

MIXUP WITH FISHERMEN MEANS REPEAL OF LAW

That the coming legislature will repeal the initiative fishing laws which are creating so much dissatisfaction is now a certainty in the opinion of well informed fishermen on the river. They cannot see why the laws were passed in the first place. Similar laws have not held good before.

In the case of the state vs. Girard, the supreme court decided several years ago that where the laws of two states having a common water boundary conflicted that the law of neither was effective. In the Girard case the man was charged with illegal Sunday fishing. The court decided that he could not be prosecuted because the Washington laws allowed him to fish on Sunday.

No New Trouble Expected.
Master Fish Warden McAllister and Governor Chamberlain are preparing some suggestions to the legislature with regard to the fishing laws which the governor will incorporate in his message to the state legislature.

This will advocate the preparation of joint legislation by the two states covering the waters of the Columbia river and the repeal of all laws that now conflict.

There will be little likelihood of very much trouble in enforcing the law on the lower waters of the river from now on as the wholesale arrests which have been made by Warden McAllister's men have had a deterrent effect on the fishermen. The salmon run is nearly over down there anyway.

But upon the upper river conditions are different. Never before in the history of the fishing industry on the Columbia, say the fishermen, have the big fish been so plentiful and the men who make their living with nets and traps are in fighting mood, as they see thousands of dollars slipping past them while the patrol boats harrow them unceasingly. The deputies on the upper river say that their force will have to be greatly increased effectively to prevent further encroachments.

Spread Nets Despite Law.
The fishermen are spreading net nets all over the river and the only way to detect these is by dragging, which is a tedious and slow process. A patrol boat may be at work all night on one stretch of fishing grounds while the salmon are being caught in tons on other parts of the river.

FISH CASE WILL BE CARRIED TO SUPREME COURT FOR DECISION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Astoria, Or., Sept. 16.—A private dispatch received today from I. B. Kiecker, assistant attorney-general for the state of Washington, says he intends to bring a suit this week in the federal court to enjoin the Oregon officers from enforcing the Oregon initiative law on the Washington side of the river. He also says he will take the case of the state of Oregon against Nielsen to the United States supreme court for a decision.

Nielsen was arrested for operating a purse net seine in the waters of the Columbia river, in conflict with the Oregon law. He held a Washington license, as that state not only does not prohibit seines but has a law under which he was licensed. However, Nielsen was convicted in the justice court here and fined $50 and that decision was affirmed in a "perfect" circuit court and by the state supreme court.

WIVES! Tailor-Made Clothes

Give your husbands a dressy, refined appearance; they don't have to be exaggerated to attract attention; after the first damp day they don't look like some other fellow's clothes—the fronts don't break down, pockets don't sag, collar clings to the neck instead of rearing back; cost much less in the end than "ready-mades," and gives the wearer absolute comfort and the confidence of feeling well dressed.

MULTNOMAH RURAL DISTRICTS STRONG FOR BRYAN AND KERN

Gus Nelson, a farmer of Holbrook precinct, is so firm a believer in the patriotism of the Democratic nominees and in the Democratic platform that he has asked The Journal to turn over for him $2 to the volunteer campaign fund as a farmer's contribution to a good cause.

"The sentiment in the rural districts of Multnomah county is strong for Bryan and Kern," says Mr. Nelson. "Heretofore the precinct has been heavily Republican, but this year I believe the majority of the voters are going to do what I myself long since decided to do—vote on the issues before the people so as to benefit the great body of average men and cut out the worship of party, which enables special interests to put through their schemes against the people.

"One thing which the people of the county cannot understand is why some of the bankers are opposed to guaranteeing the deposits of individuals while it is a universal custom to guarantee the deposits of cities, counties and funds of other public bodies. I was once caught in a 'perfect' safe bank. I don't believe that such failures will ever occur under the guarantee system, for there will never be the loss of confidence which in the past has caused runs on the soundest banks in the country."

GROUNDS READY FOR ALL EVENTS

Every Department at Livestock Park Waiting for Opening Gong.

Superintendent Fred Brooker of the Country Club and Livestock association ground said this morning that all departments of the Pacific National show and harness race meet would be in readiness by the opening day, next Monday. The last gap in the 3-mile picket and wire fence enclosing the tract was completed yesterday and the automatic turnstiles are being installed at the main entrance at the grand stand. The driveway for use entrance of pleasure vehicles at the west and lower entrance to the track is to be completed today or tomorrow to an extension of Tillamook avenue, which has been opened up through several additions lying west of the Country club site. This driveway affords the most direct route from town to the Country club.

The mammoth grandstand with a seating capacity of 4,000 people is all but finished and will be turned over by the contractors tomorrow. This great structure is one of the most imposing features of the Country club domain. It is built so that every person in the entire stand can see every inch of the magnificent race track, and is built at an elevation above the course. Visitors who have been taken out to the Country club grounds are a unit in declaring that no more picturesque view is afforded in any sporting park in America than from the one which is to be dedicated to the light harness sport the coming week in this city.

Accommodate Thousands.
The open bleachers will accommodate close to 5,000 people and afford a splendid view of the track as does the grand stand and is located immediately adjoining it and up the home stretch. The pavilion will be ready by the opening, the crews working overtime on the structure to have it ready. It is being constructed in such a way that it can be roofed in and joined to the grand stand, which will give a combined seating capacity of nearly 8,000 people.

Today being "Portland Day" at the Salem State fair, the officers and several directors have gone to the capital city as official representatives of the Country Club and Livestock association, with an invitation that the fair people pay a return call on "Western Oregon Day" at their meet here, which will be next Thursday. Invitations have been sent to the sportsmen, livestock men and breeders through the Willamette, the Rogue river, the Umpqua valley, to come here especially on that day and interest the general public of their communities in this special day of the meet. As an added attraction for the "Western Oregon Day" the select combination sale of livestock, horse and cattle, will open on Thursday morning and will continue for two days, giving Oregon breeders a fine opportunity to replenish their herds with first-class stock.

Good Fishing at Newport.
Advice has just been received that silverside and chinook salmon are being caught on trolls in Yaquina bay.

TROOPERS ROUT STARVING MOB

Austrian Peasants Kill Prince While Harvest Festival Is in Progress.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Vienna, Sept. 17.—Driven to desperation by crop failures, the peasants in the provinces of Galicia and Bukovina are engaging in serious uprisings, according to reports received today. One of the most serious outbreaks reported is that which occurred on the estate of Prince Lubo Mirskis in Knochina, Galicia, and which resulted in the death of the prince.

Mirskis was killed in an altercation with a peasant. Friends of the assassin then attacked the prince's castle where a harvest festival was in progress and only the fact that the guests were armed prevented the establishment from being sacked. A stampede followed, but the peasants were finally driven off by mounted troops.

Many of the poorer classes throughout the provinces are on the verge of starvation and unless the landlords deal leniently with their tenants, a small sized revolution may result.
