile course, was the event of the afternoon. The Barb, Happy Heine and the Greenhorn were the entries, the race being easily won by the Happy Heine over the Barb with nearly two minutes to spare. The Greenhorn crossed the line 3¾ minutes behind the winner. The prize for this race was the J. Wesley Ladd cup.

Considerable credit for the victory of the Happy Heine is due to the condition of her engines, which were placed in order and handled during the race by Alfred Klinghal.
