AT THE THEATRES

Musical Play With "Salome Dance." The beautiful musical comedy success "The Girl of the Golden West" will be the attraction at the Helig theatre, Fourteenth and Washington streets, tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock. This merry offering has been pleasing Portland theatre-goers the past two evenings as no other musical show has in many months. The sensational "Salome Dance," by Margaret Taylor, is a pronounced hit. Seats are selling at the theatre.

Special Price Matinee at Helig. A special price matinee will be given at the Helig theatre, Fourteenth and Washington streets, tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon, when the musical comedy, "Coming Thro' the Bay," will be the offering. Seats selling at theatre.

The Days of '49. In Belasco's famous western play "The Girl of the Golden West," which Baker stock company is presenting at the Bungalow this week for the first time here, are depicted the days of early gold discovery in California. It is by far the greatest western drama ever written.

Scenic Extravaganza at the Baker. Children will be especially pleased with the beautiful scenic piece, "The Cat and the Fiddle," which is making immense hits at the Baker this week. It is founded upon the rhymes learned in the nursery and shows so many of the happy and carefree begonias of those joyous childhood days.

"Uncle Josh Perkins" at the Star. "Uncle Josh Perkins," the great comedy success which is playing at the Star this week, is a play built on original lines and is presented by a brilliant company who make the most possible out of every type of character enacted.

Plays Five Characters. In "The Criminal," the protean act at the Grand this week, Roland West assumes five different characters. The plot is a story of the police "third degree," and is well told. The changes are complete that many in the audience do not believe that Mr. West is playing these different roles.

FISHERMEN ALL FISHING

Nothing Now to Restrain Salmon Catch During Lawful Season, Pending Supreme Court Decision—Wolverton Issues Order.

All along the banks of the Columbia river there was activity among the fishermen today owing to the order of United States Judge Wolverton yesterday which was to the effect that fishing in the Columbia was to be open to all licensed fishermen pending the decision of the United States supreme court in the Chris Nielson case.

Ten days ago a temporary injunction was issued by the court prohibiting the master fish warden of Oregon from interfering with fishing on the Washington side of the river but which allowed the extended attention of the laws in this state. That didn't work very successfully and it was suggested that the injunction be extended to cover both sides of the river in the two states.

Owing to the restraining order issued yesterday by the court, brought about by the conflicting laws in the two states, the fishing situation which has been attracting considerable attention of late, resumes practically the same position that it occupied previous to the time the laws became effective. The order will in no way interfere with the enforcement of the state laws regarding the open and closed seasons during certain months of the year. The season is now open, September 15 having been the date.

The order of yesterday is as follows: "In the circuit court of the United States in the district of Oregon—State of Washington, complainant, vs. H. C. McAllister, Joe Doe and Richard Roe, defendants:

"Whereas in the above entitled cause motion for the issuance of injunction pendente lite restraining the defendants to all that persons acting in concert with them from in any manner interfering with any person or persons whatsoever engaged in fishing under the authority of the state of Washington or by virtue of a compliance with its laws in that portion of the Columbia river lying within the territorial limits of the state of Washington, which motion has heretofore been filed and the hearing thereof fixed for the 28th day of September, 1908, and it further appearing that the defendants contended that such injunction should be denied over and over the entire Columbia river, and after hearing the respective solicitors for the parties, it is ordered that the defendants and all other persons acting in concert with them or under their directions are hereby restrained from in any manner interfering with plaintiff or any person or persons whatsoever engaged in fishing for salmon in the Columbia river; and said defendants are further restrained from in any manner interfering with the possession, taking, selling, confiscating or destroying of any net, seine, appliance or apparatus whatsoever used by such persons in carrying on said fishing operations until the final hearing of this cause; and that portion of the injunction extending the terms thereof beyond the territorial limits of the state of Washington, plaintiff excepts.

"By consent of the parties hereto giving of bonds as waived.

"Done in open court at Portland, Or., this 28th day of September, A. D. 1908."

Orpheum Has Fine Program

This week the Orpheum bill is good. The work of the tennis trio is clever. Frank McCrea can shoot at least as straight as William Tell, for he does the same trick. Harry Klein and Miss Pearl Clifton in the "Dummy's Holiday" provoke laughter. Franklyn Underwood, Miss Frances Sloan and George Bloomquist came back to Portland with a good comedy act, and were warmly received. Charles Bessiah and Miss Julia Miller did something in "Something Doing" Redford and Winchester are clever jugglers, and the work of Gennaro and his Venetian band is out of the ordinary. The moving pictures show the show as usual.

Perhaps the most warmly received number on the entire bill was "Dobbs' Dilemma," produced by Mr. Underwood and Miss Sloan, rorperly with the Baker stock company of this city, and George Bloomquist, one of the old time favorites with the Columbia stock company of several years ago. Each of these actors were given a warm welcome as they came upon the stage and their playlet merited it. It is safe to say that Mr. and Mrs. Dobbs and Will Firt will be guests of honor at the Orpheum during the week.

There were other interesting things on the bill of which the work of the tennis trio and of Redmond and Winchester were worthy of mention, their juggling being new in conception and clever in execution. Also full of comedy, the Venetian Gondolier band closes the bill proper with a very well executed concert in which the music divides interest with the fantastic gyrations of Gennaro, the eccentric leader. Altogether the bill is well worth seeing.

USED PHONE, STOLE MONEY ON TABLE

The East Side Delicatessen and Bakery, 682 East Morrison street, is poorer by $20 through allowing a stranger to use the telephone last night. A young man, dark complexioned and dressed in a dark suit, came into the store between 8 and 9 o'clock last night and asked permission to use the phone. He was allowed to do so and went out into the kitchen, where the phone is located. After he had gone out the proprietor discovered that $20 which had been lying on the kitchen table had gone with him. The proprietor says he knows the man by sight, but not by name. The police have been notified and it is expected that the thief will be caught.

A Millinery Education

A visit to Fraley's can fittingly be termed a millinery education, so varied and beautiful are the hat styles on display. Here you will see table after table of perfectly blended Browns, ranging from the lightest Tan to Dark Seal. Blues in an infinite variety of lovely tints, the fascinating new Taupe (smoke gray) and the latest shades of Green, while the plain Blacks and Whites are much in evidence.

One is especially impressed with the exquisite simplicity of the trimmings, a simplicity that is the consummation of the highest millinery art. Any amateur can pile an indiscriminate mass of trimming on a hat, but only an expert can create the effect of perfect style, combined with charming simplicity, that distinguishes a Fraley hat from any other. Your inspection cordially invited.
