CHILDREN SEE THE LIVESTOCK PARADE

Parade was slow and lacking in interest. Except in one or two instances, there was little, competitive bidding, and some of the choicer stock was withdrawn, the owners refusing to take the figures offered.

New Records Expected. The races in the afternoon were of the same class quality that all the marked events have been, and were as usual by the smearing of accounts. The spectators are getting so accustomed to this that they feel defrauded if a race is pulled off in less than ten minutes.

The attendance yesterday was almost equal to that of the day before, which was Portland day. There were not so many people in the grandstand, but more in the bleachers and scattered up and down the track.

Few Bursts of Applause. With records going to smash every few minutes, with the most thrilling contests going on right under its collective noses, Portland plainly regards sticks on its umbrellas and walking sticks and gossips about the weather and the best recipe for making a good apple out of woolen dresses.

Livestock Parade Today. One of the big features scheduled for today is the parade of livestock on the track in front of the grandstand. The parade will start at 10 o'clock.

Jersey Awards. The awards in the Jersey class yesterday were: Bull—3 years old or over—First, H. West, Golden Lad; second, H. West, King of the Hill.

Bull—2 years old—Looney, Scapoose Lad. Bull—junior yearling—Looney, Salden Hero.

NEVER POPULAR WITH EDITOR'S KIND

Replying to an editorial attack in the Oregonian this morning, Rev. Father Gregory, pastor of the Sacred Heart Catholic church of this city, dictated the following:

The Oregonian editor may degrade his profession as he will, never will I degrade mine. My kind has never been popular with the emissaries of evil, with men who have these many years sneered at and slandered religion, and particularly the Catholic church, who have been pilloried in the public prints as the destroyers of legislatures and the scavengers of libel and who are today advocating moral treason to the representatives of the people who trusted them.

My kind have never been popular with those who would sell their souls to be a senator of the United States. This morning the Oregonian says editorially: "We pass over deeds which ought to make men who commit them infamous. We forget too easily; we forgive too readily!" How true!
