M. A. A. C. GETS GREAT TEACHER

O'Connell, New Wrestling Instructor, Ready to Commence With Classes.

Edward J. O'Connell, Multnomah Amateur Athletic club's new wrestling instructor, reached Portland last night from the east and will start his classes tomorrow. O'Connell occupies a unique position in the grappling world having, while a student at Yale university, developed a team and individual wrestlers which were never beaten. He is the man who brought Alfred C. Gilbert, the Portland champion pole vaulter, to his highest development as a wrestler and made him win the intercollegiates for two successive years in his lightweight class.

Another prominent athlete developed by O'Connell is George Dole, the 125-pound amateur champion of the world. Dole won the Olympic championship at the recent London games in competition with hundreds of other wrestlers. In addition he has won the 125-pound event for the last three years in the intercollegiate and national championship. His brother, Louis Dole, 135 pounds, was the intercollegiate champion for three years.

O'Connell was a student for three years at Yale, taking a post-graduate course at Cornell last year. During his work at Cornell he had charge of the wrestling team, and the Ithicans, who had won but once in 24 tournaments, finished in second place at the intercollegiate last year. The Yale team, which contained a majority of O'Connell's old pupils, was the only aggregation to beat the Cornellians.

Stands Off Burns and Beell.

When he was still a lightweight, O'Connell stood off Farmer Burns and Fred Beell for half an hour each without a fall, when they first went east. About the only man of that galaxy of grappling stars that went out of the middle west several years ago who could throw him with any ease, was the present champion, Frank Gotch, whose superior weight was too much for O'Connell.

O'Connell tried for four years to coax Bothner, the lightweight champion, on the mat, but could never get him into action. The nearest Bothner came to meeting the Yale man was to post his forfeit money, which was lost.

O'Connell announces that in connection with his work at the club, he will do some professional wrestling. He is anxious to get on with Dr. Roller of Seattle and will open negotiations with the Seattle physician-wrestler if he ever gets back from Hawaii. He is wrestling now at 158 pounds. O'Connell is 23 years of age and a young man of pleasing appearance.

Edgar Frank, chairman of wrestling at the club, announced this morning that the classes to work under O'Connell will be the largest in years. He said the committee would commence at once to arrange the schedule of fall and winter matches with the other northwest clubs.

McGrath Will Judge.

T. S. McGrath, president of the Portland Hunt club and promoter of Portland's successful horse show, has been asked to act as presiding judge at the Spokane horse show which will be given October 7 to 10, inclusive. Mr. McGrath has accepted the invitation to the great satisfaction of the Spokane board of management and of his home organization, the Hunt club.

CRESCENT CITY RACE MEN IN A QUANDARY

Shall They Let the Public Get Race-Hungry and Risk a Shutout.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

New Orleans, Sept. 23.—Arrangements were made today for a conference to be held at Cincinnati next week, when the policy to be pursued by the racing interests at New Orleans this winter will be finally decided. Louis Cella, Samuel F. Heaslip, president of the New Orleans Jockey club, and other interests involved in the local tracks will be represented at the conference.

John H. Hackmeister, representing the Cella interests, conferred with Heaslip here today. He said:

"There is a disposition to close the tracks for two years in the hope that patrons will grow hungry for the sport. On the other hand, it is feared that the hotels will find other means of attracting tourists and that in time racing will die out."

These matters will be considered at the Cincinnati conference.

On Eastern Diamonds

Jesse Burkett's Worcester team is a three-time pennant winner in the New England league.

* *

All of the teams that made up the Eastern league have won a pennant with the exception of Newark.

* *

American association teams played before the largest crowds this season in the history of the organization.

* *

The South Michigan league race was a hummer, the Saginaw team having to play every minute to cop the pennant.

* *

Jack Sullivan, the star catcher of Kansas City, refused to work for the Pittsburg club the last month of the season without pay.

* *

Jack McCarthy and Bill Bernhard, both former big league players, made good as minor league managers this season, the former at Springfield, Ill., and the latter at Nashville, Tenn.

* *

As manager at Montreal last year Malachi Kittredge was a "downer," but this season as pilot of the champion Scranton team "Kitt" is of the latest pattern and full width.

* *

Burlington and Quincy made a good try for the Central association pennant, but the twice-champion Waterloo team proved too strong for them.

JOE GANS WILL BOX BEFORE KING EDWARD

Baltimore, Sept. 23.—Joe Gans is today preparing to go abroad and box for the entertainment of King Edward and such other monarchs as are interested in the "manly art." He has written to "Doc" Krone at Chicago notifying him that he is ready to start and it is probable that the two will sail within the next 30 days.

After his second defeat by Battling Nelson, Gans decided to postpone his European tour and take on some of the eastern lightweights before leaving America. He is now said to have received flattering offers from across the water which influenced him to change his plans.

AT THE THEATRES

Kolb and Dill at Heilig Tonight.

The favorite comedians, Kolb and Dill together with their excellent company, will be the attraction at the Heilig theatre, Fourteenth and Washington streets, tonight and every night this week in the merry musical comedy success, "Lonesome Town." A special price matinee will be given next Saturday afternoon. Seats are now selling at theatre for the entire week.

Seat Sale Opens Next Friday.

"Coming Thro' the Rye," one of the most beautiful and tuneful musical comedies that came to Portland last season, will again be the attraction at the Heilig theatre, Fourteenth and Washington streets, for four nights, beginning next Sunday night, September 27. Matinee Wednesday. Advance seat sale opens next Friday.

"The Flip Mr. Flop."

Kittie Francis, the funniest woman in vaudeville, is at the Grand this week with Rube Welch in "The Flip Mr. Flop," the headline act. With them is Miss Kate Coyle, the most popular singer of illustrated songs Portland has had. There are clever comedy sketches, acrobats and other entertainers.

Great Nat Goodwin Comedy.

The Baker Stock company at the Bungalow Twelfth and Morrison, is presenting Nat Goodwin's greatest success, the laughable comedy "A Gilded Fool," this week to the unusual crowded houses at every performance.

Matinee at Baker.

The Royal Chef, which is delighting theatre goers at the Baker all this week, will give another popular price matinee tomorrow. Hear the tuneful catchy songs such as "Let Me Go Back" with beautiful chorus and light effects, and laugh all evening at the droll comedy and eccentric character studies.

Beautiful Afternoons at the Oaks.

Many Portland people are taking advantage of the wonderful and invigorating afternoons at the Oaks. Autumn foliage and flowers add their attractiveness to the many entertaining specialties and features. Among the wonderful exhibits now being shown is Captain Langley's whale skeleton, the largest and most perfect in preservation.

"Nell Gwynne" at the Star.

Miss Georgia Harper appearing at the Star all this week in "Nell Gwynne" brings one of the best productions of this piece ever seen in Portland. Miss Harper's management has surrounded her with a supporting company seldom seen in popular price houses and has not overlooked the scenic part of the production.

Great Lester at Pantages.

There are ventriloquists and ventriloquists, but certain it is there is not one in vaudeville today the peer of Lester. At the Pantages he is billed as "Great Lester," as a matter of fact, he is great. He is without fear of contradiction, the very best in his line ever seen in Portland.

The Argentine Republic contains more horses than any other country, the proportion being about 112 to every 100 of the population.
