WEATHER REPORT

The storm causing the rain yesterday in this district is now central northeast of Montana, and a strong high pressure area has made its appearance over western Oregon and western Washington. Another large high pressure area, central over the lower lake region, controls the weather in the eastern states. During the last 24 hours light rain has fallen generally throughout the north Pacific states, and also in Utah, southern Nevada, Arizona, western Montana, British Columbia and the Canadian northwest; elsewhere fair weather prevails. It is much cooler in northern and eastern Oregon, Washington, Idaho, western Montana, and British Columbia. The temperatures along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains are above normal, but in the northern states from the lake region east to the Atlantic it is cooler than usual.

The indications are for fair and cooler weather tonight in this district, with light frost except near the immediate coast. Wednesday will be fair and warmer.
