

DEATH TO FANATICS

This Warning Sent to Protestant Alliance by So-called Anti-Bigotry Society—Prelates at London Decide to Parade.

(United Press Leased Wire.) London, Sept. 11.—The Central News announces that Henry Fowler, secretary of the Protestant Alliance, today received a threat that he and the prominent members of his organization would be put to death if they attempted to interfere with the parade to be held Sunday in connection with the Eucharistic congress.

The threat comes from an organization styled "The Catholic Anti-Bigotry Society," and the communication was signed "J. B. Secretary." The letter follows: "You are hereby warned that if any bigotry is displayed by your society in connection with the Eucharistic parade on Sunday, you and the leading members of your alliance will be punished by death."

"The Anti-Bigotry society is not sanctioned by the Catholic church, but it is an organization of influential laymen, some of whom are non-Catholics. It is the purpose of the society to put down religious bigotry, because bigotry should not be allowed to live in the twentieth century."

It was announced officially today that the parade would be held on Sunday, the threats of the Protestant alliance being ignored. The cardinals, after serious consideration, came to the conclusion that the authorities were sufficiently powerful to enforce good order. At the headquarters of the Protestant alliance it was announced that application would be made in the courts for an injunction to prevent the parade. It is believed the petition will be denied or held under advisement, meaning that there will be no official interference with the parade.

The government is not in sympathy with the Protestant alliance and it is now believed that much of the loud clamor about violence and disorder was not justified by the facts, having been aroused by a few fanatics. The alliance, however, says it is determined to prevent the parade one way or another.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILD TWO DAYS IN DESERT

Wanders Amid Cactus and Chapparal and Almost Shot by Hunter Who Finds Her.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Beaumont, Cal., Sept. 11.—Bruised and bleeding from falls and contact with cactus spines and thorny bushes, suffering intensely from thirst and hunger, a 4-year-old girl was found by Will Barrett wandering aimlessly in the hills south of here.

Two days and three nights she had struggled bravely to find the camp of her parents, from which she had strayed. Despite her fatigue she was able to describe to Barrett the surroundings of the camp that Barrett was enabled to recognize the locality as Hinda. Thither he carried the child and found her parents, who had supposed the little girl stolen by gypsies.

Barrett was hunting deer in the hills, some miles from where the camp of the girl's parents is located, when he saw an object moving in the bushes. At first he believed it was a deer, but not being positive he waited until he could determine. Suddenly the figure of a little girl appeared from behind a clump of chapparal.

Sobbing, she told him she was lost. Her clothing was in tatters and her arms and legs terribly lacerated. Despite the weakness resulting from her exposure Barrett was able to get the girl's tale to ascertain that she had come from Hinda. Carrying the child he made his way to that place, where he located the parents in a camp near the town.

SAME GLAD HAND TO FLEET AT ALBANY

(United Press Leased Wire.) By H. Lee Clotworthy, United Press Correspondent Abroad the U. S. S. Georgia.

Albany, West Australia, Sept. 11.—The men of the Atlantic battleship fleet are today enjoying the first of the last of the annual shore leave receptions. They find the men of the west of Australia as anxious to show their good will as the men of the east of the larger eastern Australian cities and even more anxious to express the sentiment that the Pacific ocean shall be controlled by the white race.

The fleet dropped anchors at 8 o'clock and within a few hours several hundred jackies were ashore. Ten thousand people are on the shores of King George's sound to see the American battleships. Premiers, J. Moore of West Australia and Admiral Speyer, who had exchanged compliments by wireless, met each other formally. As the fleet will be coaling here most of the time, the festivities will be confined mostly to the shore.

RECORD ORDER FOR LUMBER PLACED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 11.—Both the lumbering and logging industries on the British Columbia coast are exhibiting signs of healthy improvement, the result of increased demand from the Canadian Northwest. Within the past 10 days one northwest yard has placed an order for 300 cars of lumber from coast mills, one half of which will be sawed at New Westminster and one half at the Chemainus mill, on Vancouver Island.

While the demand for lumber has improved, prices are no higher, owing to the recent slashing of the list by coast mills, as a result of the conciliation of the price agreement between coast and mountain mills.

Excursion Notes to Denver. The annual meeting of the sovereign grand lodge of Oddfellows will take place in Denver, September 13, for which coast mills, as a result of the conciliation of the price agreement between coast and mountain mills.

COUNTY SCHOOL FUND PROPOSED

Superintendents Seek Solution of High School Problem in Oregon.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.) Salem, Or., Sept. 11.—A draft of a bill has been adopted by the convention of county school superintendents at Salem which establishes a county school fund from which any district may draw. The object of the bill is to obviate the necessity of establishing county high schools in any specified district and doing away with the struggle over location that always arises and is the greatest difficulty to establishing county high schools.

The new bill is advanced as a more expeditious method of getting the high schools closer to country students as well as doing away with the location problem. For the first 10 students $40 a year is to be appropriated, for the second 10 $30 and for the remainder $25. The fund will be administered by a board of high school directors as under the present system.

Means of better enforcing the compulsory education law were also discussed by the convention yesterday. It was recommended to the several county courts that triant officers be appointed for each county who shall have no other duties to perform but to see that all children of a school age are in school. The officer will be paid for the time put in and reimbursed for traveling expenses.

Governor Chamberlain addressed the meeting yesterday afternoon and told the superintendents of the advantages of cooperation in their work and said the efforts of the convention should be similar in the results to the convention of governors called by President Roosevelt last May. He said the public school system of the state was certain to be improved under such methods. Whether the eighth grade diploma should be abolished was discussed in the afternoon, but no recommendations were made.

BLOODED HORSES ATTRACT CROWDS

Race Card at Salem State Fair Will Be Unusually Strong This Year.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.) Salem, Or., Sept. 11.—The fairgrounds are the scene of much activity about Salem this week. Every freight brings additional exhibits. Stock and machinery as well as prize fruits and vegetables are arriving and being allotted to their proper places. The fair is in excellent condition.

The ponies and trotting horses are objects of deep interest and the new blooded animals that have never before visited the coast attract large crowds to the track every morning to watch the trots. In view of the enormous importations of California and eastern horses, local horsemen predict that few of the horses will be successful in the forthcoming races. Every feature including the races will be better than at any previous state fair.

WELL KNOWN GILLIAM COUPLE ARE MARRIED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Blalock, Or., Sept. 11.—W. S. Richards and Miss Pearl Parrish were married Friday evening at Condon, justice Wheeler officiating. The contracting parties are well known throughout the county. The groom is a prosperous farmer. The bride is a member of one of the pioneer families of eastern Oregon, being the oldest daughter of Justice O'Parrish. The couple will spend a few weeks visiting in Polk county, the groom's former home, after which they will be at home to their friends at their farm home near Blalock.

WASHINGTON FISH LAW IS IN EFFECT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Astoria, Or., Sept. 11.—Fall fishing on the Columbia river, according to the Washington law, opened at noon yesterday. On the Washington shore the following canneries will be operated: Eureka, Meglers, Pillar Rock and McGowan.

The cooperative cannery on the Oregon shore will run, also the north shore traps and gillnetters. It has not been decided whether the shiners will fish, as the price of fish, which has been fixed at 2 cents, is almost prohibitive for the seiners.

TOWNS SAFE UNLESS WIND RISES AGAIN

(United Press Leased Wire.) Duluth, Minn., Sept. 11.—Word from the Mesaba range today states that the forest fires are burning steadily over the grazing land, but that none of the remaining towns are in danger from the flames unless the wind should rise suddenly. Over 5,000 square miles have already been burned over and the wind is now light but steady. It is not thought the fire can be stopped until it has burned itself out, because the wind makes back firing impossible. The smoke from the fire is almost intolerable and all the women and children have been shipped out of the settlements, while the men have remained behind to fight fire.

WANNAMAKER'S WAY OF BETTING ON TAFT

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 11.—John Wannamaker today predicted that Taft would be elected by a majority of the popular vote. That was one of the reasons he was rushing his 14-story store building to completion, he said, so as to be ready for the wave of prosperity that he declared would follow the election of Taft.

Wannamaker painted an optimistic picture of the return of prosperity on the election of the Republican candidate for president. Confidence would return, he said, and business would be fine.
